Reapportionment — frustrating issue in Capitol

By BOB SCHMIDT From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Legislative reapportionment, an embarrassing and frustrating subject two years ago and ignored entirely last year, returns to the Capitol center stage this week as the lawmakers race to realign their districts before the State Supreme Court does it for them.

The Constitution requires the Legislature to reapportion itself at its first session of each decade, with the redistricting based on the updated population figures made available by the census takenduring the preceding year. In 1971, though, the Assembly and Senate were unable to agree on plans acceptable to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

HIS VETOES were challenged, but the Supreme Court upheld their legality, adding that acceptable plans had to be prepared in 1972 oo the court would draw its

And although court attaches say no new deadline, formal or informal, has been set, Assembly leaders feel that legislative action must be completed by March 1, because on or about that date the court will lose the last of its pa-tience and appoint a master or referee to oversee the drafting of new Senate and Assembly district boundaries.

THE TACTIC this year is not only to prepare plans acceptable to enough legislators to total a simple majority in each house — all that is needed to send the plans to the governor's desk — but enough to assure that if Reagan vetoes one or both, his vetoes will be overridden.

That requires two thirds in each house — 54 votes in the Assembly and 27 in the Senate. But even more than 54 and 27 votes are needed, because Article 4, Section 8 of the Constitution states "at regular ses-sions no bill other than the budget bill may be heard or acted on by committee or either house until the 31st day after the bill is introduced unless the house dispenses with this requirement by roll call vote entered in the journal, three fourths of the membership concurring."

That means that 60 Assembly years and 30 Sende voles are needed votes and 30 Senate votes are needed for the bills to be heard in committee this week or next, anecessity if the March 1 "deadline" is to be met. THE SENATE appears to be closer to agreement than the Assembly. Sen. John L. Harmer, R. Glendale, the principle promponent of the plan now being considered, said Friday that "more than enough" senators had expressed satisfaction with the plan to assure passage and that he helicaged the 20 passage, and that he believed the 30 votes needed to waive the 30-day rule could be obtained.

So confident is Harmer that he has asked that the Senate Committee on Elections and Reapportionment schedule a hearing on the bill for Thursday, meaning that the Senate as a whole is going to have to vote by Wednesday on waiving the 30-day rule.

The two senators believed to have grievances are Alan Short, D-Stockton, and Peter Behr, R-Marin his constituents should continue to be represented by a senator of their own choosing, and he has openly objected to the Harmer plan. Behr, a Republican in a heavily Democratic district, is reportedly unhappy because the plan would add, still more Democrats in the cities of Richmond and Vallejo to his fourth district.

In Southern California, Democra-tic Senators Joseph M. Kennick and Ralph C. Dills, from Long Beach, will have districts basically the same as the ones they now rep-heritage.

The elections last November gave Democrats an overwhelming majority in the Assembly. They currently occupy 50 of the 80 seats, and are expected to add a 51st member when a special election is held to fill the Compton seat vacated by the death in December of Carley Porter.

Historic conflict seldom more intense than today

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Conflict between governmental power and freedom of the press has existed in varying degrees throughout America history, but seldom if ever has the struggle to define the limits of the government's authority to control information and the public's right to know been as intense as it is at the beginning of Richard Nixon's second term in office. This is the first in a series of articles.)

"Since informed public opinion is the most potent of all restrictions upon misgovernment, the suppres-sion or abridgement of the publicity afforded by a free press cannot be regarded otherwise than with a grave concern." -- U.S. Supreme Court describing the role of the press

By AL EISELE From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON - When defense counsel Leonard Boudin made his opening statement to the jury on the first day of the Pentagon Papers trial in Los Angeles in January, he posed a rhetorical question that summed up the paradox of the American system of government.

Asserting that the two defendants in the trial, Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo Jr., had not only a right but a duty as citizens to make public a secret Defense Department study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war, Boudin asked:

"To whom did the information belong?"

Then, answering himself, he said: "To the people of the United States."

BOUDIN'S question is one that journalists, judges, politicians and thoughtful citizens have debated from the time of the Fouding Fathers until Richard Nixon where does the government's authority to control information about its actions end and where does the public's right to that information

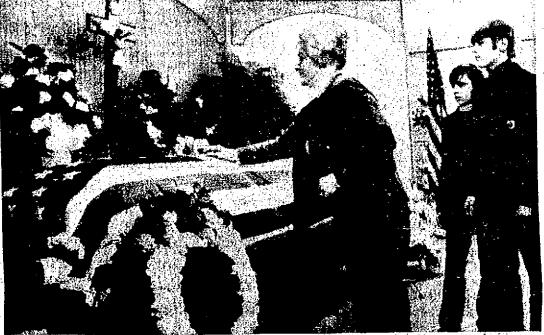

Andrew Hamilton helped establish the tradition of a largely unfettered press in America in 1735 when, defending New York newspaper printer John Peter Zenger from a libel charge brought by an irate royal governor, he claimed "a right — the liberty — both of exposing and opposing arbitrary power by speaking and writing truth."

Hamilton's argument helped Zenger successfully defend himself and later found its ultimate expression in the all-encompassing words of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which declared that "congress shall make no law . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press

A MAJOR test of the meaning of those words is one of several fundamental constitutional issues affecting the public's right to know which will be decided as the Pentagon Papers trial unfolds over the next several months. Regardless of its outcome, however, that trial is only one of the fronts in the war now being fought in Washington and in dozens of places around the country over the public's right to its government's

AS announced this week, Kissinger will visit Hanoi from Feb. 10 to 13, to discuss with North Viet-namese leaders the postwar relations between the two countries. Kissinger, in a television interview earlier in the week, said "the basic purpose of the trip is an exploratory mission to determine how we can move from hostility toward normalization."

Kissinger said he would discuss the principle of American aid to North Vietnam, as well as establishment of diplomatic relations, although he said the latter was "far down the road."

THE official announcement of the upcoming trip made here and in Peking, said:

"In accordance with the United States and The People's Republic of China joint communique of February 1972, Dr. Henry Kissinger, assistant to the President for national security affairs, will visit the People's Republic of China from Feb. 15 to 19, 1973, for con-crete consultations with Chinese leaders to further the normalization of relations between the Peo-ple's Republic of China and the United States and continue to exchange views on issues of common Officials discouraged specula tion that Kissinger, while in Pek-ing, might meet with Prince Noro-dom Sihanouk, the former chief of state of Cambodia, who has lived in exile in China. Sihanouk had earlier asked for a meeting with Kissinger to discuss a cease-fire in Cambodia, but officials said there were no plans for such a meeting.

'Sorry, honey, but I'm a cop'

It came as a jolt to Indian activist leader Anita Collins when trusted Apache friend John Areliano pulled out a badge and said: Nita, I hate to tell you this, but I'm a cop."
Arellano, a 25-year-old

Mexican-American, and no Indian, had infiltrated the Indian provement four months earlier and was with police when they arrested her last Wednesday.

He is the source quoted by the BBI in the charges against Miss Collins, Indian leader Hank Adams and investigative report-er Leslie Whitten, who are accused of unlawfully possessing documents stolen from the Bureau of Indian Affairs building in Washington last November.

Arellano told FBI agents Miss Collins had picked up three boxes of stolen documents at the bus station the night before Indian leaders said he had driven her there.

Agents handcuffed Adams and Whitten as they carried three cartons of documents from Adams' apartment to Whitten's car. Adams said they were on the way to the BIA to return the material; Whitten said he was along to get a story.

Miss Collins had been Arellano's closest friend among the Indians. He had used his associations with her to become part of the nucleus of Indian demon strators who occupied the BIA building. Later, he was able to keep up communications with Indians who scattered after taking part in the Trail of Broken Treaties caravan that climaxed with the ransacking of the build-a preliminary hearing, after which Blewett disqualified himself from the pending trial.

Oscar Mellin, publisher of the Calaveras Enterprise, wrote an editorial that same afternoon, Jan. 17, calling it "ludicrous" that the judge would handle a case where he was to be a witness.

Later Mellin explained, he indicated he wanted to try the case. A regular judge with a law background would have disqualified himself even before the bail was set."

The county district attorney, charging the editorial was "slanderous and contemptuous of the court," began contempt proceedings against Melin. The publisher has been ordered to face Judge Blewett Feb. 21 to

"I have enough experience on the bench to know that I can't be judge and jury. I disqualified myself at the proper time, after I fully informed the defendant and his attorney of their rights," he said.

AFTER the contempt charge was brought against Mellin, a photog-rapher for the Enterprise ended up grappling with the judge after trying to take his picture washing dishes in a restaurant the judge operates as a side business. The photographer was cuffed in the face and his film ruined in an action Blewett described as "reflex.

3 state agencies shift into one health unit March 1

Reagan administration will begin March 1 shifting functions of three state agencies into the newly created Department of Public Health.

Planning for the major reorganization, which will transfer the present de-partments of Mental Hy-gene, Public Health, and Health Care Services to the new agency, has been underway since last year.

DR. J. M. Stubblebine, fermer mental hygiene director who was named Gov. Reagan to head up the new department, said the reorganization would begin March 1 by putting some sections of the departments involved under two new health financing and administration systems.

He said completion of the shifts was expected by July 1, when the new de-partment officially becomés effective.

The California State Employes association criticized the timetable for the shakeup in its newspaper Friday, saying Stubblebine "failed to give any information on the cost of the reorganiza-tion or how the employes involved in the transfers would be affected."

A spokesman for Stub-blebine said Reagan has already announced the reorganization would cut 1,000 positions, primarily in middle management, from the three health agencies over the next two fiscal years.

"We're eliminating a lot of duplicated functions. And this is going to be done by attrition, not by layoffs," the spokesman said. "We can't guarantee that, but we don't expect

Reagan may back new death-penalty initiative

Gov. Reagan disclosed Saturday he may sponsor another ballot initialive to restore capital punish-ment if the Democratic-dominated Legislature refuses to act.

Assembly Speaker Bob

"They say it is their duty when the people have made a mistake to make their own decisions for the people," Reagan told the Republican State Convention.

"We Republicans believe the people made a decision to put capital punishment back on the books and we are going to do our hest to see it done.

Relatives, friends of murdered pair grilled

RICHMOND IP - Police questioned relatives and friends Saturday to seek a motive in the murders of an elderly matron and her son, both shot in the head and found in her car near a country club.

The woman, Ellen Harrison, 67, was the wife of Hugh Harrison, 69, the millionaire developer of "NoDoz" pills who had been jailed on the morning of the killings in a stock swindle case, Detective Dave Rodden said.

Mrs. Harrison was found Thursday night slumped in the back seat of her Cadillac near a golf club here, about five miles from the Harrison home in the exclusive suburb of Piedmont in the Oakland hills.

HER son by a previous marriage, Warren Merill, 44, of Moraga, was found dead in the trunk six hours later by officers who had towed the car to the police crime laborato-

Rodden said officers at first suspected Mrs. Harrison and her son were abducted and then shot when they walked in on a burglary at the Harrison home.
But he said detectives

dence of a burglary because so many valuable items were left in the house," including Mrs. Harrison's purse and Mer-rill's wallet, Rodden said.

Harrison had been jailed Thursday morning on four counts charging grand theft in the sale of securities. The Alameda County district attorney's office said he is accused of swindling an Oakland widow of $65,000 by get-ting her to put up cash and securities for a business transaction.

RODDEN said the husband had not yet been

After Harrison was jailed, Rodden said, Mrs. Harrison picked up her son at his Oakland business office and they returned to Piedmont. The family housekeeper telphoned police in the early evening to report she returned from errands and found the door to the home was open and some items were in disarray.

The bodies were found later that night, both shot in the head with a .38caliber weapon and bound and gagged with neckties, officers said.

The defense proceeds Monday, after a week's delay, to cross-examine the man they say is the most damaging witness the government has in its espionage case against Daniel Ellsberg.

of the government's case," Attorney Leonard Weinglass said.

"The only way for us to counteract that testimony was by immediate and vigorous probing. We have been denied that."

During questioning of the prosecution's first witness, two weeks ago, it was disclosed that the government had conducted extensive studies of what impact leakage of the Pentagon Papers had on national security.

U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne Jr. had order-ed the government last April to turn over any such "damage reports," but it was not until their existence was mentioned by Frank Bartimo, assist-ant general counsel to the Defense Department, that the prosecution came up "The issue central to the government's case the official government investigation into whether a crime had been committed — the essence of the case, was withheld from the grand jury and the trial court," Ellsberg's lawyer, Leonard Boudin, argued.

The judge refused to grant a mistrial or to dismiss the charges, saying for doing so, but conceded that the "record was not favorable" regarding the government's conduct.

He ordered William Gerhardt, the National Security Agency official who wrote the principal analthe secret vietnam war history, to appear briefly Monday for a further probe of why the reports were not submitted to the court last year.

Reagan also paraphrased President Nixon's celebrated "last press confer-ence" quote from a decade ago and said:

"The activists won't have Saigon to kick around any more. Some of them may even have to accept a four-letter word they have considered an obscenity up till now — W-O-R-K."

Reagan said Republi-cans must sell their story to Democrats and inde-pendents so "they send men and women who share our dreams to the Legislature, to the halls of Congress and, yes, to the courthouse and to city hall."

row Loux, 63, died of an apparent heart attack as he was rushing to the scene.

The blast, apparently triggered by a buildup of gas in the basement of the Coast-to-Coast Hardware store, trapped at least seven customers and four cafe employes in the Chatterbox. One of the dead was a resident of an apartment above the hardware store.

John Abbas, owner of the hardware store, had smelled gas in the base-ment for three days but could not locate the leak, residents said. Officials of Iowa Public Service Co. investigated a possible gas leak in the building last week but found nothing, Mayor Kenneth Brauman said. Kenneth Rieken, who had left the cafe with a friend moments before the blast, said, "I'd been in there and smelled gas, so that's what I figured had happened."

One of the identified dend was Donald Blue, 42, son of former Gov. Robert D. Blue, who had been eating supper in the cafe. "He sat down with us for a while," Rieken said. "We left him there."

Gov. Robert D. Ray arrived at the scene early Saturday. "This is a tragedy beyond compre-hension," he said. "You hear about an explosion but little can you conceive of whole buildings being totally razed."

The blast broke windows throughout the downtown section of this town of 4,500. Windows in a jewelry store next door to the case were shattered and diamond rings flew across the wide main

The cafe literally was leveled. "We've lost the whole floor of the cafe," Deputy Sheriff Mark Hen-derson said, "and that's why I think the people who were in there are now in the basement under tons of brick and T've done something terrible'

— A little man who walked into the police station and said, "I've done something terrible — I made a lot of people scream," was charged with being the arsonist who thered a confernit who turned a cafeteria into an inferno, injuring 139 people.

Most of the injured were elderly tourists who had stopped i the Concord Cafeteria, located on Miami Beach's famed Collins Avenue, for a late Friday night snack. A hospital spokesman said at least "two or three" of the injured are not expected to live.

Police at first believed the suspect, 49-year-old Charles Cornell Reardon of Bal Harbour, was con-fessing to something be hadn't done, but after fur-ther questioning and a brief psychiatric examination, they formally charged him with seconddegree arson and throwing a destructive device.

The arsonist walked into the cafeteria Friday night, methodically noured a jug of gasoline on the floor and tossed a match.

Flames exploded with a roar, lights shorted out and screams pierced the blackened room as choking smoke enveloped the The blaze erupted at 10G44 p.m., several hours after the peak dinner hour rush had passed. Mayor Chuck Hall, who rushed to the scene in his white Rolls Royce convertible, said "hundreds and hundreds" would have been injured had the fire occurred earlier.

With flames licking at their legs, those in the front of the cafeteria, pushed shoved and clawed their way to the street through one door and smashed new escape routes through plate glass windows with chairs.

Those in the rear huddled in corners or i rest rooms, hoping the flames wouldn't reach them. Their screams brought rescue teams with oxygen units. Reardon, a 5-foot-4, 110 pounder, fit the description of the arsonist supplied by David Giordini, a 21-year-old busboy. Those in the rear hudni, a 21-year-old busboy, who said:

"I was coming up from the kitchen downstairs and when I opened the door (to the dining area) I saw a little guy eight or ten feet inside the door. I saw him throw a match and then there was flame all over the place.
Another of those involved, Mrs. Gertrude Pli-mack of Brooklyn, N.Y.,

said she had just gone into the calcteria for a into the night snack when we saw a flash and the flames."

"Those who were close enough to the bathroom ran in ther where we thought we'd be safe," Mrs. Plimack said. "But the smoke was so thick I was surs that thus was the end. I've been vomiting up black soot and I couldn't believe how thick; the smoke was."

Mrs. Mary Cohen of London, Ont., sobbed from her hospital bed that she had gone into the res-taurant for a cup of coffee and "the next thing there were flames and the lights were out. I tried to; run but so did everyone else. I'm so short that I couldn't jump (about a foot from the window to the ground) without falling over people. I Don't know how I lived."

Keni Meade, a second-term Democrat from Berkeley, is the chairman of the Assembly Elections and Reapportionment Committee, and he has the job of persuading individual Republicans to support the plan now being discussed.

He acknowledges that a divide-and-conquer tactic is being employed. No Republican has yet seen the complete state Assembly reapportionment proposal, but individual GOP members have been shown their proposed new district.

MEADE acknowledges that he is asking each Republican not only for a vote on the bill, but a commitment to vote for an override if Reagan vetoes the measure.

Republican Caucus Chairman Robert Beverly of Manhattan Beach succeeded in pushing through a unity resolution last week, but Meade and other Democrats say that few Republicans have declined to discuss the proposals for their district.

One of those who have refused is Bill Bond, the freshman from Long Beach, who told Meade he would give no individual commitment until the Republican leadership had seen the entire plan and given its approval.

We have enough committed votes to override a veto," Meade said in an interview.

He acknowledged, however that he was still short of the 60 votes needed for the bill to be heard in comnlittee, although an aide, Mike Berman, said Friday he was confident the 60 votes could be achieved.

THE DEMOCRATS are realistic enough to know they can't get GOP support for a reapportionment plan which continues - until 1981 at least — the 51-29 Democratic majority created by the voters last November.

They have indicated a willingness to surrender three seats now held by Democrats, bringing the division to 48-32. The sacrificed seats are the Hayward district represented by the veteran Carlos Bee, the San Francisco seat held by John Francis Foran, and the El Monte district of

Harvey Johnson. Republican Floor Leader Bob Monagan of Tracy and Beverly have said, "thanks, but no thanks."

They object to the Democrats identifying a seat as Republican simply because it is occupied by a Republican.

There are a number of Assembly districts represented by Republicans which have heavy Democregistration majorities. When the GOP incumbent leaves, GOP leaders say, it is likely those seats will be won by a Democratic candidate.

THOSE districts include Monagan's own, the San Joaquin Valley districts represented by Gordon Duffy or Hanford, Ernest N. Mobley of Sanger, and Kenneth L. Maddy of Fresno, and the Marin County seat now held by William T. Bagley.

Democrats, on the other hand, feel that California's voting history requires them to identify as "safe" only those districts in which the Democratic registration percentage exceeds 56 per cent.

Despite the inclusion, for public consumption, of such phrases as "community of interest," and "contiguity of com-munity lines" in the reap-portionment criterial what legislative reapportion-ment is all about in legislators' eyes is the preservation of as many incumbents as possible.

Gov. Reagan said last week that he thinks it is a clear conflict of interest for the Legislature to reappor-tion itself, since a politi-cian's obvious first interest is in prolonging his career.

that Democrats are appealing. They are telling Individual Republicans Streets to Pine Avenue.

SEN. DEUKMEJIAN Extended District Secn

that lines can be drawn in such a way that their new district will have enough Republican voters to virtually assure their reelection, if a commitment to vote for the bill and another to vote for a veto override is given.

The Republicans are being told that if they do not make a commitment, their districts may be sacrificed either by placing the boundary lines so that large numbers of Democrats are included or placing the line so that the incum-bent's residence is no longer in the district.

The Democrats have some flexibility this year that they didn't have in 1971, because there are a number of incumbents who have already indicated they will not be candidates fo re-election.

Those do not number, at least publicly, Bee, Foran, and Johnson, who say they have not yet decided what they will do in 1974.

BUT MONAGAN and Bagley have already announced that this Assembley term will be their last. Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, has stated he will run for governor in 1974. Walter Karabian of Monterey Park is believed eyeing the offices of attorney general or secret-ary of state, and Charles Warren of Los Angeles is talking about putting together a campaign for controller.

In the Senate, George Moscone of San Francisco has announced his intention to seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and if he does then he, like Moretti, Karabian, and Warren, will have to give up his legislative seat.

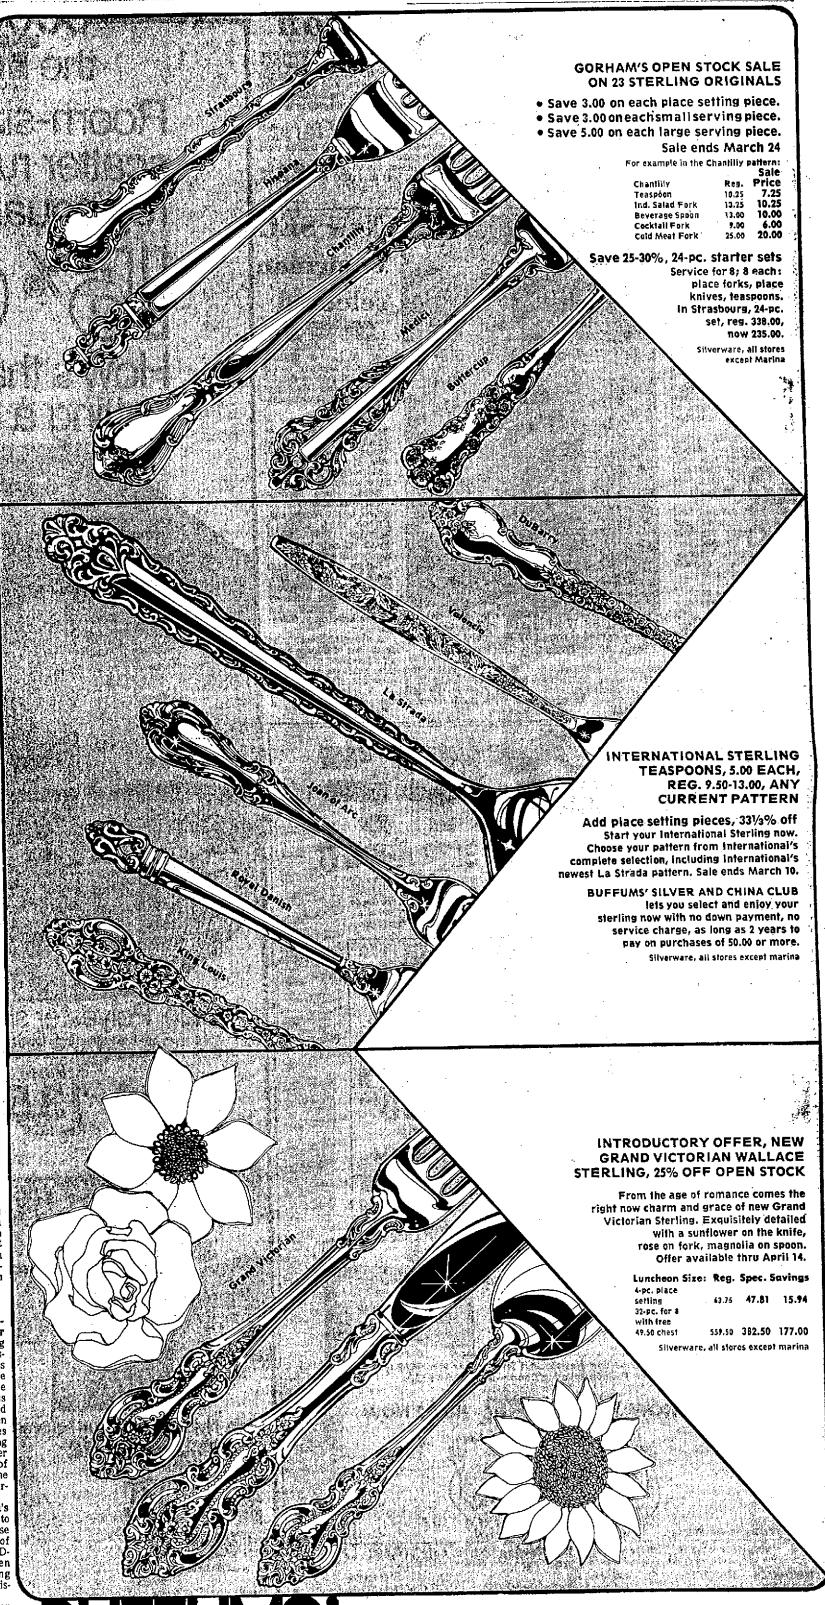

While some Republican leaders say that their. Assembly position is so bad at the moment that they might as well let the court handle reapportionment "because it is mathemati-cally impossible for lines to be drawn without us picking up a few seats, which is all that the Democrats are offering," Democrats treat the threat as meaningless.

"IF THE COURT draws the lines," Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, said, "It Francisco, said, "It is not going to pay attention to incumbency. We are telling individuals that we can help them get re-elected.

"And we can, if they cooperate." The Democratic Assembly plan makes a number of changes in the Long Beach area. Bond's district, like Deukmejian's Senate district, would be extended into Orange County. He would bypass Huntington Harbour and add the area around Golden West College, which does not please him, but in Long Beach he would surrender a Democratic part of Lakewood and pick up the heavily Republican Vir-ginia Country Club area.

Democrat Mike Cullen's district would move to Redondo, but he would lose about one-third of Lakewood to Ken Cory, D-Garden Grove, Cullen would retain the Long Beach harbor in his district. Vincent Thomas, D-San IT IS TO that self-interest Pedro, would pick up a section of Long Beach between Seventh and Anaheim

EO hit as Marxist notion

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Howard Phillips, chosen by President Nixon to oversee the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, said Saturday that the federal antipoverty agency was founded on "a Marxist

Phillips, 32, named acting director to succeed outgoing OEO Director Phillp Sanchez, said the war on outgoing OEO Director Philip Sanchez, said the war on poverty program was "conceptually flawed" and had "defended the wrong values" from its beginning. "It's based on the wrong notion that the poor should be treated as a class apart," Phillips said in an interview. "That's a Marxist notion."

He said OEO "has not only failed to help the poor, but we've done positive harm."

Nixon's proposed budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year would abolish OEO's nearly 2,000-employe headquarters on the White House staff, scatter its functions among other government agencies, and end its primary social welfare grant program, community action, by leaving continued financing to the discretion of local OEO was the flagship agency of the Johnson administration's "Great Society." Of its $676.1 million budget for the current fiscal year, $285.3 million went to community action grants.

Phillips' chief criticism, aimed particularly at the legal services program, was that OEO had become a vehicle for achieving "political ends."

12 escape from jail; 4 caught

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) - A prison official received a call Saturday from the wife of an inmate who inquired if her husband would soon be released from the city jail. When guards called on her husband they discovered he and 11 others prisoners

Blacks in South gain politically

WASHINGTON - Blacks made a showing" in elections in the 11 states of the South last year, placing 600 blacks in public office, the Voeter Education Project said Saturday.

A report by the project on black political gains said that the greatest advances had been made in Alabama and cited the city of Selma in that state as symbolic in a year of impressive victories.

The report said that in 1985 the city "was the scene of brutal attacks by Alabama state policemen on non-violent black demonstrators who sought to march to Montgomery to petition for the right to vote.'

AT THAT TIME, SELMA, the scene of some of the most violent confrontations of the civil rights movement, had no black elected officials. In the 1972 elections half of the 10 city council seats were won by blacks, as the black registration rose from 2.3 per cent of those eligible in 1965 to 67 per cent.

One-hundred-seventeen blacks were elected in Alabama, all to local offices. These included mayors in the interracial towns of Prichard, Union town, and Brighton, as well as nearly all-black Tuskegee.

The VEP is a nonprofit organization that conducts voter registration and education programs in the South. The report was made available here, as well as in Atlanta where the project is based.

THE REPORT CITED AS OF special significance the election black members of Congress from Georgia and Texas, the first time the South has sent blacks to Weshington in modern times. Washington in modern times.

The project also noted that blacks were elected for the first time to the Arkansas General Assembly, the last Southern statehouse without black representation, and blacks were elected to offices for the first time to the city councils of Brunswick, Ga., Natchez, Miss., and Seguin, Texas, and to the Orange County, N.C., board of supervisors.

Commenting on the gains made by blacks, John Lewis, VEP executive director, remarked:

"THE NUMBER OF BLACKS elected to public office in 1972 reflects the spiraling trend which yet has far to go before it reaches its peak. This number is impressive, but it is not the only barometer of change in the South."

He said further signs of progress were the record number of black delegates to the political conventions, bills sponsored by blacks on prison reform in Louisiana

LOUISIANA — A total of 87 positions included eight state representatives, 30 school board members, 29 police jurors, 10 justices of the peace, five constants of the peace, five constants of the peace of the court of the peace of the peace of the constants of the peace of the p bles, three city council members, one appeals court judge and a marshal.

MISSISSIPPI — Major elections were held in 1971. Nevertheless, blacks won 27 seats last year. They were 15 election commissioners, eight school board members, two aldermen and two county supervisors.

NORTH CAROLINA — Twenty-four blacks elected, 15 to school boards, five to county commissions, three as state representatives and one district judge.

SOUTH CAROLINA — Of 59 blacks elected, four were state representatives, 17 city council members, 16 school board members, seven county council members, seven magistrates, four mayors, two county commisioners, and a coroner and a county director.

TENNESSEE — Thirty-seven elected: one state senator, seven state representatives, 15 magistrates, nine justices of the peace, two to school boards, and one constable, one city council member and a circuit

TEXAS - Forty-six, including a congresswoman, 21 school board members, 11 city council members, eight state representatives, four aldermen and a coun-

VIRGINIA - Twenty were elected, 17 to city councils, two as county supervisors and one to a county board. Included in these council elections were three blacks who will serve as mayors of Charlottesville, Clifton Forge and Chesapeake, and as vice mayor of Lynchburg.

"We have only scratched the surface, both in terms of the potential of minority voters yet to be registered and the relatively small number of black elected offined the relatively small number of black elected offined the relatively small number of black elected of the property of the prop cials," remarked Harry Huge, president of VEP. "But in another sense the progress we have made has brought about many changes in the Southern region."

You've now been informed by Anthony Tripi, county hospital publie information officer, of the various health career training programs the department offers and put in touch with the persons in charge of the programs you're interested in. There is no current list of all the training programs the department offers but persons interested may write Tripi who promised to get the information for them. Among training programs offered are those for nurses, nursing assistants, coronary care nurse specialists, physicians' in emergency medicine, physical therapists, inhalation therapists, occupational therapists, orthopedic assistants, autopsy technicians, surgical technicians, pulmonary function technicians and dental hygienists. All of the programs require applicants to have some background in medicine or science. Some of them offer on-the-job training where students are paid while they learn. Interested per-sons can write to the Public Information Officer, Room 1633, Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center, 1200 N. State St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90033. They should also check with their state university and community college to see what health career programs they offer.

Steeplejag was organized by Mike Duffy, the rhythm guitar player, two years ago, but there have been extensive personnel changes and the present slx members have been playing together for five months. In addition to Duffy, the group members are Steve Rodriquez, lead singer, Mark Yokam, lead guitar, Chris Curtis, drums, Bill Mason, organ and piano, and Mike Bram, bass guitar. The group currently is playing mostly one-night stands "anywhere and everywhere." Contact them at their studio, 202 Prespect Ave., to find out where they will be playing Cranston's Senate seat, and gain control of the Legislature.

Chief attraction at Saturday's closing session was the unprogrammed presences of putative contenders for the Republican gubernatorial nomination to succeed Reagan.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, former HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch and Controller Houston I. Flournoy postured humbly and posedwillinglyfor delegates and TV cameras.

In one such four-handed game under the lights, Reinecke said the polls weren't the last word in decid-ing whether to make the race, that one must "feel the pulse of the peo-ple, the party leadership and the finance people — and the air will clear in a relatively short time."

Finch agreed and noted there was "an abundance of talent" avail-able for the Reagan niche and with 'all of us reasonably bright people, the chore of grappling with the big decision could be handled by all. He opined that the final test might turn out to be the man's "visceral" feeling about his chances.

Flournoy also agreed that a variety of measurements would figure in decisions on whether to run.

Reinecke added that the speculation might just as well include the U.S. Senate and "a whole fleet of constitutional offices" up in 1974.

Younger offered that a contested GOP primary is not the worst thing.

that could happen to the party in 1974 because the "mutual respect" among the candidates would pre-

Reinecke agreed that "all four of us are good friends" and he said he is confident all candidates would unite behind the primary winner.

According to Finch's hunch, Gov. Reagan will not be a candidate for either the governorship (which he already has dismissed) or for the Senate seat now held by Cranston.

Cranston, in an interview with an I.P-T reporter, expressed the same sentiment. "Why would he want to take the risk?" Cranston asked.

Chairman Bush, the 48-year-old immediate past ambassador to the United Nations, despite his protesta-tions of neutrality in the 1976 presi-dential sweepstakes, handed Gov. Reagan a stunning kudo if Reagan, as widely rumored among state party principals here, has his eye on the White House.

Nobody in the Republican Party, said Bush, "at any level, has con-tributed more to the party's growth than Gov. Reagan."

Commenting to newsmen on a purported wish by Nixon that his former treasury secretary, John Con-nally, Texas Democrat, switch registration to become a GOP presiden-tial candidate in 1976, Bush said he would like Connally to change, adding, "the party needs people like him."

Rush refused comment on the Watergate trials of Republicans accused of electronic bugging of Democratic National Headquarters, but expressed his distaste with "any connotations of spying or grubbi-ness" in the conduct of the national GOP committee.

AMC finds 'gremlin,' recalls 270,815 cars

The American Motors Corporation confirmed Saturday that it is recalling the 270,815 cars built at the American plant at Kenosha, Wis., between Nov. 1, 1971, and Nov. 30, 1972, because the brakes on some of them could suddenly fail, a spokesman

He said the recalled cars in-cluded Gremlin, Hornet, Javelin, Matador, and Ambassador models.

The spokesman said the brake pedal might be attached with the wrong kind of fastener. If the wrong kind of nut was used, it could work loose and the brake pedal could come apart, the spokesman said, adding that in this event a driver suddenly would lose his hydraulic brake system.

Nader accuses U.S. of 'rigging' Corvair tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Ralph Nader Saturday accused govern-ment engineers of "rigging" road tests to disprove his claim that General Motors' Corvair was dangerously unstable.

in a long-running controversy over the safety of the rear-engine compact car, Nader charged that the National Highway Traffic Safe-ty Administration's engineers withheld "or suppressed data" on 1960-1963 Corvairs to protect GM.

Responding to Nader's claim, a spokesman for the agency said: Our report stands on its own feet. If Nader wants to challenge it, let him take it to the courts."

General Motors, which stopped manufacturing the car in 1969, said it had no immediate comment on the Nader charge. In a letter to Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, chairmen of the Senate Commerce Committee, D-Wash., Nader urged Congres to investi-gate the safety agency, terming it 'a national disgrace" that improper tests were conducted on the

The controversy over the Corvair was triggered by a book Nader wrote in 1964, titled "Unsafe at Any Speed." Nader claimed the Corvair was prone to turnover on sharp turns.

GM denied the charges, contending that the Corvair was not any more unstable than any other small, rear-engine car.

At Nader's request, the Transportation Department agreed to conduct an investigation of the Corvair. In July, 1972, the government announced that it found the Corvair was not basically unstable, but did require the driver to exercise some steering precautions in making sharp turns.

Congress-President power clash growing

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (A) - The 93rd Congress, in session for a month now, has been trying to stand up to the President and show it really is a co-equal branch of the govern-

This has been most evident in its efforts to challenge President Nixon's cuts in programs for which, Congress has appropriated duced to curb the President's warmaking powers and to prevent U.S. military forces from being sent into action again in Indochina without the consent of Congress.

The struggle for power between the legislative and executive branches could lead to a head-on collision, but so far it has been mostly a battle of words. At the beginning of the new session, many members returned feeling both incensed and frustrat-ed by the lack of a Vietnam peace agreement and the way Nixon had resumed the bombing of the North.

WHILE THIS has faded or been cease-fire, the release of American prisoners and the withdrawal of U.S. troops, the controversy over control of the purse still is build-

The local point is Nixon's impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress. This is a presidential practice dating back to Thomas Jefferson, but Nixon's critics charge he has carried it to a greater extreme than any of his pre-

If it's raining weather man right again

A well developed storm off the coast of central California pushed rain into the Southland basin Saturday, washing away smog and sending weekend shoppers scurrying for cover.

Downtown Long Beach was awash in .36 inches of rain by early afternoon while the temperature coasted along at a pleasant 60. Forecasters promised more precipitation today with a good chance it will continue through tonight. Monday will probably be as murky, forecasters said.

Precipitation had been center-ed over Southern California early Saturday but is now more evenly dispersed over the state as well as Nevada and Arizona. Southland forecasts predict clouds all day with occasional rain. High today will be about 63, low 53.

Much the same weather will be found in the mountains. Snow is above 5,500 feet with local gusty winds. Highs today 42 to 46, lows tonight 25 to 32. In the interior and desert regions, look for clouds through this morning with a few widely scattered showers. Highs in the high deserts 48 to 56, lows 35 to 42. Highs in the low desert 65 to 70,

Though rain is more scattered inland, the front created winds which the highway patrol said was responsible for closing a 30-mile stretch of Interstate 5 Saturday about 16 miles west of Bakersfield. A severe dust and sand storm reduced visibility to zero as winds clocked at 40 miles an hour blew clouds of sand and dust across the freeway. Some of the clouds were reported to be 400 feet

Nixon has said Congress represents special interests and acts irresponsibility on appropriations. He has vowed to hold down spending to prevent higher prices and

He maintained at a news conference last week that his constitu-tional power to impound funds is absolutely clear.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D.N.C., chief sponsor of a bill to prevent impoundment of funds for more than 60 dates without the than 60 days without the approval of the Senate and the House, responded that not a single syllable in the Constitution supports the President's position.

Senate hearings on Ervin's bill new are in progress and have brought complaints not only that Nixon is usurping Congress' power of the purse but also is cutting spending in the wrong places.

MANY OF the cuts have been in long-established social programs and have drawn heated protests from liberal Democrats. Farm state legislators also have been aroused over agricultural programs hit by the holddown on spending.

The House Agriculture Committee has approved, 28-6, a bill to force the spending of $225 million appropriated for the Rural Environmental Assistance program, which Nixon ordered terminated.

The Senate also appears likely to vote next week on Caspar W. Weinberger's nomination to be secretary of health, education and welfare. Some Democrats have insisted that it be held up until they could question him in detail about Nixon's budget.

The Senate took one step in defi-ance of Nixon Thursday, passing by a 67-14 vote a $593 million rivers and harbors authorization bill that the President vetoed last

At the hearings on Ervin's impoundment bill, some witnesses urged Congress not to back away from a constitutional showdown with the executive branch.

Ervin, however, said he hoped for a cooperative effort to put the government's financial house in order. He said his bill would give the President a chance to share with Congress responsibility for spnding cuts.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said he thought a lot of the fracas could have been avoided if the key mem-bers of Congress had been consulted and advised in advance of imspending cuts.

Everyone seemed to agree that Congress will have to reform its own procedures for acting on appropriations if it is going to its power of effectively. So far little has been done in that direction.

MAJ. GEN. JOHN MURRAY U.S. Saigon Defense Attache

Gen. Murray assigned to top Viet post

WASHINGTON ID — Army Maj. Gen. John Murray, director of logistics for the U.S. Command in Saigon, was named Saturday to take over the top U.S. military post in Vietnam after the withdrawal of victually all American troops is completed, the State Department announced.

Murray, 54, a native of Clifton, N.J., will serve as the defense attache in the American Embassy in Salgon, a spokesman said.

Gen. Frederick Weyand, commander of the U.S. Military Assistance Command Vietnam (MACV), presently the senior American military officer in Saigon and has filled the role of defense attache along with his other duties.

WEYAND is to be relieved when the U.S. Command is phased out at the end of the 60 day withdrawal period that began a week ago. The command is now concerning itself principally with the withdrawal of more than 21,000 U.S. servicemen still in Vietnam.

Under terms of the peace agreement with North Vietnam signed Jan. 27, the United States is required to withdraw all its forces: But Defense Department spokesmen said a relatively small staff would stay behind to serve under the embassy's defense attache.

PWs' return details aired

Talks on Europe troop cuts stall

By K.C. THALER

VIENNA (UPI) - The Soviet Union has hardened its position, putting a new question mark Saturday over the start of preparations for East-West talks on troop reductions in Europe.

American officials said a settlement of the differences between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Warsaw Pact on the composition and scope of the mutual balanced force reduction (MBFR) conference was "improbable" during the weekend. Thursday, by contrast, they described the prospects as "encouraging."

The hardening emerged after meetings between the American and Soviet delegates Friday evening and consultations between other NATO and Warsaw Pact emissaries.

NO details of these talks were disclosed but conference sources frankly feared the much delayed MBFR talks were unlikely to open for a few more days.

Delegates were said to be consulting their governments over the weekend for new instructions in view of the switch by the Russians, who in earlier informal exchanges with Western delegates had shown a "flexible" line.

Moscow was said to have reverted to its demand that neutral nations, as well as Western and Communist states, be allowed to take part in the conference in a free-for-all type parley. They left vague whether they want the neutrals as full participants or as observers.

NATO countries stood firm in their opposition to expanding the MBFR talks because they said the conference then would be unwork-

Top Russians demoted over '72 crop failure

By HEDRICK SMITH New York Times Service

MOSCOW — A long expected shakeup of high Soviet officials in the wake of the disastrous 1972 agricultural year was disclosed

Tass, the Soviet press agency, reported that Vladimir Matskevich, the agriculture minister, had been "relieved" by the Supreme Soviet from his post and given another appointment. It did not disclose his new job.

It also reported that Dmitri
Polyansky had been reduced from first deputy premier, a post that gave him a seat in the ruling Politburo and put him in contention as a possible successor to Premier Alexsei Kosygin, to agriculture minister. This is a much lesser position and does not normally carry Polithuro membership.

SUCH high-level demotions have been extremely unusual in recent years and underscore both the regime's acute embarrassment over the agricultural failures and the serious problems that these failures have credited for the economy as a whole, including the

Because the grain harvest of 168 million metric tons fell more than 20 million metric tons short of targets, Moscow had to buy almost $2 billion worth of foreign grain. Moreover very light snow cover in most of European Russia the Crimea and the Ukraine has once again exposed this winter's grain crop to frost damage, Western farm experts have reported.

The first hint that the leadership had decided to take public action; against high officials for agricultural mismanagement was the disclosure in Pravda two days ago that Secreti Sharehave, abarman that Sergei Shevchenko, chairman, of the Russian Republic's of the Russian Republic's conglomerate for selling farm equipment and supplies, had been fired for "violating state disci-

Tass reports new Molnia 1 Television satellite orbited

MOSCOW (UPI) - The Soviet Union put into orbit Saturday a new Molnia 1 communications satellite to help send telephone, telegraph and television signals to remote areas of the country.

The first of the Molina series went into orbit in 1985.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the satellite would help relay television programs to points of the "Orbita" network in the extreme north, Siberia, the Far East and Central, Asia.

The Orbita network has about a dozen receiving stations to serve these areas. The satellite also will relay telephone and telegraph service, the agency said.

Tass said the satellite was placed in a highly elliptical orbit, with an apogee of 23.2 miles in the Northern Hemisphere and a perigee of 282 miles in the Southern Hemisphere. The inclination is 65 degrees and each orbit takes 11 hours and 43 minutes, Tass said.

Renewed violence turns Belfast into 'city at war'

An army spokesman said troops logged 11 shooting incidents in 45 minute period after mid-night. About 60 shots were fired at soldiers but there were no casualties to troops, the spokesmen British troops came under fire in another Catholic area of Belfast. The new upsurge of violence came after a period of near paule in the city center as tens of thou-sands fied to escape a threatened bomb and gasoline explosion that was averted by British explosives experts.

The gunnien firing from a speeding automobile in Belfast's Falls Road left nine men bleeding on the sidewalk, three of them critically injured.

In East Belfast, rioters hijacked four panel trucks carrying newspapers and set fire to at least one of them. Guerrilla opened up, meanwhile, on British troops investigating a suspected bomb in a car in the Falls Road

The soldiers escaped injury, but the army said a 15-year-old boy standing nearby was hit in the arm by the guimen's bullets. "Belfast is turning into a city at war," an official spokesman said.

The gunmen are killing each other off and the bystanders are going down like flies.

Downtown Belfast was virtually deserted after guerrillas hijacked a huge tanker carrying 4,000 gal-lons of gasoline and left it parked with a bomb in the driver's cabin.

But the bomb, a fivepound device wrapped in rubber sheet and set to trigger the gasoline, was defused by the British

The city came to a standstill for hours after stores, taverns, restaurants and offices were cleared. The army laid down hundreds of tons of wet sand to prevent any spread of blazing gaso-

Earlier Saturday, a 100-cound bomb wrecked the Wellington Park Hotel in Belfast. The guerrillas gave a warning and no

Security forces believed the mob was angry that the army had detained three Protestants for questioning in connection with a grenade attack Thursday on a workers' bus in which one Catholic

The new plan is believed to provide for the establishment of a Council of Ireland.

The Protestant dominated Belfast parliament, known as Stormont, has suspended and seems unlikely ever to be restored in its old form.

The Catholic minority will be given a guaranteed role in the management of local affairs through the introduction of a system of proportion-al representation. Thus a city or town or village with a predominantly Catholic population will come under Catholic management.

The disputed border issue, meaning the divid-ing line between north and south Ireland; is hopefully being taken out of workaday politics. This is being done by putting it to the test of a series of plebiscites, divorced from normal elections. The first is due March 8. Perhaps most important of all, England's prime thinks he has won Irish prime minister, Jack Lynch's cooperation in the sector of security. The southern Irish leader lately has cracked down in IRA leaders in his territo-

minister Edward Heath

On this point, though, Heath has had a setback. Lynch's men think they have uncovered a big British spy operation in and around Dublin. A Briton already is on trial under the Official Secrets Act. London has been snubbed in its attempt to send an observer to his trial. This has angered Heath. But for now he can do little about it.

'Hey, sarge baby'

There really is a new Army

By JOHN T. WHEELER AP Newfeatures Writer

FORT LEWIS, Wash. Despite written guarantees and recruiters' hoopla, the new privates of the U.S. Army are still a "Like there really is a new Army," said one pri-vate as he passed the beer machine in his mess hall. Meeting a senior NCO, he called out, "Hey, sarge

Outside an aging station wagon passed, painted in its entirety with stars and stripes except for very prominent peace symbols. No one seemed to think the sight worthy of com-

It was 4:30 in the afternoon, close-up-shop time in the new Army. Many young men were headed for their barracks to chánge into mod clothes for a night in town. All night in town for some, at their shared pads done in psychedelic limes and purples and reds and where the pungent scent of burning marijuana is not unknown.

And no sweat about reveille tomorrow. That predawn tradition was buried long ago by the Pentagon. Show up in time for duty hours at 0730, the sergeant said.

VETERANS, especially NCOs, sometimes grit their teeth when they talk about what has happened to their service, once typicial by accomplising styletics. fied by paternalism, strict regimentation and unquestioning obedience to the "Green Machine" no matter how pointless some routines might

But it's a new world

"Most of the firing you hear around bases now is the sound of the Army's sacred cows being shot in the head," a beribboned colonel said, only half in humor.

The new Army was the logical outgrowth, or bas-tard child, depending on viewpoints, of President Nixon's order to turn the service into an all volun-teer force from trigger pullers and cooks to missileers and computer technicians.

As the word filtered down from the secretary of the Army's office, many professionals builed their shoulders and prepared for the worst.
In today's Army, men can volunteer for a specific post and specific job with basic training at whichever one of six camps they choose. If the Army breaks the contract, which is written, the man can choose to get out. Starting salaries are $307.02 a month, plus room and board.

LIFE IS AS hassle free as the Army says it can devise and still build an effective, disciplined fighting machine. Not only is reveille out, but so is KP and the need for passes to town. Com manders are under orders to keep duty hours as close to a 40-hour, fiveday week as possible. Those who volunteer for combat arms jobs, riflemen, tankers and the like, qualify for a $1,500 honus (minus $250 in federal taxes) once they complete their training. Everyone from generals down are under orders to respect the individuality of the bottom ranks and play close attention to his legitimate needs. Senseless formations and inspections are out. Discipline, however, is still very much in. And so is education. GIs on three-year tours now can get up two to years of college credits in formal classes, many during duty hours.

The Army believes with these inducements it can compete with private industry for the youth of the nation. Recruiting so far tends to prove the Army correct.

As Army chief of staff, Gen. William C. West-moreland privately opposed the move, Pentagon sources have said. He worried that without the draft the Army would be too black and too short of brain power. He reportedly foresaw impossible racial tensions and a fighting force that could not operate in the compulerized battlefields of the fu-ture. Old timers' fears were a little simpler. They foresaw rifle com-panies being filled with long haired civilian drop-outs, antagonistic to any system and often strung out on drugs.

WHAT MANY of the old timers did not forsee in the early stages was the thorough overhaul that is still under way to make the Army attractive to America's young, When it became apparent, the fears of many rose.
"We had to turn the Army around to meet the wolunteers, not vice versa," said Maj. Gen. William B, Fulton, the commanding general at Fort Lewis, Fulton promi-nently displays in his office a sign that proclaims, "The seven last words of the Army." Below is a cross with the legend, "We never did it that way

When the VOLAR, or volunteer Army, pilot programs began in 1971, doubting professionals believed their worst fears were being borne out. Traditional basic training was "humanized" to the point that drill sergeants were not allowed in train-ee barracks at night. Beer was available, drill hours were short and they in-cluded little of the rock 'em, sock 'em train-ing that the Army and all services tradition-ally have considered absolutely necessary. The old idea was that a man had to be dehumanized to the point that his civilian identity was stripped away and then the service could set to work building an effective fighting man.

To everyone's surprise, the recruits didn't much like their training. In a confidential survey they told the Army they wanted it rougher, "more challenging," that better and lenging," that better and stronger leadership was needed and that they didn't feel trained well enough to be good Army men or to fight a war.

TODAY'S TRAINING is what the Army calls a medium. Recruits harder traintrain-indlyidbut their challenged. The Pentagon says it is producing the quality of men needed. More than one NCO said he would want no part of the new Rodneys (from the slang term, Rodney Recruit), in case a new shooting war breaks out. Sgt. Vonceal Williams, a Vielnam veteran who has been with the Army's basic training program at Fort Ord since the inception of the volunteer Army program, spoke for many in the Army when he said, "Under the present training I would not want to go into company to the bat with these men unless they get more and tougher training than they get now. A tough basic training course tests shows him and others what he's got. I don't want to be with men who get their first real test in combat."

However, some NCOs concede their judgment may be influenced by the new men's salaries - up to three times as much as the veterans got when they were starting out --and the fact that the new men escape much of the drill and denigration the veterans routinely were forced to go through until they became insulated by the number of stripes they

The Pentagon and sen-ior officers in the field say the new Army will be as tough as any the country ever fielded, in case of a new war.

"Look at what the draftees did in Vietnam," said a colonel who watched them as a combat battalion commander on one of Vietnam's most danger-ous fronts. "They didn't like the Army, they hated being in Vietnam, they were antiestablishment and they fought like hell. The dissension and the racial tensions you read about generally were at the rear with bored support troops. In the rice paddies those boys fought fine, just fine."

OFFICIALS WHO must

Several said they think those coming of age to volunteer today are a new breed far removed from the Age of Protest which fed its young into the Viet-nam era Army, "Respon-sible," "responsive," "smarter," "they've got it together" are some of the words and phrases these men use to describe the new privates. What's more, they say, the entire mental attitude of a man who is in the Army by choice rather than national lottery is a far cry from the GI of the late '60s and early '70s.

Aside from far better pay and far more reasonable duty hours, the really big change in the Army is what one officer called "dehassleization." Reveille went because these really were because these really were because these really were property. cause there really was no reason to get up hours be-fore work began just because that's the way armies always did it.

Officers and NCOs are under orders to chop away at another time honored tradition: hurry up and wait. Rigidity for its own sake theoretically is finished. Two hour formations in the rain while the first sergent twiddles his thumbs over coffee can lead to reprimands, then censure and even broken careers.

With the Army cutting back its strength by one third, only those who move up will stay. And all are on notice that moving up means how well they get with the program for the new Army.

COL. TOM LYNCH is charged with a nationwide search for volunteers for the 9th Infantry Division, a job he first found odd after a year in Vietnam as a combat battalion commander, but one he attacks with gusto. With under 100 men Lynch operates everything from a "traveling circus" and rock bands to a speakers' bureau to get the new Army's message out to the young.

Of the 8,500 men the 9th, which is based here, needed to recruit, Lynch's team has pulled in more than 6,000, including 2,000 who signed up for combatiches

To promote the division, a rock band plays at high schools, county fairs, anywhere the young congregate in numbers. His "circus" is a convoy of trucks and vans which tours the hinterland with displays and experts to give a clear idea of what various Army specialists do and what the training can mean when the men return to civilian life.

Recruiters come down hard on what the 9th Divithe job — broad educa-tional opportunities in-cluding college graduate courses; skiing, shooting the rapids on wild rivers, hunting mountain climb hunting, mountain climbing, sailing and some of the world's best sport fishing.

Lynch has a picture on an office wall showing Marlon Brando in the movie, "The Godfather," with the caption: "Make him a deal we can keep. If we blow our credibility with these kids, the Army's going down the tube." The last is an earthy reference to shell easings ranned into the ground when in the field and used as relief tubes.

THE POTENTIAL combat role of the Army is muted in literature, dis-plays and recruiter hoop-la. "You can't sell the bayonet today. We can't just wave the flag and play the Star Spangled Banner and expect the kids to come running. Patriotism ranks about seventh on motivation among the new recruits. These guys want to know what's in it for them," says Lynch.
Although no one wanted to say so from Pentagon to the field, the new Army is recrniting with a phi-losophy that generally re-verses President Kenne-1961 inauguration call of: "... ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country . . .

But recruiters report patriotism is still there, and perhaps is stronger than in the recent past. The Pentagon reports that recruiters are finding a significant drop in antimilitarism across the country, particularly in the rural states and areas.

ALTHOUGH overall re-cruiting is running slight-ly ahead of projections, problems have appeared. The $1,500 bonus for those signing up for combat jobs may be raised in the future if more men do not choose these assignments. Lower level jobs and computer specialists also lag. The whole recruiting picture also could change significantly for the worse with the end of the draft or should unemployment decrease further, Pentagon officials say.

One of the strongest, and officials say healthiest, reasons for signing up in the new Army is education, both that offered in training for a particular Army speciality such as medic, mechanic or telephone repairmen and formal educational courses offered, many during duty hours, at instant campuses on Army bases.

At Fort Lewis, Col. Sinclair Meiner has set up Old Reliable University, the name deriving from the 9th Division's nickname. He estimates some 25 per cent of the post, which ultimately will count upwards of 20,000 men, will sign up for some of the 250 different courses that include several in the college graduate field. Local colleges and junior colleges are cooperating in the program and in many cases have waived such requirements as residency, to accommodate the Army's program. Col. Melner says ambitious GIs can win up to two full years of college credits during a three-year hitch. "one of our problems is

Bond set for sailor accused in 4 killings

WASHINGTON (UPI) ---A judge Saturday set bond at $150,000 for an AWOL sailor accused of a crime spree that included four murders, a kidnaping, attempted extortion and the shooting of a deputy sneriff.

Bruce H. Shreeves, 22, originally described by police as a "walking arsenal," was arrested in Washington Friday night after a brief struggle with six FBI agents and five city policemen. The arrest ended a nationwide search for Shreeves, who was listed as a deserter from Patuxent Naval Air Station in Lexington Park, Md.

Police officials recovered a sawed-off .303-caliber British Enfield rifle which they believe to have been used in an executionstyle slaying of three men Tuesday in a home in Spencerville, Md., and the murder of a contractor in the same area two days earlier. The arrest was made on an anonymous tip from a telephone caller, police said.

Authorities in suburban Montgomery County, Md., said extradition proceedings will begin shortly to move Shreeves from Washington into their juris-

By BUCK LANIER

Snoopy can do a better job now. The San Diego Naval Undersea Center's highly useful underwater television has improved its portability and capability

First, he has a new, sturdier lightweight frame made of specially treated aluminum, cutting length and height by six inches. His size is four feet long and 15 inches high now.

The small size and weight'(50 pounds) allows Snoopy to be operated eas-ily from small surface ships or paced with his con-trols for airlift anywhere in mounted in his control con-sole. Depth is controlled by varying the buoyancy or displacement.

Capabilities were increased by adding a grabber, compass and automatic depth control.

The new class permits Snoopy to pick up small objects or place instruments on the ocean floor to depths of 100 feet.

Powered by two joystick-controlled hydraulic motors providing 12 pounds of thrust each, Snoopy ravels at about a 2 mile an hour top speed.
A small hydraulic piston, adjusted to the length of the buoyancy cylinder, allows the vehicle to assume positive, negative or neutral buoyancy to rise, submerge or remain statio nary as required.

The buoyancy tube eliminates one of the problems tacing undersea exploration by unman-ned vehicles-visibility. When operating near the ocean floor vehicles using vertical thrusters can stir up a considerable amount of silt. The operator has to wait for the silt to clear before he can "see" well enough to continue.

The Center's Advanced Systems Division is planning a second generation Snoopy that will be able to operate at 1,500 feet. It will be made of fiberglass and with a single coaxial tether.

The new Snoopy will be programmed to observe "Consumer Notes" is published as a public service twice weekly in the Independent, Press-Telegram. The digest is prepared by staff reporters with information from various agencies and news sources.

FTC smokescreen

The Federal Trade Commission has recommended that Congress redefine the term "cigarette" as it is used in the Federal law which prohibits cigarette ads on radio and TV.

The new definition is aimed at classifying products now designated as "small cigars." If enacted, the new law would require the makers of the small cigars to post a warning statement on the package much like the ones now included on cigarette packages.

In its report to Congress on Cigarette Labeling and Advertising, the FTC recommended the definition of cigarette be altered to include "all rolls of tobacco weighing less than three pounds per thousand." And while this may be difficult to picture in your mind, it would have the effect of prohibiting broadcast advertisements of all tobacco products now designated as small cigars.
Sen. Frank E. Moss; D-Utah, announced earlier this month he would introduce legislation to include little cigars, including those marketed under the Winchester brand, in the year-old Congressional ban on television and radio commercials for cigarettes.

"Winchesters are cigarettes in brown paper," Moss said, and added the present ban was "so hypocritical it is hardly understandable."

Headache remedy

Going to the pharmacy may be the biggest head-ache of the day—especially with the spiraling cost of medications.

The California State Department of Consumer Affairs has begun a new consumer information project with the aim of placing a sign in every pharmacy detailing available services and indicating a willingness to discuss prescription drug fees.

Pharmacies will also have available (later this month) a brochure titled "You and Your Pharmacist."

The pamphlet is free and explains personal medication records, professional consultation and credit service.

The pamphiet, which is also available by writing to the Consumer Affairs-Pharmacy, P.O. Box 310, Sacramento, Calif. 95802, discusses the "big headache"—the expensive cost of medications and how costs can be reduced, as well as the pharmacists' role in health

Pools and budget grief

There are many swimming pool contractors in Southern California—honest and dishonest, the Federal Trade Commission warns.

The FTC suggest consumers follow some rules of thumb before getting ready to make the big plunge by calling the pool company.

—The building of an in-ground swimming pool is a major construction job involving excavation, guniting, electrical and plumbing hookup, steel reinforcement, plastering, coping and decking. A pool usually averages about $4,000 in price and can go much higher depending on the amount of extras and size of the pool you choose.

—When you sign a contract with a pool company, you are entitled to change your mind within a three-day period for any reason. This is a state law. Consumers are also allowed three days by federal law if the pool is purchased on credit and a security interest is -Shop around for the best price and the lowest interest rate. The lowest interest rate also means the lowest annual percentage rate. —Be skeptical of price advertisements on in-ground pools. There are many variables that determine the price. You should pay attention to the final esti-mate given you by the builder—that's the one that —Don't fall victim to high pressure sales tactics and be switched to a higher priced pool.

-Remember also that oral promises don't count-they must appear in writing in the contract.

—Read the guarantee carefully. Many pool guarantee. tees have so many exclusions and limitations that the only thing guaranteed is that the pool won't leak. Decking, plastering and many other items are probably not -Many pool builders subcontract, out most of their work. Make sure the contractor will back up his sub-

State units aim at drink, drugs, VD, tooth decay

Health and Welfare Earl Brian said the strike forces would coordinate existing services

He said the need to im-

"It may come as an initial surprise to learn that chronic, infectious dental disease has affected more people in California than any other disease in the state's history. About 95 per cent of the population is estimated to be affected by tooth decay."

'Animal' shorn to prowl more civilized wilds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - After two years under a hairy, scruffy cover, Joe Samson, 28 — alias "Animal" Joe Sanchez" has doffed his bikers' leathers, submitted to the barber's shears and razor. and become a uniformed policeman again.

"He was getting burned," said Capt. Ernest Raabe. "People were getting catching on to him.

Samson's job was to play a raunchy character nick-named "Animal," who rode a motorcycle trail through San Francisco's rough Tenderloin, associating with bikers, burglars, hookers, bookmakers and drunks.

On Priday he got a haircut under the approving eye of Raabe, and a new assignment in a patrol car in the city's colorful Northern District. "I guess I have to start clean," Samson said as the barber clipped him. "This is going to be like a new life to me. I kind of got used to wearing my hair long—my wife hated my long hair."

Rotation of radial tires different than coventional

DETROIT (UPI) - If your car is equipped with the new radial tires, you should know how to rotate them to get the maximum which manufacturers claim is 40,000 miles.

The larger 1973-model cars are coming equipped with radials as standard equipment and the new fire now accounts for about 10 per cent of the market. There are estimates radials will account for 50 per cent of all tire sales within four years.

Tire buyers already have been warned not to mix radial tires with conventional tires because they give a car different types of traction.

Because the radial tire's fabric or cord beneath the tread runs parallel to the tire's radius, rather than at an angle like conventional tires, a different pattern of rotation is recommended by the rubber manufacturers association.

The traditional crossswitch practice for conventional bias and belted tires continues, but the pattern has been changed.

The RMA recommends that in a four-tire rotation, the front tires are crossswitched to the rear with the rear tires moving straight forward to the front. Previously, the general practice has been to move front tires straight back to the rear with the rear tires cross-switching to the front.

But cross-switching is not recommended for radial ply tires. In a fourtire rotation, the front tires are moved straight back to the rear and the rear tires go straight forward to the front.

If you want to use the spare in rotating, here's the pattern to follow:

To get maximum tire life, the RMA recommends rotating tires at 6.000 to. 8.000 mile intervals.

First large U.S. exhibition of And the second s prison art on display

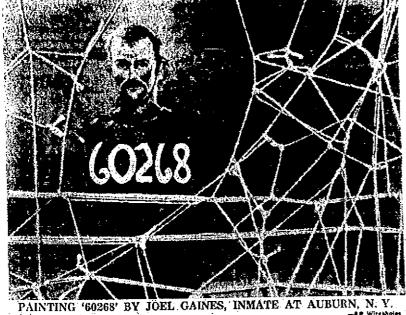

By QQNALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) "From Within," which the Smithsonian Institution calls perhaps the first large exhibition of prison art ever shown at a major American museum, went on public view two days ago.

The show at the National Collection of Fine Arts, a branch of the Smithsonlan, consists of paintings, drawings and other works by 21 inmates of the maximum security correctional institution at Auburn, N.Y.

It will travel later to Syracuse, N.Y., New York City, Baltimore, Tulsa, Houstin and Los Angeles.

Prosecution rests in ex-Gov. Kerner trial

By F. FICHARD CICCONE

CHICAGO (AP) - The trial of Otto Kerner enters a new phase this week with the former Illinois governor expected to take the stand to answer charges he manipulated horse racing in the state during his two terms as its chiefexecutive.

During the first month of the trial, Kerner, 64, on leave-from his post as a member of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, has reacted more like a judge than a defendant.

TRIMLY tailored, he rarely moves from his scated position at the long mahogany defense table in the 25th floor courtroom of the Federal Building. He seldom speaks, even in whispers, to his lawyers or Theofore J. Isaccs, his codefendant and long time friend.

Kerner's attitude matches the mood of the trial. It was expected that the indictment of a federal judge and former governor would create a tense court drama, but with few exceptions, the testimony of accountants and Internal Revenue Agents about the stacks of documents produced as evidence has been tedious.

Kerner often stares at the jury of seven women and five men, and they repeatedly giance toward the handsome, graying man charged with conspinacy, fraud, bribery, income tax evasion and perjury. The prosecution rested its case Friday. At the nub of its case is the purchase by Kerner and Isaacs of stock in Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises

THE GOVERNMENT contends they bought the stock in 1966 for $50,000 at a time when it was worth $300,000, which the pro-secution says amounted to bribery. Kerner and Isaacs later sold their racing stock and made more than $100,000 profit each.

The defense contends the stock purchase agreement, made in 1962 and exercised in 1966, represented nothing more than a legal investment for Kerner.

CTE was operated by Marj Everett, the govern-ment's first witness, who testified that she offered stock in 1962 to Kerner and Isaacs.

Color TV, furniture taken by burglars

A color television set and furniture, totally valued at $1,122, were taken from the apartment of Elaine Robinson, 1101 E. 11th St., after burglars forced a window to gain entry, Long Beach police said Saturday.

At issue is who initiated $25,107. The prosecution he stock offer. Mrs. said he should have the stock offer. Mrs. Everett testified she was urged to set aside the stock by William S. Miller, Kerner's appointee as rac-ing board chairman. Miller, in turn, testified Mrs. Everett approached him with the offer and said it had been suggested by MRS. EVERETT also testified that she gave $45,000 to Kerner's campaign and that Miller, as racing chairman, held a "life and death power" over the racing industry." Miller also was indicted

Dec. 15, 1971 with Kerner and Isaacs but the government agreed to dismiss charges against him in exchange for testimony against Kerner.

During five days on the witness stand, Miller, 72, testified that he first met Kerner in 1960 when he was asked by Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago to secure a $150,000 loan for Kerner's campaign for governor.

Miller was appointed racing board chairman by Kerner shortly after Kerner won election in 1960. Kerner was re-elected in 1964 and resigned in March 1968 to accept appointment to the federals appeals branch.

PAUL R. CONNOLLY, Kerner's lawyer, described Miller in his opening statement as "the most man . . . who corrupted Illinois racing . . ."
IRS agents testified that

Kerner listed his CTE investment on his return as "CT Co." and that he abbreviated Chicago Harness Racing, Inc., as "Ch.

Co." The The prosecution con-tends this was an attempt to conceal his racing stock ownership. Thomas Bradley, former chairman of the Illinois Harness Racing Commission, testified that Kerner gave him a direct order to change certain racing dates and that he forced Bradley to resign when he refused to do so.

Bradley's testimony was intended to prove the per-jury charge which stems from Kerner's answers to a federal grand jury in June 1971. Kerner told the panel he never interfered with racing board deci-

THE GOVERNMENT'S last witness, Robert Dyas, an IRS agent, testified Friday that Kerner reported 1966 income of $53,798 and paid tax of $19,170. The government says he should have reported $201,198 and paid

BIOLOGIST BURNEY LE BOEUF "BRANDS" ELEPHANT SEAL'S NOSE

Signed, SEALed and ... Delivered from

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) Battle cries of biting, chest thudding male elephant seals echo above the pounding surf of Ano Nuevo Island.

Max, Harry, George, Nip, Tuck, Spiro and Super Seal are among the 150 giants and once nearly extinct mammals who return each winter to fight for mating rights on the eight-acre rookery.

Losers of the vicious clashes retreat from the island, swim a half mile to the Santa Cruz shoreline and claim a plot of land among an area nicknamed, apropriately, Loser's Beach.

Do the top fighters get most of the ladies?

"Yes they do and it's a very extreme sort of thing," said Burney J. Le Boeuf, a biologist who names each animal and keeps a dossier on their habits and language.

OUT OF about 15 males, the top 4 per cent get 90 per cent of the females, or about 40 apiece, Le Boeuf said. "The other 10 per cent are maybe divided among six other males."

Le Boeuf, an associate professor of psychology and biology at the University of CaliforniaatSanta Cruz, keeps track of who's who among the two- to three-ton and up to 16-foot long male mammals by bleaching names on each one with a paint roller.

"What you do is simply wait until they go to sleep and then sneak up on them and literally mark any-thing you want to on their backs by bleaching them," said Le Boeue. To study individual traits, he also records their vocalization, or language.

"They're animals you can mark and follow for a lifetime," said Le Boeuf. "We're old friends. I've been following these guys for six years."

The biologist dons foul weather gear for the rubber raft ride to his observation post on the island, which was abandoned in 1948 as a Coast

HIS spying begins about Dec. 15, when the males start arriving for the battle rites. The smaller females show up sometime in January after the rookery has been staked out by the strongest bulls.

The females, or cows, give birth to pups within 34 days after arriving and are re-impregnated. About March 15 the entire herd swims away to farm the open sea for 10 months.

One of Le Boeuf's projects is collecting data on the male fighting instincts. Often, it's simply a show of force and sometimes a battle cry will scare away a prospective opponent.

A bull makes the threatening noise by lifting his head back and thrusting his long, flexible snout — called proboscis — into his mouth and blowing. Burps of scraping sound emerge that can be heard up to three miles.

If the vocal threat doesn't frighten a challenger, the bulls take to the water where they can easily maneuver and hattle it out. Fighting consists of hardhitting blows and tusk bites to an opponent's neck and back. The one who retreats FIRST INCKS

"No elephant scal has a park preserve seven ever been known to die in combat," Le Boeuf said of the 4-20 minutes brawls. The loser swims away to nurse the bruises and wait for next year.

Visitors can observe the island's rejected males lolling lazily among sand drifts at Ano Nuevo Point, miles north of Santa Cruz.

miles off the Baja California coast. They were put and last year finally were removed from the endangered species list.

The bulky creatures only move about 3 miles-per-hour on land and are-not normally dangerous, "but they will get aggressive, Le Boeuf said.

Big river road bill up again

WASHINGTON — The Great River Road, a con-troversial legislative proposal to build a 4,000-mile highway on both sides of the Mississippi, has been reintroduced in the new session of Congress.

Rep. John C. Culver, D-Iowa, a former aide to Sen. Edward Kennedy, dropped the bill into the legislative hopper this week with a statement which praised the proposed road for "enhancing the environment."

The Culver bill calls for $60 million to be spent over the next two years: Similar legislation was put into the final version of the 1972 Highway Bill by the House Public Works Committee last year. That bill died in a dispute with the Senate over mass and rapid transit

INHIS statement, Culver said, "I wish to thank the very distinguished chairman of the House Public Works Committee (Rep. John Blatnik, D-Minn.) for sponsoring this bill with me. His guidance and encouragement has been the critical force in holding out hope to us all that this long delayed dream will be realized."

However, Blatnik's office said the congressman was not a sponsor of the bill, although he did sponsor the bill a year ago.

"He has an open mind on this bill. He has not yet made up his mind," a Blat-nik aide said.

The Great River Road proposal was criticized by the Minnesota Environmental Quality Counci Some other environmental groups have also announced opposition.
"The legislation I reintroduce today would, for the first time, provide federal assitance to the 10 states concerned to help in the building and beautifica-tion of the Great River Road — the scenic high-ways that America will build along the shores of the Mississippi — scenic roads stretching from Canada, through Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Louisiana," Culver

At present there are no hard cost figures for the project although figures compiled 20 or more years ago said the project could cost $1.5 billion.

Culver said the Great River Road "is not to become an expressway or super highway designed for heavy commercial traffic and thus deface the essential environmental and aesthetic values..."

However, his bill does not specify limitations on highway construction and it does call for the road to be connected with other federal aid highways."

Maybe life's just too reel-istic

YOU KNOW what our local cry should be?" writes a reader who implores me not to use her name: "It should be 'close our neighborhood theaters if they don't clean up their films." Mrs. S. goes on to say that, during a recent neighborhood showing of "Deliverance" and "McCabe and Mrs. Miller" (both rated "R"), a man in the audience started yelling and screaming horrible obscentites. The whole scene was probably this grand by the windspace the foul triggered by the violence, the foul language, the sex and suspense on the screen," she writes, adding that the berserk viewer had to be forcibly removed from the theater. Why is all this filth and garbage once reserved for stag films being brought to our neighborhood movies?" she asks. "Where are the P-TA'S and the people who should be picketing such movie

WELL, THAT'S a fair question, I guess. But a more significant one is why the American public supports—then complains about—"R" or "X" rated movies? Why are they there? Do they expect "Mary Propries?" An awful lot of blood has washed across the screen since Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway were riddled into human sieves in "Bonnie and Clyde" (1967). Enough four-letter words to cover every men's room wall in the country have found their way into movie scripts since Elizabeth Taylor talked naughty (and won an Oscar) in "Who's Afraid of Virgin-ia Woolf?" And we've seen several miles of naked torses writhing in breathtaking Cinemascope since audiences first witnessed those exposed areas in "Blow-up" and the on-screen, simulated fornication in "I am Curious (Yellow)."

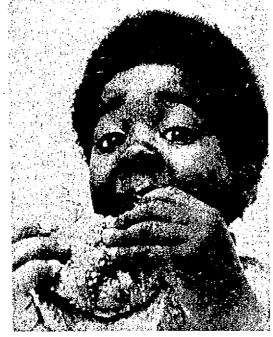

BUT, REMEMBER, those movies didn't play to empty houses. That's for sure. Last houses. That's for sure. Last year's big moneymaker and Academy Award winner, "The French Connection," opened with a man being shot smack in the face. And this year's predicted Oscar winner, "The Godfather," was even more violent. Audiences lined up around city blocks to see both of them. The question is, do people have a fair idea from ads and ratings of what they are going to see? Or is it that, after a steady six-year barrage of explicit sex, profanity and violence. American movie, audiences have become virtually unshockable? Maybe those people who should be outside picketing such movie fare, as Mrs. S. suggests, are inside watching.

BUT NOT ALL movies today are pornographic. I just saw one, "The Poseidon Adventure," that's more of a photographic accomplishment than anything else. What you learn in this one is how to get out of a ship the size of the Queen Mary after it's been turned upside down at sea by an 85 foot tidal wave. Here's how: You find a nice Oscar-winner like Gene Hackman, who takes you and a group of who takes you and a group of soaking wet, grease-smudged movie stars (Ernest Borgnine, Shelley Winters, Red Buttons, etc.) explosions and fire UP to the BOT-TOM of the ship where, when you get there, there's somebody outside with an acetylene torch who rescues you and flies you off to, safety in a helicopter.

MOST OF THE upside right scenes are shot on the Queen Mary (except those on the bridge and in the grand salon). While filming, special effects men had smoke spewing out the stacks (many Long Beach residents called to warn that the ship was on fire) ... they created motion by moving the cameras and violent storm effects with fake wind and fire hoses. But after the tidal wave capsized the ship, those were studio sets (thank heavens!). William Creber, in charge of set decorations at 20th Century-Fox, told me they took still photos of the interior of the Queen Mary from kitchen to engine room to propeller shaft, then turned the pictures upside down and built sets accordingly. Viewers will be interested to know the sets were one of the greatest engineering feats in movie history (built on cranes or lifts to be tilted and submerged in huge tanks of water), that all stars did their own underwater swimming and that Shelley Winters gained 35 pounds for the part. The movie is suspense-packed, you sit on the edge of your scat—all that. But there's no violence or sex. Even Poseidon is decent. He's Greek God of the Sea, you know, and in his original statue, he's totally nude. But his replica in the movie ⊰ is discreetly clothed. In a fig leaf.

The reading room appeared to be a little special, with all of its modern gadgetry and its brightly painted yellow, green and orange interior walls. Still, this could have been just another schoolday at any one of the hundreds of similar ele-mentary schools in Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

With one big difference. Mrs. Bell was working in the classroom as a representative of private enterprise.

She spends at least two days a week in this Hawaiian Gardens classroom helping teach reading to all 180 fourth, fifth and sixth graders in the school.

The whole idea of injecting private enterprise into the public school classroom was popular two or three years ago than it is today. Private companies were talking like they could guarantee to improve public education. Under the flag of "performance contracting" some companies went so far as to take over the entire educational process in selected schools on a test basis. Results were greeted with less

He named his instructional system, which was based on the individual diagnosis of reading problems, The Reading Game.

The University of Southern California, working with the Battelle Ocean-Engineering Facility, has been commissioned with a federal, grant to conduct a study of the problem of ocean surge.

Armed with a complex of network of electronic devices and the $39,730 grant, the researchers will work from six months to two years on the problem of surging.

An array of pressure-sensitive devices will be placed on the sea floor inside and outside the harbor, said Gary Thomas, project engineer for Battelle.

Out of the way of passing boats, these sensors will be monitored at Battelle's research facility on the western tip of Pier J in Long Beach

County to view growth impact Orange

Planning Director Forest S. Dickason will ask the Orange County Board of Supervisors to formulate a population growth policy, then refer it to cities and community groups for dialogue.

He readied five recommendations on population growth considerations and growth impact on Orange County by way of a sum-mary report to be handed to the board Tuesday.

It reminds the public that acceptance of the concept that all growth is good, because it is progress, is no longer valid.

"In its place," Dickason noted, "has emerged a diversity of atti-tudes and opinions being strongly expressed." He said his report is aimed at stimulating "open, honest and productive dialogue on some very important—and controversial--

He suggested that the new Inter-Governmental Council, now being formed, to involve the county supervisors and officials of the county's 26 cities, take the growth problem as a major objective.

Dickason also suggested that the county's Citizens' Direction Finding Commission open hearing on the population growth issue and be ready to make recommendations to the county supervisors.

In addition to the official policies on population growth, Dicka-son will ask the supervisors to adopt a statement of "quality of life goals" for the county, hopefully by next July, and then adopt a population growth policy and formulate a development strategy. If possible, this should precede the determination of the quality of life goal, he said. But a more likely target date is September, he said.

The primary conclusion of the report readied for the supervisors is that the county needs a formula tion. formally-adopted population growth policy to guide its future development, but that it should have the concensus of the several

By itself, he stressed, a growth policy will not ensure effective planning, nor resolve the different interests and points of view about what kind of a place Orange CounIt can, however, be a guide to planning efforts, and "provide a common policy framework within which compromise and agreement can be more easily achieved."

Basically, the summary report includes a consideration of the three decades remaining until the year 2000, but it mentions that the year 2020 will be the "optimum" for Orange County's development.

Under current growth policies, the county's population would be up about 500,000 per year from the present 1.4 million, to a high of 2.9 million by 2000 and 3.9 million by the year 2020. However, under a "modified" growth policy, the growth would be slowed to 2.5 million by 2000, and only 2.9 million by the "optimum" year of 2020.

Smog control chief retires

After long and capable service as Los Angeles County's chief air pollution control officer, Robert Chass is retiring at the end of Chass is weary from his work and from the controversy that has attended it, but he has every reason to be proud as well. If he did not accomplish the miracles some demanded, he achieved far more than anyone in a similar position anywhere else.

THAT WON HIM honor in other places. At home, the problem often overshadowed the accomplishment. As he departs, Chass is entitled to the thanks of his fellow citizens for faithful and dedicated performance in a trying job.

Supervisor James Hayes has proposed that a national — and even international - search be conducted for a successor.

We applaud that suggestion.

THE SEARCH should be a careful one, for the task of administering the Los Angeles County Air Pollution Control District requires a rare combination of qualities if it is to be done well.

The person who holds the job must be a skilled administrator, for he will be in charge of a large and complex county department.

He must understand industrial processes, so he will know what is feasible and what is not. He should also know something about the automobile industry, so he will know what it can be expected to

He should have knowledge of the legislative process, since he will have to work, closely with state legislators and U.S. congressmen and senators. He should Have a fair amount of political savvy, since he will have to work with politicians, at all levels, who are themselves subjected to an assortment of conflicting pressures.

And he should like people. He'll have to let them get under his skin enough to make sure he understands the urgency of the problem and the determination of Southern Californians to lick it. But he can't let them get under his skin to the point where he ends up fighting them and not smog.

Supervisor Baxter Ward has proposed that the search be limited to physicians. This strikes us as a conceivably crippling limi-

WARD PRESUMABLY reasons that a physician would feel the er smog control keenly as a member of a profession that recognizes pollution as a health problem and feels strongly about the subject. Since the solutions to the problem are not medical, however, a physician would enjoy no automatic advantage in arriving at them - either technically or practically as a practical matter,

Even a hospital does not necessarily limit its search for an administrator to physicians, although its problems are more clearly related to medicine than the air pollution control district's are. Indeed, a hospital may deliberately seek a nonphysician administrator. Medical skills may be accompanied by administrative and business skills, but they may not, and there is little in a physician's formal education to develop them.

Finding a physician who has the requisite political, legislative, administrative and leadership skills needed by the county smog control chief would be a hard task

WE SEE NO reason for the county to limit its search to physicians, and we trust it will not, although we see no reason automatically to eliminate physicians from consideration, either. Both the requirements and the search should be broad enough to ensure that the county obtains the best possible successor to Robert Chass.

When it has obtained him, let us hope he can enjoy confidence in his ability, his integrity and his approach.

This should be a time for consolidating the gains made by Chass and for winning new victories for a clean environment. Those victories will not be won if industry and developers insist that the war is over and that everything must go their way from now on. Neither will the victories be won if environmental groups insist on opposing every measure as being too little and every action as being too late.

EXTREMISM in the service of either profit or the environment will ultimately help neither.

We must all breathe the same air and earn our livings while doing it. To make both activities healthy, we need to abandon pointless animosities and inflexible demands. We must join Chass' successor in taking a fresh look at the problems. Then we need to fight our common enemy, smog, h other

Pleasant problem for state

Novelist Herbert Gold once declined an invitation to write a television series after he found out what the producer wanted.

What the producer wanted, he explained to Gold, was story after story about "happy people with

agold couldn't think of any worth writing about. He ought to bein Sacramento today, where the governor and legislature are trying to figure out what to do with an $852 million cash surplus.

IF THEY AREN'T happy people, the governor and legislators are reasonable facsimiles thereof. Their happy problem - and one possible happy solution - are explained in some detail in the column on this page by Bob Schmidt of our Sacramento bureau.

We would add our voice to Schmidt's in urging that the legislature consider using all or part of the surplus to reduce the state debt and to help pay for projects for which the voters have already authorized the state to borrow money. As Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post has suggested, the best way to do this would be to establish a sinking fund and have the state purchase the bonds from itself with no interest charged. This would make it impossible for the bonds to be sold later to finance other projects that would meet the descriptions of the work for which the bonds were authorized.

Post notes that establishment of a sinking fund of $873.7 million would enable the state to save interest costs of $389.5 million.

We would add to the impressive arguments marshaled by Bob Schmidt that the procedure would be fairer than a simple income tax refund. The surplus came from different taxing sources. Handing it all out in income tax refunds would discriminate against poorer persons who pay little or no income tax but are heavily burdened by sales taxes.

If the governor and legislature feel that some of the surplus should be returned to taxpayers' pockets this year, the fairest way to return it might be through delaying the one-cent increase in the sales tax scheduled to take effect in July.

Cullen, Moscone have good idea

SACRAMENTO — Every family would rather have more money than it needs than worry about how to get money to pay for what it needs. The state of California currently finds itself in the unique position of wondering what to do with all its unbudgeted money.

The state is unlike a family in one respect, however. A family with extra money can invest it or can indulge itself in some luxury. The state is not supposed to be in the business of making money, so that while it can invest funds that are awaiting a specific use, it should not be trying to raise more surplus money by investing the surplus money it has on

And, theoretically, at least, the services provided by the state are needed by the people or wanted by the people, and are not luxuries.

SO, WHAT to do with $1.1 billion the state estimates it will have left over when all the 1973-74 bills are spent? Gov. Reagan says he wants to give it back, which at first glance seems to be an appealing idea. Some legislators want to prevent the surplus from developing by delaying the one-cent sales tax increase slated to be imposed June. 1

Others want to use the surplus to bring the funding for public schools or other state services up to a level they feel is

ASSEMBLYMAN ike Cullen of Long Beach and Sen. George Moscone of San Francisco feel the surplus should be used, in part, to reduce the state's debt and save considerable interest money. Moscone also suggests using the surplus instead of borrowing money up to the amounts voters have already authorized.

The Culleu and Moscone proposals might, in the long run, be to the best advantage of the taxpayer.

It costs the state money to collect taxes, and so the money spent collecting the taxes which are returned under the Reagan proposal would have been wasted. In addition, it costs money to return money. If the state simply wrote checks out to every taxpayer, that would be enormously expensive.

More likely, the state would simply permit taxpayers to declare a credit against a future tax obligation. But even that involves a considerable added state expense because of the extra checking of each tax return it entails.

AND WHEN the amount of tax money to be returned (substantially less than $1.1 billion because the state would want to keep some as a reserve and some expen-ditures not now budgeted are certain to be approved by the Legislature and the governor this year and next, is divided among the taxpayers who contributed to the surplus, there is not going to be much for each recipient.

The last time the governor was successful in giving surplus taxes back to the people, the average rebate was less than

So the benefits of the governor's plan are, at least, debatable.

BUT MEANWITHE the state has debts amounting the hundreds of millions of dollars, which it is paying off periodically. With interest, of course.

Government plays a little language game with people. When it wants to borrow money, it says it is "selling bonds" equal to the amount needed. If, for example, it decides to spend $150 million for health science facilities on University of California campuses, and doesn't wish to take the $156 million out of the general fund, it "sells bonds" in that amount. That means, it borrows $156 million.

Bob Schmidt

VIEW FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

The bonds are sold, usually, for 20 or 25-year periods, and the amount of interest paid over that time is frequently equal to the size of the loan itself. When the state sells $156 million worth of bonds, that could cost taxpayers $312 million over a 25-year period.

While this method of doing business did not originate with Gov. Reagan, he is a vigorous proponent of the concept and is deed set a rejust operating government on dead set against operating government on a pay-as-you-go basis.

SPREADING payment over a period of years, he says, means that the people benefiting from the facilities purchased or constructed with the loan are actually paying for it. Why should a texpayer today pay for something not usable until tomorrow? he asks.

There is some logic to that, Rat of there is some logic to that, full of course that approach also denies to tomorrow's taxpayer complete choice in determining how his tax monies aft to used. Part of his taxes are committed to repay debts incurred today about which he had no voice he had no voice.

Among the state's current obligations, Cullen and Moscone say, are bonds which are immediately "callable," that is, can be paid off right away. There is a difference of opinion on just how many bonds are immediately collable. The governor says there is not enough to make it worth while, and that many of those which could be a second in the conditional of the be paid off now are at exceedingly low rates of interest. But there are some.

Moscone also says that voters have authorized the state over the next five years to increase its indebtedness by $500.9 million. Why not, he asks, use some of the surplus to pay for the proposed projects instead of borrowing money, at high interest, to pay for them?

Taxpayers should insist that legislators at least consider the possibilities sug-gested by Cullen and Moscone before they make a final decision on what to do with the pleasant problem before it.

Air Force loses fight for secrec

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Civil Service Commission, which in theory is to protect the rights of career government employes, is emerging as a major instru-ment in punishment of employes who tell the truth before congressional commit-

Thanks only to federal court rulings. cost analyst A. Ernest Fitzgerald is receiving an open hearing where the press can chronicle the efforts by the Air Force to smear and fire him after he had testified on the $2 billion in cost overruns on Lockheed's C-5A air transport program.

Mollenhoff

Chief Hearing Examiner Herman Staiman, who is presiding over the open Civil Service hearing, is the same examiner who barred Fitzgerald from an open hearing for more than 18 months.

His theory and the theory of Civil Service Counsel Anthony Mondello was that Fitzgerald's request for an open hearing should be denied because it is easier to learn the truth in a closed session away from the distractions of the press and the public.

THIS IS A STRANGE theory in a democracy where the horrors of the secret English star chambers always have been symbolic of a tack of "due process of law." But Staiman, Mondello and Civil Service Chairman Robert Hampton Insisted upon closed hearings and wrote to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., in an effort to justify their demand.

Flizgerald appealed Stalman's ruling to the federal courts and finally received a favorable ruling.

Refusing to accept the judgment of U.S. District Judge William Bryant, Civil Service Commission Chairman Hampton asked the Justice Department, as lawyer for the commission, to appeal Judge Bryant's decision. A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia was unanimous in upholding Judge Bryant and directing open hear-

The Civil Service Commission wasn't satisfied yet. Chairman Hampton asked the Justice Department to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court. How-ever, the then Solicitor General Erwin Griswold received the case and concluded that the Fitzgerald case did not merit such an appeal to the high court.

One would have thought the commission would finally give some thoughts to fair play and protecting Fitzgerald's rights, particularly when there was a court order directing the government to provide a daily transcript or permit Fitzgerald and his attorney to tape record the

Such was not the case.

WHEN FITZGERALD asked for a daily transcript, he was refused. He also was refused a request to tape the testi-mony of the first and crucial witness: Air Force Brig. Gen. Joseph J. Cappucci, who headed the Air Force Office of Special Investigations, and had approved a conflict-of-interest investigation of Fitzgerald in May 1969,

John Bodner Jr., a lawyer for Fitzger-ald, called for a showdown on the clear court order on daily transcripts or the right to record the testimony. Staiman finally agreed after Cappucci had been under questioning for more than five ald wasn't fired but was the victim of a reduction-in-force under which his job was simply abolished.

Fitzgerald contends he was fired by a concerted effort of top Air Force officials because he displeased them with his testimony on the C-5A overruns.

He also contends that, as part of this effort to find grounds to fire him or harass him, the Air Force Office of Special Investigations (OSI) was used in an effort to smear him, or to get evidence to support a whispering campaign that he was involved in a conflict of interest.

Testimony of Gen. Cappucci made it apparent why the Air Force was anxious to avoid an open hearing. Cappucci admitted that a special investigation file was opened on Fitzgerald in May 1969 on the basis of a "vague and nonspecific" allegation from an Air Force source he refused to name.

Although the Fitzgerald file had entries as late as November 1969, Cappucci said the "vague" allegations of the informant were totally unsupported. The same was true of information from three other informants, whose names Cappucci also refused to reveal.

Lawyer Bodner argued that, as long the Air Force continued to cover up in names of those who had initiated the investigation, he was barred from the very evidence he needs to establish there was a "concerted effort" to smear Fitz-

Staiman ruled the Air Force didn't have to reveal the names of its "confiden-tial informants."

Although Fitzgerald's case continues, to qualify for the description, "the analogmy of injustice in the American bureaucracy," it has had impact on other cases

NAVY COST CUTTER Gordon Rule, who criticized Litton Industries and the annointment of as White House budget czar, would likely have been fired by the Navy with total, disregard for the public outcry if Fitzgerald's case hadn't caused such anguish for the Pentagon.

The troubles the Air Force and the Civil Service Commission have been have ing in killing off Fitzgerald's hope forreinstatement have no doubt been reflected in the Civil Service Commission assurance to the Congress that Rule will not be moved from his job as the top civilian procurement specialist for the Navy.

It is little enough progress, but it does demonstrate that the Civil Service bureaucrats can be made to realize there are limits on the unfairness the public and the Congress will tolerate.

The great water steal

WASHINGTON - The federal authorities would like to stop the embarrassing stories the Indians have given us from the Broken Treaties Papers, as they call the documents they stripped from government files.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Jack Anderson

The authorities' latest move was to lock up my associate Les Whitten, in shocking violation of the First Amendment, for digging the embarrassing facts out of the stolo documents. No amount of government harassment will stop us from printing these facts, which we believe the public is entitled to

For example, we have just dug through more documents that tell how the Indians have been robbed of the water that made their bleak resorvations livable.

The great, water steal was accomplished with the full cooperation of the U.S. government, which helped siphon the precious water; into the white man's cities, corporations, ranches and farms For instance, the San Carlos Apaches and Pima Maricopas have watched the whites on adjoining land sink wells near the Gila River, whose water is supposed to be guaranteed forever to the Indian tribes. The whites have been "pumping... water from the surface and underflow of the Gila River," the papers acknowledge. Though the pumping is now being curtailed there, it is endemic elsewnere.

The once vast Navajo water reserves have been diverted for decades, leaving dying desert land. The Interior Department has assisted the surrounding states and municipalities in the theft, both by legal means and by keeping com-pliant tribal leaders and their white lawyers in control of tribal affairs.

Finally, the Navajos replaced tribal leader Raymond Nakai with a vigorous leader with the improbable name of Peter MacDonald.

The hapless Rincon and La Jolla Indians have been robbed of their water in California's San Luis Rey watershed. The Federal Power Commission was a moving force in the "trespass and breach of contract" that led to loss of their water. Now, the Indians complain, the water company taking their water won't even supply their

Up to now, the stolen papers show, a water rights unit established in the Interior Department in January 1972 has located a few cases among the hundreds where a court battle seems feasible. The unit has made some efforts to get the Justice Department to move against the water thefts, generally with unimpressive results.

It is not much. But it is a start.

By L.A. L.A.C. Says It is misuse of a president's power

President Nixon is being attacked by some newspapers and mem-bers of Congress for refusing to spend all the money for programs voted this fiscal year by Congress. He is holding back some $12 billion of appropriations for the purpose of reducing the deficit that would be increased by this amount in the year ending June 30. He says some of the programs are not sound and that large government ifiation to a darigerous level, and call for higher

His action is viewed as exerting too much power and reducing the power of Congress. Some of the same critics had opposed his heavy bombing of North Vietnam when the cease-fire negotiations broke down in December. The critics said the heavy bombing was cruel. But the short period it was carried on resulted in the enemy agreeing to the cease-fire that has given reason to hope it will end our military involvement in Indochina.

IT IS ADMITTED that these acfions have been taken without referring them to Congress. But it probable they have the support of the great majority of the people in this country. He was criticized when he called for economic con-trols under Phase 1 and 2. The result of that action slowed our infla-tion to a lower scale than has occurred and is occurring in every mafor nation during the last 18 months.

A Federal Reserve Board report shows inflation for the late 1960s in the United States was 5.4 per cent a year. For the last two years it is down to 3.4 per cent. For the same period Canada was 3.5 per cent and 4.8 per cent. Germany up from 3.2 to 6 per cent. Britain up from 6.2 to 8.2 per cent. No other major nation except Japan has lowered its rate of inflation during this period since the Phase 1, 2 and 3 have been in effect in the United States.

It took courage to place such controls on the U.S. economy in an election year. But it was done and the results gave the people confidence, as was indicated by the large vote for the President's reelection. He showed his opposition to continued controls when be relaxed them last month. He is asking Congress to renew this power as standby power should the inflation spiral start up again.

As for the criticism over his heavy bombing of North Vietnam to bring a cease-fire, he is the commander-in-chief of the armed forces. He was directing the mili-tary actions in a war for which Congress had voted authority and money before and after he took of-fice. It was an action that brought about the cease-fire agreement. Had he asked Congress to approve his bombing action there are good reasons to believe we would still be fighting in Vietnam as many of its members called for our surrender-

THE PRESIDENT is criticized by some newspapers and members of Congress for not announcing his plan before taking these actions. He was acting legally and realized that the worst way to achieve his goals was to have public and Con-gressional debate and delays. If the goals were to be achieved they had to be sudden and powerful.

Last November the great majority of the people gave him a vote of confidence. To date his actions have been successful in holding down inflation and accomplishing a cease-fire. If the majority of the people are displeased by his ac-tion in the bombing and his refusal to spend money he considers dangerous to our economy they have not shown it. If Congress insists on this spending it should vote again on each program and specify from where the money is to come to pay for each program they vote. Until that is done the people should con-tinue to support the President in

As one commentator puts it, the Constitution enables Congress to check a spendthrift president, but little authority to reverse an economical minded president. Congress has rarely faced that dilem-ma in the last 40 years.

Peace, honor and presidential pique

WASHINGTON - The President and the press are having no more success winding down their private war than the Vietnamese are in stopping the shooting.

Speaking at his press conference last week, the President for the first time publicly expressed some of the resembnent he has long felt about the media's comments on his war policy.

Asked to speak on the issue of healing the divisions among the American public over the war, the President said:

"WELL, IT TAKES two to heal wounds, and I must say, when I see that the most vigorous criticism or, shall we say, the least pleasure - out of the peace agreement comes' from those who were the most outspoken advocates of peace at any price, it makes one realize whether some want the wounds healed. We do.

"We think we have taken a big step toward ending a long and difficult war which was begun while

Did crisis vanish suddenly?

NOW THE ENERGY industry has been saying that the technology isn't available and that we face a nig fat energy crisis.

As a result we must build a lot of nuclear plants, we must import a lot of foreign oil and we must raise prices on natural gas, according to the industry.

And, industry has added, we must lower our standards in the fight against air pollution. It is either all of these steps or else the lights go out, industry has concluded.

Ruckelshaus reported that 90 r cent of the be eliminated by scrubbing - and, therefore, the federal government doesn't need to pay for any more research in the field

Then, realizing the bent of the questioning, he began to hedge

"Can we get the technology on in time and can we mix these fuels around intelligently enough so that the (air pollution) can be met everywhere? That's very difficult to do," he said.

There is going to be a dispute over how available this technology is." he added.

MAYBE SO, but if coal can be used safely, then why isn't the industry concentrating on its use?

For example, in Southern California, where the primary problem is the auto rather than coal, couldn't power plants be equipped to burn coal with proper controls? Either Mr. Ruckelshaus is wrong or the industry is wrong.

OBVIOUSLY, THE President was feeling put out because the American people did not pour into the streets to celebrate when the cease-fire was announced and because some of his peace-movement erities have continued to criticize

There is some justification for that attitude. History records few instances of nations that won a "peace with honor" and the return of their prisoners while systemati-cally pulling troops from the battle-

But then there has never been anything in history quite like Victnam, politically or militarily. What appeared to be black often turned out to be white, and even the battiefield combatants complained that they couldn't figure out who the enemy was half the time.

THE PRESIDENT deserves the greatest gratitude of the American people for extricating his country from that mess. He did it with consummate diplomatic skill. It may be that all will turn out as the President says it will. His batting average in foreign affairs over the past four years has been somewhat better than his detractors'.

But with all respect to the President, some of the press did not deserve that backhanded slap about gagging over using the phrase "peace with honor." If there is any gagging, it is because the press has been taught that it must be rather meticulous about accepting the pronouncements of American political leaders about what has happened or will happen with Vietnam.

For one thing, it remains to be seen whether the papers signed in Paris constitute a cease-fire agreement, much less a peace agree-

Until the cards are played, a cautious commentator is on safest ground by regarding it not as an agreement but as a deal—a deal whose only tangible return is the release of our prisoners.

AS FOR THE rest of the deal, there is room for considerable skepticism, and most of it is being expressed in Saigon. Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News reports that many South Vietnamese consider the cease-fire terms a sellout and are expressing their pique by beating up Americans and, yes. killing them.

Another problem many newsmen have is understanding the definition of "peace with honor," and they have been taught they can't write about something clearly unless the source comes clean about it. The President has defined what peace with dishonor is: the imposition of a Communist or coalition government in South Vietnam.

tion government in South Vietnam. But not peace with honor.

The White House complains about "instant analysis" by the press, but the press has a legitimate right to be skeptical about "instant peace." And it will be many many months—if not years—before anyone can be certain that a takeover by the Communists are prevented by Lyndon John. was prevented by Lyndon John-son's war and that it was worth a four-year wait with Richard Nixon to put that fact in writing.

In the meantime, Mr. President, take all the bows you so richly merit for what you have accomplished in foreign affairs in and out of Victnam, But if some of the press insists on gagging about the label "peace with honor" — which brightens your image only fractionally—it's because the press has no stomach for slogans.

Badminton is the life for a few Southlanders

By LARRY LYNCH Staff Writer

When Judianne Kelly was a seventh grader in El Segundo, she had normal interests. Like tennis.

Then her teacher signed her up for a badminton tournament in Pasadena. She won a trophy and got started on what today seems an almost fanatically dedicated way of life for a cute 24-year-old.

Badminton does that to

As more than a piente

game, badminton has never gained wide acceptance in the U.S. But for some Southern Californians it has been, for years, a totally absorbing pastime. And individual Americans have ranked among the best badminton players in the world in the face of broad-based enthusiasm for the game in many Asian and European countries. (The American Badminton Association has 3,100 registered players compared with 63,000 in Indonesia and 75,000 in England.)

Right now a group of young Southern Californians, including Judianne, are coming on strong. To live badminton, they make their own way for the most part working part time or teaching, always jockeying for positions on the U.S.

leams that take expensepaid international tours.

The major event for badminton in this country in a long time was a recent tour world-champion Indonesians.

Judianne, playing dou-bles with Vickie Toutz, 32, of Seal Beach, took a game from two of the Indonesian women at an exhibition match in San Francisco. The win was a rare one for the U.S. during matches which drew what was for badminton a series of record crowds, about a thousand an evening.

Playing this game at a championship level means a frantic schedule that usually involves a lot of driving. Judianne teaches in Garden Grove, lives in Norwalk, and four and five nights a week she is on the road to private clubs'in Pasadena and Manhattan Beach which are the focal point for a Southern California badminton set that, as Judianne describes it, is in those two communities as wealthy, social and involved as any tennis set. ("The biggles like to come to the matches and say, 'she plays for us and she's rated number five in the country'," Judianne she also plays frequently, a more bourgeoisie version of the game prevails. Two nights a week the men's gymnasium at Long Beach City College is filled with scampering bird chasers. The Long Beach Badminton Club has 28 active members at a fee of $8 a year. On evenings that the gym is available to the club it invites the public to play along. Thursday night of last week maybe 40 or 50 players, many young but some grey-haired, were circulating in and out of some ten games on the gymnasium floor.

The Long Beach facility is a less than perfect place to play compared with the private clubs of Manhattan Beach and Pasadena, Judianne says. The bird may get lost in overhead lights. And the expansiveness of the basektball court creates havoe with depth perception and reaction

"But you have to play in a place like this occasionally, because they hold tournaments in places like this," she adds. On Thursday she was there working out with Vickie and two of Southern California's ranking men:

> All four are impressive examples of dedication to the game. Coakley, for instance, has set aside a potential career in baseball to pursue badminton. He chose instead the life of a short order cook in a Newport Beach hamburger stand, combined with part-time studies at Orange Coast College and virtually full-time badmin-

> What is it that inspires such dedication though there is more hardship than money in being a champion?

Badminton is a lot faster than tennis,'' Judianne. And it is a thinking person's game, which means that a lot of players improve with age even though their physical prowess declines.

Kinard, the son of a Pasadena industrialist, and Coakley are training now for a coming men's Thomas Cup match with Mexico. The winning team will go to Canada and then meet Indonesia in a tourna-

The girls and men both are pointing ultimately toward Olympic play. Badminton was a demonstra-tion sport at the games in Germany. Because it is popular in Canada, Judianne and friends hope it will become an official olympic sport when the Olympics come to that country in 1976. All fault would be likely to qualify to represent the U.S. That is if they continue palying 15, 20 hours a week for the part.

Medicare provides good coverage. But it is limited. That's why you need Blue Cross Companion Care. Enrollment is open now through March I. More than 4,000 Southern Californians are on the waiting list to apply during this open enrollment period. You owe it to yourself to consider joining them.

Why? What is Companion Care?

Companion Care is specifically designed to fill some of the gaps in your Medicare protection. Today Companion Care protects 100,000 Southern Californians.

What's Companion Care got that Medicare hasn't?

Essentially Companion Care is designed to supplement Medicare, by paying some of your deductibles and extending coverage.

The High Option plan provides: In-patient hospital deductible fees not covered by Medicare through the first ninety days. Extended care facility deductibles not covered by Medicare. 275 additional hospital days beyond your Medicare lifetime reserve. And you're covered while traveling outside the United States.

Medicare does not cover outof-hospital prescription medications or in-hospital private duty nursing. These can become a major expense. Companion Care's High Option plan pays 80 per cent of these expenses after a $50 deductible.

The Low Option plan offers benefits above and beyond Medicare's Part A only. It does not supplement Medicare Part B which covers medical services such as surgery.

What does it cost?

Whichever plan you choose, you'll find that - dollar for dollar - Companion Care is the best supplement to Medicare your money can buy.

The High Option plan costs $13 a month, billed quarterly, It's the most comprehensive supplement to Medicare ever offered by Blue Cross. Any one of its major benefits could repay its cost to you many times

The Low Option plan costs $4 a month, billed quarterly.

How do I qualify?

You must be 65 or over and a resident of Southern California. You needn't take a physical or submit a health statement. But you must reply during this limited enrollment period which winner ends March 1, 1973.

New conditions are covered immifrom the effective date of your dimer coverage. Treatment for conditions which existed prior to enrollment are not covered for six months.

I'm interested, but I need more facts before applying,

That's why Blue Cross has prepared a booklet on Companion Care. It details the way Companion Care works with Medicare-its benefits, costs, limitations, etc. And it's written with easy-to-understand language and charts, too.

So I mail in the coupon, does that obligate me?

No. Remember this coupon is only an inquiry-not an application. Mail the coupon for a booklet and application form or write: Blue Cross of Southern California, 4777 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

But act before March 1. If you have Medicare, you need Companion Care.

666-3434 Please send me your Companion Care information booklet and application form free of charge. CITY.....ZIP CODE ☐ Check here if you also wish coverage for your spouse. (Must be 65 or over.) MAIL COUPON BY MARCH 1 TO: Blue Cross of Southern California, 4777 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027. Or write or phone your nearest Blue Cross office. SAVE TIME -

Godwill's runner-up determined

By BOB SANDERS

Staff Writer A life-long struggle to make his own way has paid off for a 26-year-old Westminster man whose left side was paralyzed by rheumatic fever when he was only three years old. Rodney Lee Scroggins, who, was selected to be the Goodwill Industries of Orange County Worker-ofthe Year earlier this month, was chosen for the runnerup award last week in the California Goodwill Worker-of-the Year

Sacramento.
Gov. Reagan made the formal presentation of the award at the annual awards luncheon at the Cosmopolitan El Mirador Hotel in Sacramento. Scroggins also received a $25 U.S. Savings Bond and a chance to compete in the national contest-

FOR THE courageous young man it was the climax of a series of hard endeavors, all of which have paid off.

Cleveland, Born in Tenn,, one of a family of seven boys and two girls; Scroggins suffered a se-vere case of rheumatic fever which left him with a heart murmur as well as a paralyzed left side.

Despite his handicap which prevented him from doing many of the things other children were doing he says of his childhood:

"I was just a happy child."

ALTHOUGH he admits that, occasionally, he would think, "Why can't I do this or that," he always adds, "Quickly I would think 'Why should I worry about it' and would' just go on and play."

When he was nine years old he started school, taking special classes at the same school his brothers and sisters attended. He had one younger brother but he was the only member of the family to be handicapped.

AFTER HE got out of school he found himself a job but it was five miles from his home and he had no car. He didn't even tell his family about the job until he got his first pay

In November, 1967, he decided he didn't want to live with his parents all his life so he came out to California with a brother and got a job with Good-will Industries in less than a month.

Then he got another job working for a boat company but was laid off. He returned to Goodwill, and after an evaluation, was accepted for training in the print shop.

There was some ques-tion at Goodwill about whether Rodney's paralyzed arm and leg might get caught in one of the presses sometime but when he showed them he could change the blade on the paper cutter he con-vinced them that he was a sale worker.

HE COMPLETED the training and has been em-ployed by Martec Printing Co. in Newport Beach since last September. He met and married a girl named Linda, who works in a convalescent home, in 1969.

He says he finds it exciting to be doing a good job for himself and his family and intends to go on doing better and learning more things.

"I feel my life is richer for the problems I had to overcome," he says mod-

Participants in the EH program have what Mrs. McConnell calls "learning disabilities." They can vary from a problem of visual or auditory perception to one of coordination or something being amiss psychologically.

"Whatever the problem, it often can lead the way to many other problems in the classroom," Mrs. McConneil said.

Their task is to try to determine what the root problem is and what kinds of educational or psychological prescriptions can be applied to solve the difficulty.

"These children have potential in the average range or better," said Mrs. McConnell. "But a block of some kind or some disability is holding up their progress. Often, we can just remove the block it's smooth sailing from then on."

But the OEO report cast a pall over this ambition. Martyn and his staff laid alternative plans to expand the network of private cen-ters beyond the seven already in operation in Long Beach, Huntington Beach, Santa Ana, Torrance, Encino, Fullerton and the Crenshaw district of Los Angeles. But things worked out different-

Mrs. Margeret Skilling, principal at Bloomfield, visited the private centers and proceeded to convince the school board in the innovative ABC Unified School District to try The Reading Game, using federal monies that were already supporting the school's reading program. American Learning also contracted to set up the program last fall in two schools in Watts and one in East LA.

For this first year at Bloomfield, ABC district officials agreed to pay American Learning $20,000 for its services. In addition the district spent $28,000 on new materials and building renovation.

What the district gets in turn from the company is advice. Its consultants have shown the staff at ABC how to set up a program that diagnoses each student's reading weakness and prescribes selected exercises to fit the weakness. Job guarantee offer at LBCC

Long Beach City College is offering adults a virtual guarantee of jobs in the trade fields through a work experience program that provides a pay-check as well as college course credit, college officials have announced.

Men and women internical, trade or industrial areas may enter the program by enrolling for thution-free courses which focus on a wide range of occupations, one spokesman explained.

Carl Wolff, chairman of the college's technical, trade and industrial division, said that courses in the work experience program covers areas includ-ing aviation, culinary arts, drafting, electricity, electronics, machine shop, sheet metal, refrigmachine eration, welding, small engine repair and carpen-

The courses are designed, said Wolff, to prepare persons "from scratch" for a new line of work, and prospective employers provide the work experience with an hourly wage.

.While most of the courses are offered during daytime hours, he said, classes in many areas also are offered at night for persons who may be working days in a field in which they hope to ad-vance, or at a job they hope to quit for another.

Among the most popular of the work experience program areas is that designed for shipyard

Port repairs to proceed

The Los Angeles Harbor Department has decided it must proceed to maintain and repair port property even though it would be doing so without a permit as regulred by the newly-organized Southcoast Regional Zone Conservation Commission.

The department's chief harbor engineer, Lawrence L. Whiteneck, told the board of commissioners Wednes-day it was imperative the repairs be made and the maintenance program be continued to assure safe working conditions for longshoremen, other port workers, and the public visiting the harbor.

Commissioner John J. Royal noted that if long-shoromen reported for work and found unsafe working conditions they could, under terms of their contract, refuse to work until the unsafe conditions were correct-

Harbor Commission President John B. Kilroy pointed out the conservation commission had not yet selected an executive director and that although Feb. 1 was the effective date of the Constal Zone Conscrvation Act of 1972 "it might be some time before it is in a position to act upon permit requests."

Earlier the Harbor Commission won City Council approval of a Harbor Department request made to the state conservation commission that the department be excluded from complying with certain restrictions imposed by the 1972 act.

The Harbor Commission, recognizing the likelihood the state agency might refuse to grant the exclusion, passed a resolution urging the regional conservation commission to grant the Harbor Department an omni-bus permit allowing the Harbor Department to make repairs and maintain port facilities as might be need-

The commission also authorized the engineering section to continue with all "housekeeping activities," including painting, repairs to windows and doors; improvements to electrical, plumbing, heating and air conditioning and further to support work which will not materially change the structure or dimensions of existing facilities.

The commission also approved the making of repairs as might be required to provide safe working conditions such as repairing wharf surfaces, structures, and fencing so as to "insure safety of persons working and the public in or on Los Angeles Harbor Department property."

YOUR

HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON FORECAST FOR MONDAY

Your birthday today: Leaving the past behind is essential to your conquest of the future. Today's natives attract many friends and acquaintances. Personal austerity in private attains is the rule.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Concentrate on things and deals which have come to a standstill, get them moving or moved. Enterprises tend to be slow starting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Following the path of least resistance leads you into carrying others' responsibility — while they play.

sistance leads you into carrying others' responsibility — while they play.

Gentini May 21-June 20: Your career bears watching, as an opportunity may pass while you bicker with colleagues and the new people they bring in.

Cancer June 21-July 22: Associates offer suggestions which miss the mark, would cause difficulty if you adopted them. Avoid clashes if you can.

LEO (July 23-Jug. 22: Your best tricoids are apt to be the the most obstinate and for reasons beyond your ready comprehension. Going it alone will help.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 221: Being difficult is no problem; with just a little effort you can be impossible, or provoke the like from others.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 221: Health and its care should come to your attention today, Resolve to avoid undue exposure, fatigue. Your work assumes importance.

Summary of rewards posted by I,P-T's Secret Witness

As part of the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret - Witness, program, summarles of cases in which rewards of speci-fied amounts are offered printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Thursday and Sunday. Rewards paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other criminal cases, not covered in these summaries, will vary in amount de-pending on the serious-ness of the offense. The summaries follow:

A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the burly kidnap-rapist of six women he found in laundromats in Long Beach and Orange County. The attacker usually struck on Friday nights and forced his victims at knifepoint into his late model Datsun pickup truck where they were raped and subjected to unnatural sex acts. The truck has a black interior and a manual floor shift. The assailant is a white man about 26 years old, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, and weighs 180 to 200 pounds. He usually wore a blue denim shirt, Levis and high-topped work boots. He has dark brown, collar-length hair, and frequently had a short bushy moustache and a small beard.

-A $2,000, reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mrs. Helga Dorothea Brown, 64, whose nude body was found in Scherer Park last Sept. 23; Mrs. Brown, last seen alive by her husband and friends on the morning of Sept. 17, had been beaten and strangled by someone who hid the body on an island in the duck pond part of the park. Her empty purse and part of her clothing were found near a picnic table in the park

_A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Freddie Tidmore, alias Fred Douglas Mabson, 20, sought in connection with the holdup shooting of John Bell, 33-year-old clerk at the Wooden Shoe Liquor store, 2053 Orange Ave. last Dec. 20. Bell, critically wounded, identified Tidmore as his assailant. Tidmore, who is black, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 155 pounds is believed to be still in the Long Beach -Compton area.

-Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murder-er of 11-year-old Teri-Lynn Hollis, of 2036 Daiemeade St., Torrance, who was kidnaped from front yard of her home last Thanksgiving Day. Her body, clad only found on a rocky and 11 miles south of Oxnard on the following day. The . in her Long Beach home little blonde girl had been raped and strangied. Feriwas last seen alive by an informant who told Torrance police she was rid-ing near her home on a bicycle pedaled by young man about 21 years old, dark-haired, and about 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

-A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the holdup gunman who shot and seriously wounded bakery deliveryman James D. Reynolds, 51, on Jan. 15, 1972. Reynolds, who surrendered his cash receipts, was shot cold-bloodedly and without provocation as he was leaving Whistler's Liquor Store at 1012 E. Pacific Coast Highway, whare he had just made a bread delivery.

-A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Kathleen Ann La Chance, aspiring Long Beach actress who lived at 4524 Banner Drive. Miss La Chance was last seen alive at 5 p.m. last Nov: 15 as she was leav-ing an Actors' Workshop rehearsal at the apartment of a friend in Los Angeles, Her nude-body, arms bound by leather straps and mouth stuffed with sand, was found late that night near the pier on the Santa Monica beachfront. She had been raped and stabbed repeatedly.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information. leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Kathleen Marie Butts, 20, whose nude body was found in a clump of bushes behind 2750 E. Pacific Coast Highway in Long Beach on Aug. 29, 1969. The at-tractive 5-foot, four-inch. 120-pound brunette had been bound hand and foot and strangled at least seven days prior to the discovery of the body.

A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Ernest Brown, 28, who was shot to death in an "execution style" slaying in an alley behind 740 E. Analicim St. on last July 17. Passersby heard the gunfive and discovered Brown's body, shot three times in the body and once at close range behind the ear, lying face down alongside a cement block wall. -A $2,000 reward will paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murder-er of Mrs. Linda Sue Smit, 18, who was strangled in her Santa Ana apartment at 2019 Bristol Ave. on July 26, 1972, Mrs. Smit's body was discovered by her husband, Eric Smit, when he returned home from work at II

But maybe they were offended by the fact that, when he played, turns and trills spun off the tunes like pinwheels. Newman gave a lecture Wednesday that opened the festival at the Los Angeles First Congregational Church. He argued then for a rather free use of such melodic embellishments. He argued for sobricty in registration, however, and he provided it in the Bach Festival program he played Friday night. That impressive recital was made up of 23 pieces from Book of the Klavieruebung, the Trio Senata No. 6 in G, three chorale preludes from "The Eighteen Chorales" on the Advent hymn "Nun Komm, der Heiden Heiland" ("Come, Saviour of the Heathen"), and the Fantasie and Fugue in G Minor. The inwheels twirled around the melodies in the slower. pieces. The final fugue every note neatly in place which there is no way to stress a tone by hitting a key or a pedal hard, the rhythm must gain driving force by other means. The performer must have absolute control not only of the notes but of the basic pulse of the music so his slight variations in it can be perceived not as accidents but as expressive and deliberate deviations. That mastery, Newman has, and it sets him apart other virtuoso organists and harpsichordists. His audiences set him apart, too, but that may be an accident of his age (31), his curious belief in astrology, his amiable willingness to chat with his fans and his publicity. Whatever the reason, the customary array church organists who go to such affairs is aug-mented at a Newman recital by young lovers holding hands, intense girls with long, straight hair who fix the organist with adoring stares, and a good many people who seem to be there not to pay a debt to culture but to have a good time. "WRITE. We want to hear from you." That's what Ford Motor Company began telling consumers two years ago when it launched its "We Listen Better" program. The results?

People wrote. Ford owners, non-Ford owners, youngsters, not-so youngsters, new car owners, antique car owners, and many others directed an average of 2,219 pieces of mail daily to the program.

"Ford Listens Better" celebrated its second anniversary having received and answered more than 1,100,000 pieces of mail — including letters on a variety of subjects, as well as requests for the company's "Car Buying Made Easier" book.

John J. Morrissey, Ford executive director—advertising and research, is pleased with the tremendous response the program has received as a result of "Listens" advertisements on national television and in newspapers and magazines throughout the country.

We are grateful to all the people who have written to us," Morrissey said. "In the two years since we set up the program to help consumers, we have heard from over a million people. Almost without exception, the letters we have received have been written in good faith and we have responded in kind."

"Ford Listens Better" was organized after almost a year of preliminary testing to determine the need for such a consumer communications program. One of the most important goals of the program is to establish and maintain direct and honest one-for-one dialogue ment. Another, who lives in California, is suggesting that we all pool our net (perhaps $30,000 each) and invest it in a real estate investment company in which he has other money. He speaks of one per cent monthly (12 per cent a year), with a percentage of the appreciation which is gained when the real estate is turned over after six or seven

His explanation is that the company buys apartment houses and shopping centers, holds them for a few years, and then turns them over and buys again. He states that his particular investment is in Houston, Tex., one of the fastest growing cities arrange with Gibraltar in the country.

This whole thing looks risky to me, but it may well be that I just don't have the sophistication to recognize a good deal when I see one. Am I right in saying that the investment is no better than the management which decides what real estate to buy? — Mrs. R.G.R. (Bloomington, Ind.).

ANSWĒR: You dead, dead, dead right! There's nothing basically wrong with the idea that your brother has pro-posed. It's a form of real estate syndication — a limited partnership type

The advantage here is that it enables the relatively small investor to "pool" his money with others, get a nice return (12 per cent a year is in the ballpark). At the same time, he gets a good tax write-off from his pro-rated share of the inter-est, depreciation, maintenance and whatnot.

The thing that worries me here is that your brother (assuming that he understands it Thoroughly) hasn't explained it very well to you. Secondly, I don't understand this don't understand this business of him (in the far west) and you (in the midwest) proposing to go into a Houston-based syndi-

Why? One of the other big advantages in this sort of investment is that it is a very tangible sort of thing and that you; as an investor in the Bide-A-Wee Apartment complex, can drive past it occasionally and put your mind at rest as to its existance and its maintenance. Scattered as you all are, I don't seehow your brother intends to keep an eye on

There are, naturally, definite risks in such a venture --- some cities are developing a glut of apartments and shopping cen-ters — and it's certainly of arrangement — and the return on investment that he mentions isn't out of line.

The advantage here in brother wants to get all of you involved in this thing. lle sounds like a born risk-taker, and so it's probably admirably suited to his tastes, but I see nothing but family trouble aliend if he drags the rest of you in with

MR. CAMPBELL:

Can you tell me how to go about getting our money back from a real estate dealer? The money ($500) was a binder on a house we wanted to buy. We sigued an agreement, as did he, and the owner of the house named the bank to be used and specified a 10 per cent downpayment.

All of this is in the agreement. The bank wanted 20 per cent down and would not take 10 per cent. We didn't have enough for a 20 per cent downpayment, and the deal feil through.

Now, after several months, we still can't get our money back. What should we do? — Mrs. P.A.M. (Rockland, Mass.).

ANSWER: It's custom-ary for a proposition on a house to carry the details of the financing required to swing it. The fact that - in the bank's eyes - you didn't qualify isn't your fault, and there's no reason why thereshould be such a hassle in getting your money back.

I'd consult the local Betten Business Bureau, the real estate board and if between the two of them. - the broker still refuses to return the money, you'll have no choice but to consult a lawyer.

MR. CAMPBELL:

You often advise, as "a good safe investment," the purchase of corporate bonds, I know very little about such matters. Please explain what they are, and where they are available. Can they be cashed in at my convenience, or must notice to do so be given? - Mrs. H.H.

(Logansport, Ind.). ANSWER: Bonds are 'floated" by a company in order to borrow money. It's just plain old debt in the course of which the firm agrees to pay the buyer of the bond (usually issued in denominations of $1,000) X per cent interest for so many years (usually 20 years or more). At the end of this time agrees to redeem the bonds at face value.

If the company doesn't pay ("defaults") on any year's interest, the bondholders can sue to recover this interest — unlike stockholders who have no recourse if the company doesn't choose to pay dividends in any given year. Yes, you can sell a bond at any time, without no-tice, although this is no guarantee that you will necessarily get what you paid for it. It depends on hat mysterious thing known as "the money market." Suppose you paid $1,000 for a $1,000 bond (this is known as buying it "at par.") and it pays an interest of 6½ percent a suppose the suppose of 6½ percent a suppose of 6½ p cent a year.

MAP NOT TO SCALE

DESIGN FOR LIVING

Try modular furniture

Moving is probably the most common — and most problematic business people must face stoday. One out of every five American families moves each year. And the most mobile of all are young people, who seem to move all the time and always ask me the hardest questions about what to buy first.

What to buy? Or course, it's always a good invest-ment to buy a basic sofa which is not too large, but not too small to be important; this is what I call an anchor for all the tempo-rary things you have to use until your ship comes in the flotsam and jetsam you inherit or acquire at the nearest garage sale.
But for those of you who have never heard of handme-downs and who lack the basic bread for a real live sofa, try a system.

A system is a relatively new word used mostly in the space and construc-tion business; in interior planning it means any kind of furniture that is modular and pre-planned for a variety of uses and designs. There are many of these on the market. You may recognize them as shell and storage sys-tems or divider-wall sys-tems. But now there is a new breed that is called planned with modular seating. This is a system, too, where a single unit can be extended to seat a crowd by adding more modules of the same thing: if the airport adds space, more modules can be added at the same time. Today, we can buy or make seating systems for our living room, modular and mobile senough for your next

One of my favorite systems are cubes. If you schoose a nice hefty size, like a sixteen-inch cube (this means 16 inches in $each direction) you can make everything from a footstool (with one) to a lovescat (with nine) and take them all apart before your crowd comes for cocktails to make single seats for every one around the coffee table.

Of course you can buy cube systems at all prices. Some Italian imports cost about $200 per piece and they are glorious looking. But you can also make your own, using plywood boxes wrapped on all six sides with a thick layer of foam and then upholstered all lover for greatest flexibility.

YOU CAN be ingenious, too, and paint one or two cubes for coffee tables or table clusters.

I designed a room for a modern bride who planned to move from a very (small apartment to a larger one in a year. I used a cube system that she can re-use, as accent and occasional sealing a larger living room with more formal furniture, and later, in a family room or, when time is ripe, in a child's room.

Everybody's got things around they no langer need ... and they'd like to sell. And the place to advertise those things is the I,P-T Classified Section. To prove the point, we've listed some recent Classified ads below. Next to them are listed the number of calls the people received — and the number of people who are still looking for similar items.

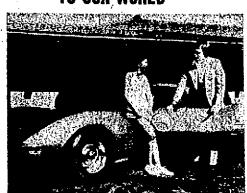

RECENT ADS	NUMBER OF CALLS	PEOPLE STILL LOOKING
John Novak of Cerritos sold his Chevy camper with a weekend ad.	14	13
Peter D. Smith, Long Beach, was overwhelmed with the response he got with his ad for a color TV.	80	79
Mrs. Lee Smith, Long Beach, "didn't realize that everyone reads the classified" when she advertized her lawnmower for sale.	20	: 19
Mrs. Joe Schultz was very pleased with the results of her ad for a housekeeper. She found one the first day.	29	28
Larry Miller was "just real pleased" with the response he got on his ad for a Triumph motorcycle.	15	14
Jack Mills, Gardenia, sold his '62 Chevrolet Impala and got his asking price too.	31	30

Give you some ideas? We hope so. Because there just isn't a better place than the I,P-T Classified Section, with it's over 400 classifications, for reaching just the people that are looking for the goods or services you've got to offer. Give us a try

Lewis cold and 49ers hot, 103-82

By JIM McCORMACK Staff Writer

It is an acknowledgement of Raymond Lewis' skills that there was unrestrained joy among Long Beach State fans Saturday after the 49ers "held" the nation's No. 2 scorer to 26 points on their way to a 103-82 victory over L.A. State.

While Long Beach parti-sans — there were 3,545 of them in the Long Beach Arena — teased and taunted the Diablo sophomore with chants of "we want Lewis" and "shoot, shoot, from the time Lewis missed his first shot 15 seconds into the contest until he missed his last at the final buzzer, the 49ers displayed no particular delight after claiming their 60th consecutive home court victory.

"It's just another one out of the way," said Long Beach All-America Ed Ratleff. "I don't know about anyone else, but I didn't put any special thought into playing against Lewis."

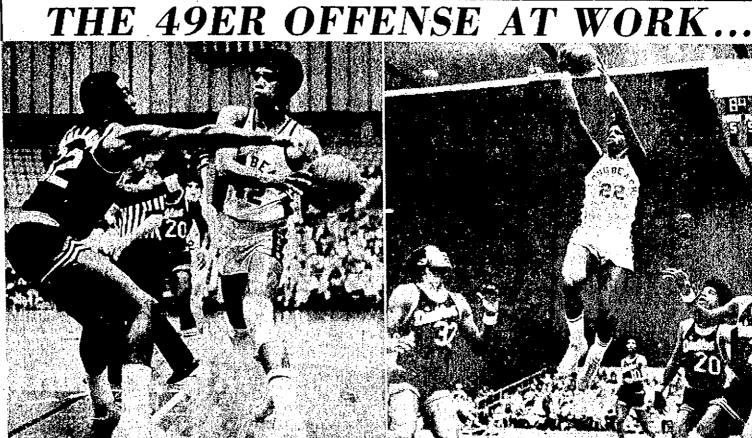

Ratleff did most of his "talking", during the game, hitting 13 of 26 floor shots for a game-high 28 points. The 6-foot-6 senior also led both clubs in rebounding with 15 and added six assists, showing everyone he was not about to relinquish his title as the best player in the Pacific Coast Athletic Owns, the L.A. Sports Arena, UCLA outflanked USC's ball-control plans to achieve a 79.56 win before 14,139 faus.

It was Wooden's 19th consecutive victory at the Sports Arena and the Bruins' 62nd in a row in a streak that may never Pacific 8 standings

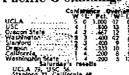

UCLA's wondrous cen-ter, Bill Walton, dominated the game at both ends of the court as the Bruins achieved sole possession of the Pacific-8 Conference lead with a 5-0 record. The Trojans fell to WALTON, who limped from the game with 4:55 remaining, had 20 points and 17 rebounds. His replacement, Swen Nater, contributed seven. USC's centers. Mike Westra and John Lambert, each had two points.

The Bruins broke away from the Trojans midway through the first half to amass a 20-point halftime lead, saw it shrink to 12 twice in the second half, then glided away easily when senior forward engaging the Trojans again on March 10 at Pauley Pavilion.

USC was never in a full-scale stall Saturday night, but the Trojans seemed to lose their edge working for the high-percentage shot. They did better in the second half when they went to a running game, and perhaps that will be the way they will play it the next time the teams get together.

THEY came out firing in the second half, slicing JCLA's lead to 48-36 and 50-38. But Farmer scored seven points in a threeminute span and Walton put the finishing touches on the Trojans with two baskets as UCLA surged to a 63-44 lead.

That did it. Wooden, who had been on the edge of his chair much of the game, set back and smiled — the unbeatable foe. USC shot a good percentage, .473, but UCLA was out of sight again with 37 conversions in 59 shots, a .627 percentage. Walton had 17 of UCLA's 29 rebounds. The Bruins had a five-rebound edge on the Trojans.

Clint Chapman and Dan Anderson kept the Trojans from being USC looked for the percentage shot and played the Bruins even through the first 10 minutes.

THERE isn't a whole defense than can stop Raymond Lewis, but Long Beach State came mighty close Saturday. Lewis goes up for one of 34 shots against the 49ers as defender Ernie Douse seems to be applying hex on the Los Angeles State sophomore. Lewis hit just eight field goals after missing his first 12 attempts and totaled 26 points.

Fullerton stuns LBCC, 94-83 politan Conference action Friday night at Pierce.

On paper, it looked like a mismatch. On the Full-erton City College court Saturday night, it wasn't. The unheralded Hor-nets, humiliated by 38 points in their first meet-ing with Long Beach City College five weeks ago, shot a sizzling 69 per cent from the floor and took advantage of 31 Viking turnovers to ambush the state's No. 2 ranked team, 34-83. It was only the fifth loss in 25 games for coach Lute Olson's team and Olson's only consolation Saturday was the fact that it was a non-league encounter.

Long Beach actually put up 16 more shots than their hosts and connected at a creditable 47 per cent clip — 36 for 77 — but Fullerton was uncanny, hitting on 42 of 61 attempts.

The Vikings also won the battle of the boards. gathering 47 rebounds to 20 for Fullerton but when the Hornets shot there was seldom any carom. Thirty-one of the Vike rebounds came on offense.

Forward Todd Allen and Guard Fritz Miller put in 20 points apiece for Fullerton while slick Bob Devecse added 16.

The Hornets, now 12-14 over all, tied the game at 28-all with 6 minutes remaining in the first half. The Hornet advantage was a shaky 38-35 with 3:15 to play when Allen sparked a 10-1 spurt that enabled Fullerton to carry off a 48-36 lead at the breather.

Long Beach crept to within six points with 14:15 remaining in the game but that was as close as they could come.

Several Vikings turned efforts. in , worthwhile Guard Dave Leslie hit 9 of 17 shots, added six assists and finished with 20 points. Forward Dave Hillman went 7 for 14 and grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds while managing points. Center Floyd Heaton scored 14 points he beat the Olympic

"The rest of the Bruins are excellent players, but I've seen better. It's the big man who makes the difference."

Coach Bob Boyd believed the way to handle Walton was to keep him on defense where he couldn't touch the basketball.
"We might have been living on borrowed time early in the game. Then we lost our poise. I think our players got caught up in the tension and excitement of the game . . . that's when we lost our composure."

The big question was how to defense the Bruints.
"In the first half we played a 'gimmick' de-fense with two people on Walton, either Chapman and (Mike) Westra or Chapman and (John) Lambert.

"We guarded Walton pretty well at that time. But Westra got fired and picked up a couple fouls. They're awesome on the boards and Walton is the greatest college player I've ever seen."

John Wooden wasn't surprised to see the Trojans hold the ball.

"They worked for awhile before going into their regular offense, probably hoping to lull us into a sense of relative security. However, they never did get much of a lead-just two points, I think.

"It was a calculated risk pressuring Bill with Westra and then getting help from someone else. I think they realize they'd get fouls that way."

Wooden smiled at that strategy and downright "aw shucksed" the scene of an open Greg Lee at the top of the key, hitting uncontested shots early in the evening.

"Those were square-shouldered shots from just past the free throw line. Greg's a very fine free throw shooter and we don't expect him to miss many from there," Wooden grinned.

Again it was a case of watchful waiting for the opponent to crack.
''I didn't think they could continue hitting from the outside. Pres-sure then will always make the difference."

After huddling with G.M. Larry Regan for 10 minutes behind closed doors, Pulford was so upset with the Kings' poorest home performance of the season that he brushed past newsmen past with only one com-ment; "I don't want to talk to anyone."

The fans fell the same way, coach.

The Kings fell behind 2-0 late in the first period on defenseman Larry Robinson's first NHL goal and Lefley's red-lamper and when Frank Mahovlich scored with only 46 seconds elapsed in the middle session, Pulford's charges literally quit

Trailing 6-0, Serge Bernier averted a shutdown with six minutes to go when he converted Whitey Widing's pass into his 18th goal of the sea-son. Widing's assist gave him the club record of 41, bettering his own previous high of 40 assists.

Philyaw, Smith lead Loyola, 86-74

Freshman Luther Phil-yaw and senior Steve Smith scored key baskets in the waning moments and led Loyola to an 86-74 victory Saturday night over Seattle in a West Coast Athletic Conference basketball game. Philyaw, a 6-foot-1 guard, scored 16 points 6-foot-1 and Smith, a 6-8 center, had 24 for the Lions.

The victory proved cost-ly as Pete Mahovlich, younger brother of the "Big M," was rushed to Centinella Valley Hospital for X-Rays of his left leg. Ex-Canadian Terry Harper fell on Mahovlich in a melce against the boards and Pete had to be carried off the ice on a

The win improved Montral's record to 11-1-4 in its last 16 starts. The King's home record dipped to 14-6-4. When Frank Mahavlich scored, it was his 491st lifetime goal in the NHL.

The King's don't return to action until Wednesday when they play Philadelphia at the Forum. The Flyers are unbeaten in their last seven games (5-0-2) and have surged to second in the Western race. Although falling to seventh, the Kings trail the Flyers by only seven

When the Kings fell behind 5-0 in third period, several disgruntled fans hosited a sign imploring, 'God save the Kings".

It may take more than that before the National Hockey League season is over.

Loser of 20 of 30 road games, the Kings suddenly have found winning at home an impossible mission, too, as they fell in a heap to Montreal, 7-1, Saturday night beford the Forum's largest hockey erowd of the season, 15,- Chuck Lefley and Murray Wilson scored a pair of goal as the Canadiens continued the mastery over Jack Kent Cooke's hirings. The Canadiens haven't lost to the Kings in two seasons, stretching their record to 10-0-2.

The Kings might have had a good excuse had they been turned away by Ken Dryden, but Montreal all-star goalie is sidelined with a back injurey and rookie Michel Plasse had a easy night in the nets.

The floundering Kings now have lost their last four matches and third in a row. In the last eight games they have six losses and two ties-not the type of credentials

Johnny O recalls

Pat Cannamela, former all-America linebacker at USC, was killed a week ago today by a shotgun blast when he surprised gunmen in a Los Angeles department store holdup. Johnny Olszewski, former all-America fullback at Cal, was one of those who attended his funeral in Lomita. Therein lies a tale. Way back in 1951, Cannamela and Olszewski were involved in an incident during a game at Berkeley that threw the Bear student body into a frenzy and threatened to sever relationships between the two schools. Johnny-O recalled it a few days ago. Cannamela made a good tackle on me," said John. "He hit me well. But he just kept rolling over me and when he was getting up, he gave my leg a yank. It was just one of those things, I guess, but I always thought he didn't have to do what he did." As a result of the incident, Olszewski suffered a severely damaged knee, which forced him to miss the next live Cal games. Further, the Cal student body started a chant that was heard try for months: "Back

"I DON'T BELIEVE he intentionally tried to injure me," continued Johnny-O. "It probably was just the heat of the game that inspired him a little too much. Besides, I never had to have the knee cut into, so it

I'm sure we'd have been good friends if I had known him better. It's a damned shame the way he died. He didn't have a chance. At least I had a chance that day he tackled me. I knew he was coming."

LONG BEACH'S LARRY HANSON, undoubtedly America's winningest high school basketball coach, innovator of the full-court press back in the late '40s, and in his 26th (and last) year at perennial L.A. city champ Jefferson High School, shocks you with an evaluation of UCLA's towering center, Bill Walton.

"Kids seem to have two types of knee problems — those from birth which they grow out of or otherwise overcome, and those that develop later and only get worse. Walton's knees are in the latter category. Prob-lems started when he was in high school. He has a time. He predicted that little Mack Calvin would make n't have a chance. His remarks about Walton shouldn't

Ups and downs of 'acting' as Trotter foil Long Beach cager now a 'performer'

You're supposed to help them out and do what you can to make it look funny . . . but you don't want people to think you're really that bad." — Rich Ewaskey.

The Philadelphia 76ers really don't have it so bad when one pauses to consider the New York Nationals, a basketball team with no home court, no fans and a team that never, never wins because it isn't supposed to.

The Nationals never practice, but if they do it's called a "rehearsal," because their act is to play the foil for the Harlem Globetrotters.

A travelin' man come again to the Long Beach Arena Saturday night. "The first night I played," Rich Ewaskey recalls, "I just ran out on the floor and they said, 'Don't worry about it.' We were supposed to have rehearsals the first week, but the Trotters know what they're doing and they don't want to has-sle it, so it's up to us to find out what's going on.

"So I walk out on the court and Pablo Robinson has this one read, which is what they call a skit or a they call a skit or a routine, and he goes, 'Are you guarding me?' I say, 'Oh, yeah,' and he goes, 'Well, put up your hands,' and I do.

"Then after you put 'em up you're supposed to drop 'em and he's supposed to catch an inbounds pass over your head and shoot a layup. Well, I dropped my hands, but I knew he was gonna shoot so I brought 'em back up and blocked his shot.

"I was a rookie, so they just let it slide, but some of the guys, especially with a big crowd, would get mad." IT'S "REALLY an experience" for Ewaskey, a star forward (6-5) at St. Anthony High and Long Beach City College who found himself sort of along for the ride behind better players at Long Beach State the last two seasons. Then the Nationals, who have about as much to do with New York as the Globetrotters do with Harlem, had their tryouts at LBCC last summer.

"I was getting overweight, drinking too much beer," Ewaskey says, "and I went to the LBCC gym to run a little bit. When I got there I found out they were having these tryouts, so I asked the guy if I could play against his team and he says sure.

RICH ROBERTS

"Then afterward he says, 'Why don't you come back next week and try out for the team

Ewaskey has played more baskethall in the last 3½ months than he did in four years of college. He'll also see much of the world playing opposite Showboat Hall's outfit, the international unit

"The tour started Oct. 15," he says. "We've already played like 90 games. We've stayed in the same town for two nights only twice and, besides four days at Christmas, we've had two nights off.

"My game's improved a lot, I think. It's probably 80 per cent basketball and I'm averaging, I think, 18 points a game. They don't keep stats. It's kind of touchy when it comes to that. It might start conflicts on the team.

'At the beginning of the tour I was doing really well, and then a few problems came up with the team and I didn't see the ball as much. Now I'm starting to see it again.

"If they know you have somebody in the stands, like your parents, they'll give you the ball more, but one thing that's very hard to do is you have to learn to go out there and do your best and know within yourself that you're as good as they are. You don't

"The people don't even look at what our team does. You've got to always remind yourself that it isn't you they come to see. One guy on the team left because he couldn't adjust to it."

OTHER THAN THAT, the largest adjustment is to the grinding schedule. Ewaskey was contacted by telephone in Hilo, Hawaii. The night before he had played in Brigham City, Utah.

"The bellboy came into the room with some bags and said, 'Did I wake you up?'" Rich relates. "I said, 'Yeah, I guess you did.' He said, 'You must really be tired because it's only 9 o'clock.' I didn't tell him that for me it was like 1 a.m., because there was four hours' difference from where I'd Ewaskey made his biggest hit in Calgary, Alberta, with an unplanned comedy routine of his

"We were playing on top of the ice on one of those portable floors and I went to get the ball dur-ing warmups. The board slipped and I fell on my butt. There were 9,000 people there and they laughed for about three minutes."

OTHERWISE, HE JUST does his job as straight man for the Trotters. Most of the comedy is planned but some is impromptu.

"It depends on a lot of things," says Rich, "the crowd size, the mood of the Trotters. They can feel out a crowd real quick because they're such profes-

'Some of the guys are there more for their physical ability but others are there because they're showmen. They've been playing with each other forso long, they know what's coming. If you're standing in a certain spot when the time comes, you're

The question asked most often is how good are the Globetrotters at playing serious basketball.

"They could play in the ABA," says Ewaskey, "but the NBA would be too good for them. They'd have to practice a couple of weeks, but there's plenty of talent on the team — good size and speed.' They'd have to work out a way to be competitive all the way rather than putting on a show. They couldn't get by with just a weave.

"But it's such an experience. I think I've grown up a lot. One of the sayings is, "The road is a monster; if you can live on the road you can do almost anything.' I'm starting to see that."

Scene has switched to New York

Is he a winner—or loser?

NEW YORK -- "He could not decide on starting personnel or anything else . . . he did nothing until the racism was revealed publicly."

Those words were written by Dave Meggyesy in "Out of Their League" about Charley Winner, then the coach of the St. Louis Cardinals, now the New York next coach. Winner's image as Weeb Ewbank's son-in-law is immaterial. For better or for worse, for a winner or a loser, he has the job. The question now is will he continue to be a coach surrounded by tur-moil? In five seasons at St. Louis, he had a winning record of 35 victories, 30 losses and 5 ties. But the Cardinals never qualified for the playoffs.

In 1970 they were leading the Eastern Division of the National Conference with an 8-2-1 record but they lost their last three games, prompting his dismissal. In 1969, when the Cardifals had a 4-9-1 record, the players mutinied. In 1967, a racial schism contributed to a 6-7-1 record.

Meggyesy recalled Larry wilson, the Cardinals' most respected player, storming into the locker room after a 1969 loss.

'Get the hell out of here," Wilson shouted at the coaches and owners. "We want to have a players" meeting right now."

Meggyesy described it as "one of the most intense" meetings in his seven seasons as a linebacker with the Cardinals.

"One by one," he wrote, "the players began to talk about Winner, how he couldn't decide on starting personnel or anything else. The majority of the players agreed he was the cause of our miserable season. We all felt there was enough talent in that room to win a championship, yet because of Winner's indecisive handling of things, we were falling apart as a team and not

According to Meggyesy, the two quarterbacks, Charley Johnson and Jim Hart, complained that Win-ner did not name the starter until the day before each

"TWO RESOLUTIONS were put forward," Meggyesy continued. "One said we knew we were a good otball team and we'd have to pull ourselves together by ourselves — that Winner could not be counted on for leadership, so we shouldn't expect it from him. The other one said specifically that the quarterbacks should sit in on all meetings pertaining to the making of the

As long as Joe Namath is healthy, Winner won't have to make a decision on the Jets' starting quarter-back. But other decisions will be necessary. And leadership is always necessary. So is an awareness of racial problems.

DAVE ANDERSON

On the Cardinals, the racial tension preceded Winner's arrival in 1966 as coach. It had been created by an assistant coach, the late Chuck Drulis, and several redneck whites. It festered during the 1967 season. When it was detailed by Jack Olsen in Sports Illustrated Magazine, Winner called a team meeting during the 1968 training camp.

"Throughout the meeting," Meggyesy wrote, "Winner was in a constant state of agitation ... he was trying to whitewash the whole thing ... he noped to solve a 10-year problem of racist behavior among coaches and white players by having the guys go down

To his credit. Winner worked hard to solve the problem. He traded some racists. Others retired. The Cardinals responded with a 9-4-1 record, his best as "IF I WERE ON the Jets," says Ernie McMillan, the black tackle of the Cardinals then and now, wouldn't be concerned about Charley Winner taking over. He inherited the Cardinals' racial situation, he didn't create it. I think he learned a lot from it. Basically, he's a good man. He's more aware now.

Even so, the black Jets will be alert to Winner's behavior. Words and actions and looks that would be inconsequential when delivered by another coach will be scrutinized when he is involved.

Namath will ease Winner's entry there too. More than any other player, the quarterback has been responsible for the Jets' racial harmony. But in his season as an assistant coach before taking command here, Charley Winner will establish himself in the eyes of the Jets - not as a son-in-law, but as a winner or a loser.

Tokyo future sports capital?

The great resurgence of Japan as a nation first struck you in 1966 when the champion Los Angeles Dodgers paid a visit to those shores for purposes; known as barnstorming.

At one stage of the trip Maury Wills, whose base stealing was to be on display at all stops, committed a thoroughly strange act. Apparently weary of geishas and sick of fish heads and rice, Maury snatched up his banjo and fled the country.

Its owner advised of this, the boiler of Walter F.

O'Malley let go. Frantic, O'Malley hastened to the pal-ace of the Emperor of Japan, whereupon he removed his shoes and entered to offer his personal apologies.

Walt, Baby," the Emperor replied, "don't give it another thought.

Quite the contrary, O'Malley gave it considerable thought. For one thing, when he finally found Wills, O'Malley applied the most serious punishment he could imagine. He traded Maury to Pittsburgh. YOU SEE, in those days O'Malley was not in the habit of taking his shoes off for just anybody. As shrewd as they come, O'Malley already knew that the next big sports explosion would take place in Japan and it has always been his practice to get in on the basement floor.

When the major leagues expand to Japan, one may expect to see O'Malley influence mixed with Oriental culture in the baseball stadium.

When National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle visited our town for Super Bowl VII, he was asked to list the communities which are candidates for professional football franchises. Of all the sites, Rozelle mentioned Hawaii early and it can't be more than a short movie subject on to Japan.

The World Hockey Association, while more interested in Europe at the outset, had a reason for choosing its name. Japan sends few heavyweight boxers, hu its fighters in lighter divisions regularly traverse the globe in search of action.

YOU NOW NOTICE where, in their first significant dabble into the area of horse racing, the Japanese haveset a record. An Englishman, acting as agent for a Japanese syndicate, the other day picked up a tab for $725,000 at the sale of the California Thoroughbred Breeders Association at Hollywood Park. This was the selling price of a seven-year-old mare named Typecast, formerly the property of the late Fletcher Jones.

In all, the Japanese unloaded nearly $1 million during only four swings of the auctioncer's gavel.

A Mr. Zenya Yoshida recently completed the pur-chase of a breeding farm in Kentucky which you would have to say cements the position of the Japanese as having arrived in horse racing. When one is in breeding, one is serious.

Actually, it may have been simply a matter of time before the arrival of the Japanese who are known as a people of great culture, refinement and human dignity. they would have to notice the massive strides in class horse racing has been taking.

A visit to Seville Row will reveal the accounts to be awash with the names of prominent horsemen. If you are waiting for a table following a useless schmear of the head waiter, it is quite likely the joint is full of Whitneys, Vanderbuilts and Fogelsons.

THERE IS drawing to a close at Los Alamitos a race meeting which was put together by a group of quarternorse owners who wished to have a place for their animals to engage in racing. These gentlemen placed $1 million up front and, like many around the race tracks, their only financial ambition was to break

At any rate, here come the Japanese. There are those, however, who will tell you this is hardly a news item. Idly, we mentioned the matter to Bill Shoemaker the other day.

"Is that so?" Bill remarked and went on to tell about being awarded a huge silver bowl for winning an important race at one of Southern California's leading tracks. While placing it on the shelf in his trophy room, Shoe noticed an imprint on the base of the bowl. You are ahead of me, of course.

It was made in Japan.

He has not said one word about any player or blamed anyone. He just suffered in silence. They talk about his lack of motivation. Have you ever watched Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys? BUGNER ADDS NEW WRINKLE IN TRAINING

LAS VEGAS (UPI) European heavyweight champion Joe Bugner introduced a new training wrinkle Saturday as he worked out for his fight with Muhammad Ali here

Bugner had a heavy punching bag set up in one corner of his regulation training ring at the Thunderbird Hotel and worked on it with both hands in a nonstop, simulated body attack.

Ali's manager, Angelo Dundee, paid a surprise visit to Bugner's camp as the 22-year-old Hungarian, now of England, was working on the big bag and jokingly shouted, "get out of that corner, Muhammad."

Stanford upends Cal

BERKELEY (A) - Rich Kelley, Stanford's .7-foot sophomore center, scored 28 points and grabbed 13 rebounds Saturday, leading the Cardinals to a 73-68 Pac-8 basketball victory over California.

Kelley had 22 points in the second hald, when his team blew a nine-point lead before coming back to win the regionally televised game. He made 11 of 15 field goal attempts in the contest.

The Cards made their Pac-8 record 2-3 and stand 9-7 for all games. Cal is 1-4'in the conference, 8-9 over-all.

Stanford trailed 38-37 at halftime, but surged to a 51-42 lead quickly in the second half. Cal then came back to lead 62-58.

The Cards regained the lead for good at 65-64 on a shot by Scott Trobbe, and Kelley scored to put Stanford ahead 67-64.

Eric Long topped Cal scorers, with 20 points. John Coughran added 15, but had only two in the second half. Freshman sensation Rickie Haw-thorne got into early four trouble and was held to trouble and was held to four points in the loss.

"That 13 minutes was the best job anyone has done on Raymond this year in man-to-man de-fense," said L.A. State coach Bob Miller.

McDonald underplayed

"It's one game," McDonaid said, "and I have to play him again. He isn't a good early player, he usually gets most of his points in the second half, so I can't really say much about today. Besides, I didn't do it by myself, I had a lot of help a few times when he beat me. We stopped him as a team, and a team will always beat one

Ernie Douse replaced McDonald and 30 seconds later fouled Lewis, who made the first two of 10 free throws he converted in the game. Tarkanian called time and for the rest of the contest the 49ers were in their 1-2-2

AMAZINGLY, in spite of the defense's accom-plishments with Lewis and an eventual 70-35 rebounding edge, the 49ers were having a hard time putting the Diablos away well into the second half.

"We did a good job on Lewis," explained Tarka-nian, "but the rest of the L.A. people played very well and when Raymond didn't have the ball, we were just standing around."

In fact, the other four Diablo starters, usually referred to as four guys named "Joe," outplayed their better-known teammate. Billy Mallory scored 16 points, Lee Denmon 18 and Alfonso Brigham 10 as the remainder of the L.A. State team shot 49 per cent (22-45) for the contest.

L.A. State was within 11, 64-53, with 13:47 remaining, but Roscoe Pondexter, who finished with 17 points and 14 rebounds, collected five points and Leonard Gray, who also had 17 points and 14 rebounds, and Douse (13 points) hit field goals for a 73-53 Long Beach advantage and the only thing left to do was to keep track of Lewis' missed shots.

Walter Kennedy, the NBA commissioner, once said, When a player signs his contract he loses his status as private citizen and becomes a special citizen with accompanying special responsibilities. He must be ware of them and respond to them. If he doesn't, he's doing a disservice to the sport he represents...and to

Unfortunately, few NBA players put Kennedy's words into action. They place a price tag on everything they do. They feel no great obligation to uplift society. They staunchly defend their right to privacy. They hire cores of attorneys, agents and public relations firms for one purpose—to turn their popularity into dollars.

There are exceptions, however, and one of them is Spencer Haywood, Seattle's all-star forward. At 23, this young man is a concerned clitzen whose book, "Stand Up for Something," reflects his personal beliefs on how an afficient athlete should react in his community.

Haywood has financial security from a $250,000 per year contract. He has provided his mother, sister and brothers with material items to insure their comfort. Now he has turned his time and money toward improv-

"I want to be a doer, to get programs started," Haywood says. "I think it's important for me to stay in Seattle in the off-season to help improve things. Any athlete or entertainer just about has to take a stand."

HAYWOOD HAS TAKEN SOME strong stands, not all of them popular. For instance, he has criticized police harrassment of blacks, based on the fact that he was stopped 18 times for no apparent reason except that he drives a $13,000 Cadillac and blacks aren't supposed to ostentatious.

Haywood's criticism is generally constructive, and he realizes his limitations, as he revealed recently in a national publication when he said:

I'm still way behind in my education. I'm trying to gain knowledge in reading and writing...just trying to catch up. I lost eight or nine years in Mississippi because of the schools there.

"The players today are different than the oldtimers. We're all trying to gain expertise for a future profession. We know we have a limited life span in basketball. I can make this amount of money for 10 years at the most, then I've got to do something else.

"I spend a lot of time in the Central area and I see a lot of police brutality. There are good cops and a lot of bad ones, too. I don't dig the community fighting the police and the police fighting the community. In Detroit (where Spencer attended college), police will give the people more respect. BOOK REVIEWS:

Haywood's book is just one of dozens to hit the newsstands in the last six months. The best, by a small margin, is "Foul" by David Wolf. It is the life story of Connie Hawkins and tells of his troubled, early years in

There are two books on the Lakers, one called "The Fabulous Lakers" and written by a Long Beach man, Mery Harris. It traces the history of the Lakers from Minneapolis through the 1972 championship season. Prolific Bill Libby, who has written books on Jerry West, Rod Hundley and Rick Barry, has one out called "We Love You Lakers." Libby and West just published a manual on basketball fundamentals.

The The best seller of all may be Wilt Chambertain's autobiography, written by David Shaw, a former I.P-T employe. Only two chapters are compete but Wilt hopes to have it finished by the end of this season. Also, Chamberlain's "The Possible Dream," a pictorial story of his million-dollar mansion in Bel Air, is worth the price. Wat says the bulk of the proceeds of this book rring to chaulty.

QUOTABLE QUOTES:

Tex Winter, former Houston coach on Eric McWilliams: "He'll be able to stick in the pros only if he develops an outside jump shot. He rebounds well, plays defense okay and has a good attitude. I think Johnny Egan is going to give him a chance in the next few weeks to see what he can do.

Bob Wolf, Milwaukee Journal writer on Chuck Terry: "He's Milwaukee's last man now. For some reason he has lost his confidence. But, frankly, I don't think he has enough fire and aggressiveness."

Bill Bridges, on playing with the Lakers: "I've never thought of playoff money. I've always had one dream: to sit in the dressing room knowing I've won a world championship. As a pro, what else can I get from the game at this point? Money and recognition I've had. The feeling of being a champion is all that's left.

had. The feeling of being a champion is all that's left.

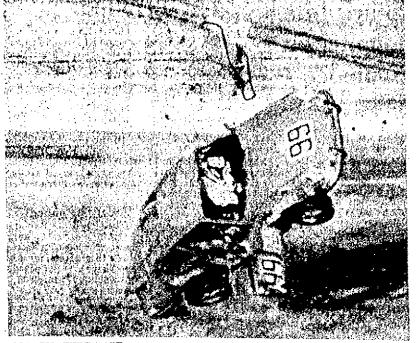

SHORT SHOTS: Lakers Jerry West and Wilt Chamberlain are among 21 athletes who have been nominated for the first Gillette Cavalcade of Champions Award. The other basketball nominee is Karcem Abdul-Jabbar. The winner in the seven different sports categories will be announced on the Bob Hope TV Special March 27. In addition to a trophy-each award carries a Gillette grant of $5,000 to be presented in the addite's name to a local or national physical fitness or youth program of his designation. Baltimore center Wes Unseld has been chosen winner of the Big Brothers of Maryland Award for 1972 for his contributions to civic causes.

The team with the fewest ball-control errors usually has the best won-lost record, right? Not necessarily. The Lakers rank 15th, third from the bottom, with an average of 23.4 miscues a game while Boston is antih with a 20.9 average. The best are New York at 16.5 and Chicago at 16.6. Houston does not have a winning record but is third in fewest mistakes with 18.6. Kansas City coach Bob Cousy is going to wear out Nale Archibald before the season is over. The little guard has played a full 48 minutes 27 times. Next closest with 10 is Nate Thurniand. Five NBA stars were asked to pick their toughest opponent over the last few years. Here's how they tabbed them: Jerry West chose Oscar Robertson; Kareem Abdul-Jabbar picked Nate Thurniand; Dave DeBusschere selected Spencer Haywood: John Havlicek chose Bill Bradley; and Walt Frazier tabbed Dick Van Arsdale.

Foreman almost threw in towel before big fight

Heavyweight champion George Foreman, in a copyrighted story in today's Oakland Tribune, said he almost quit boxing last October two days after signing to meet Joe Frazier for the title.

Foreman, who won the title from Frazier in Jamaica on Jan. 22, wanted to quit, according to the story by Tribune sports writer Paul McCarthy, because he was disillusioned over a suit being brought against him by his backers.
"I didn't want to fight

Joe Frazier," Foreman something."

Moore, the former light heavyweight champion. helped train Foreman for his heavyweight title bout with Joe Frazier, and was in Foreman's corner in Kingston, Jamaica, last month when he stunned the boxing world by knocking out the previous-ly unbeaten champion in the second round.

Sometime before the fight, Moore said in an interview, he and Fore-man had the following dialogue:

"Hit him on top of the head," Moore said. "That sounds crazy

"George, have you ever been to a slaughterhouse?''

Yes." "Where do they hit the steers when they kill

Of course, the punch wouldn't work for just anyone, Moore conceded.

"His power is just awesome," he said of Foreman. "It was just a matter of coordinating his punching.' Personally, Moore is just as impressed. "George is quiet, sub-tle; he is water that runs deep," he said. "He's also raw and gutsy."

What further advice does he have for the new champion?

Foreman should continue to "get himself together, to sharpen his skills," Moore said. And, for the time being, it's "nice advice" to stay away from Muhammad Ali.

But with further improvement, Moore said, Foreman won't have to stay away from anyone.

ney Oldfield, now a director with Litton Industries in Los Angeles. "I knew I could beat him, but too many people had got their hands in and I didn't want to be another sad story for people to write about.

Foreman said Oldfield convinced him he should go ahead and fight Frazier hecause if he didn't people will always say

"And there I'd be," Foreman said, "back proving myself all over again."
McCarthy described the events peading up to Foreman's indecision this way: -George and manager Dick Sadler were being sued for $200,000 by a pair of general partners in George Foreman Associates - Martin Erlichman and David Miller. Yancey Durham, Frazi-er's manager reported a suit filed againt Frazier's own lawyer, Bruce R. Wright, a threat against the Foreman fight. Foreman field a counter breach-of-contract suit for $1 million from Erlichman and Miller.-

Foreman was upset when fans in Salt Lake City coold him after he knocked out Terry Sorrels in Oct. 10 in the second round for his 37th victory in a row.

Even while the lawsuits were eventually being settled, Foreman remained

"One guy got $9,000, one got $6,000," he said, "and I didn't even fight yet. It was a strain on me, my wife was pregnant and I didn't even know if I had a fight or not.
"WITH all this, thought things was just cavin' in, you know. I said what is all this? I read in the papers that Joe Frazier is supposed to fight me and then I see where this suit was coming' up and so many people got their hands into my money I might just be fightin' for the title, no money."

A short time later, while working out in Houston, Foreman saw his loyal doberman, named Bells, killed when hit by an automobile, and according to McCarthy, it had a great effect upon him.

"He was a good dog, one I loved more than any person, I'm embarrassed to say,' Foreman said of the incident. "At that point I said, you know, all these things had happened to me and I never thought that I would lose something close to me.

"That could have been my mother, that could have been me, that could have been my wife or my brother. You know life. I'm thinkin' things are so terrible, but what if someone dies.
"So I said to myseli,

'listen, everything's just fine.' It's all behind me

Threes with ease

The old saying is "different strokes for different folks." So the way I play the par-3 holes isn't like. George Archer's way, for instance.

One thing, I don't use a wooden tee on a par 3 where I hit a 4-iron on up. I do use a tee for 2 or 3-iron

Most golfers look at one of those shorties and think. "Hello, hole-in-one." Then they don't stay down on the shot. They're trying to see where it's going, so they come up short.

I HIT OFF the grass (except on long irons) because I get more distance without the tee. And it helps me concentrate on hitting down on the ball.

Don't let bunkers, ponds, trees or blondes distract. you on the short holes. If it's a 4-iron across a lake, with traps guarding the green, just think to yourself, "It's a 4-iron and there's nothing out there but fairway." If you hit it right, Old Tom Morris's ghost can do the Highland Fling on the green and you'll still make par.

A ball doesn't know if it's flying over the Rio Grande or a hackberry tree. But you do. Visualize your shot as if it's all fairway — then hit it in the middle.

Shark bite tougher on

By AL LARSON Staff Writer

Has the L.A. Sports Arena ice suddenly be-come a welcome sight to the Sharks?

Coach Terry Slater's skaters go in quest of their fourth consecutive win and third in a row at home tonight when they play the New England Whalers in a 7 o'clock match.

The Sharks are coming off an impressive 3-1 tri-umph which knocked the Whalers out of first place in the WHA East.

'We're playing our best hockey of the year," Slater said trying to mask his pleasure over Friday's win before the Sharks' second largest home crowd of the season, 7,246. This lifted their home attendance for 24 games to 127,175, an average of "THE BIG reason we're going so good now is George Gardner's im-proved play. He's not letting anyone get the big goal. Also, our defense has been playing well. We checked so well Friday that New England could get off only 14 shots."

Stater admittedly is not the most sympathic man. "Gardner complained of an ear infection and asked to come out after the sec-ond period. But I told him to get back in the nets. I didn't want a letdown by inserting Russ (Gillow)."

Gardner was to see a doctor Saturday and hopefully would be able to play tonight.

The win improved the Sharks' home record to 10-13-1 and enabled them to level their Western Division mark at 24-24-4. New England is second with a 31-20-1 record. The Sharks now enjoy a 2-1 edge over the Whalers this season and a victory tonight would mark the first time they've put together a three-game win streak at home.

SHARK BITES: WHA dresident Gary Davidson said the league has succeeded beyond expectations. "We projected an attendance figure of two million and I think we't hit 2½ million our first year. At the outset, we would have been happy if the Sharks averaged 4,000. They're averaging 5,300 now and are one of the most solid clubs in the league." Davidson said bids still were being heard for the owner-less New York Raiders and that the Ottawa situation remain unsettled. "It's possible the franchise won't be moved from Ottawa now that they're starting the draw better."

Pardee now Skin coach

WASHINGTON (UPI) Veteran linebacker Jack Pardee has assumed the duties of defensive coach on the defection-riddled staff of the Washington Redskins, head coach George Allen said Saturday.

Pardee would be a player-coach if he decides to play his 16th season next fall, Allen said, indicating that the former allpro has yet to make up his mind on whether he remain on sidelines.

After the Super Bowl, Pardee said he planned to stop playing, but people close to the team say Allen could probably change his longtime disciple's mind, if he wants to.

IN ANY case, Parde will be filling the gap left by defensive assistant Ralph Hawkins, who will coach the secondary in place of Charley Winner, one of five Redskin assistants to quit since the Super Bowl.

The latest defector, pass-receiving coach Boyd Dowler, said Friday that he is leaving to take another coaching job in the National Football League, but did not say where.

Winner will be an assistant coach with the New York Jets next season and take over from head coach Weeb Ewbank when he retires in 1974.

Two other graduates of Allen's coaching system will be heading their own teams next year - Mike with the McCormack Philadelphia Eagles and Mary Levi with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football may have missed his calling.

Instead of trailering his 220-inch, Dodge-powered top fuel dragster all the way from Seffner, Fla., "Big Daddy" should have shown up at the L.A. County Fairgrounds in Pomona with one of those flat-bottom hydrofoils used by the U.S. Park Rangers to police the Florida Everglades-you know, the kind with the big propeller in the rear.

Who knows, but maybe the 41-year-old veteran would have set low elapsed time of the 13th National Hot Rod Assn. Winternationals-because that's the only kind of vehicle which would have been capable of turning in a qualifying run after Saturday's seasonal storm dumped more than an inch of rain over the storm Southland, forcing NHRA officials to secure the track shortly before noon. It obliterated five hours of crucial qualifying time.

However, Wally Parks, president of the one million-member NHRA, said today's finals of the $306,000 event-the first of eight major NHRA championships and 35 World Championship Series races for the 1973 season -would be held as sched-uled. That is, barring any further interruption by the weather.

State Golden Glove tourney in Anaheim

The 1973 California Golden Gloves Championship fights will be staged in the Anaheim Convention Center Arena Monday, Feb. 26, at 8 p.m. The card will feature 20 bouts in both novice and categories. Winners of the California Championships will get a shot at national honors when Golden Gloves stages its national championships in Lowell, Mass., starting March 19.

ing Sunday (today) as soon as there's enough light to conduct the event safely," said Parks, "I should think that would be around 7:30 or so. Actual-ly, we're in better shape now than we were in 1965.

Parks alluded to the time eight years ago when a similar Saturday succumbed to the clements and the NHRA staff set a record the next day they probably wouldn't like to repeat—combining 'two days of racing into one.

On that particular Sun-day, a total of 3,168 runs: against the clock were officially recorded in a marathon 9-hour session for an average of 5.2 cars per minute!

This year's event-expected to draw upwards of 55,000 spectators—isn't in jeopardy of challenging the record. Before Saturday's rains came pelting down, virtually inundating the track, more than 4 ½ hours of class eliminations in stock, super stock, compe-tition and modified elimiand qualifying rounds for the professional top fuel, funny car and pro stockers took place.

"We only have 16 class elimination races yet to be completed and that should take less than one hour," explained NHRA executive director Jack Hart. "After that we can concentrate on qualifying more pro cars. We already have full fields in the pro categories, so there's really no problem, providing it doesn't rain anymore. Under the NHRA's revised format for today, the top eight qualifiers in funny car, the top 16 in top fuel and 26 of the 32 qualifiers in pro stock are secured (cannot be bump-ed) and automatically advance to the 11 a.m. eliminations. All the remaining cars will be pooled together in the staging lanes and given a final, one-shot attempt to join their respective eliminator fields.

If the rain wasn't enough to contend with drivers found the normal-"good" Pomona asphalt almost unbearableeven despite repeated applications of VHT traction compound-and it showed in their elapsed times.

Prudhommethree-time Indy Nationals champion from Granada Hills-is the No. 1 qualifier (believe it or not) in top fuel, having posted an horrendous 6.752 clocking through the traps only minutes before the sky opened up and the remainder of Saturday's program was washed out.

Only seven of the top 32 top fuel qualifiers were able to break into the sixes—and that's quite a far cry from Don Moody's existing NHRA elapsed time record of 6.134 seconds set two months ago at the now-defunct Lions Drag Strip.

John Zendejas, an assistant to director of competition Steve Gibbs and one of those responsible for the maintenance of the track, explained a few of his hirelings committed a blunder during prepara-tion of the track over the past six weeks.
"We were faced with a 7-year accumulation of rubber that we wanted to grind off," said Zendejas. But unfortunately the fellows with the grinding machines took some of the asphalt off, too. I was-

Single Agent splashes to win

Single Agent scored the third stakes victory of his career at Santa Anita Saturday when he splashed to an easy victory in the 36th running of the $56,350 San Pasqual Handicap over a rain-soaked

It was Single Agent's first triumph since last March, when he captured the San Simeon Handicap here. A year earlier he won the Los Feliz Stakes over the same track.

Kennedy Road tried to stay with the front-running winner but Single Agent drew away by 31/2 lengths at the finish. Autobiography, the 1972 Eclipse award winner as the top handicap horse of the year, was third in his first 1973 start with Tuqui II fourth in the field of Rain which began falling prior to the first race led to the declaration of Crusading, Class A and Figonero from the race.

Single Agent returned $11.20, $4.40 and $2.60, Kennedy Road paid $3.20 and $2.40, while Autobiography, the 3-2 favorite of the rain-soaked crowd of slightly more than 30,000, returned $2.60.

Despite the condition of the track, Single Agent raced the 1 1/16 miles in the good time of 1:41 4/5.

Jerry Lambert sent Single Agent driving for the lead as the small field broke from the gate. Kennedy Road, with Don Pierce substituting for the injured Bill Shoemaker. swung in behind and it was a two-horse race virtually all the way.

Autobiography was next to last in the early stages and made a belated move but was more than four lengths back of the win-

Single Agent, owned by the partnership of Nicholas Marsch and Frank Marshall, earned $33,850 and stamped himself as a contender for richer races later in the meeting.

Last year, Single Agent earned $103,700, although he won only one stakes race in three victories. The 5-year-old is a son of Aegean Isle and was bred in California by his owners.

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)

— Darby Dan Farms'
True Knight, running his first race since last November, shouldered the high weight in the mud Saturday and ran down a classy field in the $64,000 Seminole Handicap at Hialeah Park.

RACE ROUNDUP

True Knight's victory was both sweet and bitter for the new president of Hialeah, John W. Galbreath, who owns Darby Dan. Galbreath's royally-bred His Majesty broke down on the turn into the stretch after setting the pace to that point. .

The Darby Dan pair were favored by the crowd of 18,173 and True Knight returned $4.40, $2.60 and $2.20 across the son of Chateaugay.

Although there have been no advance commitments from Washington, Hope says ne expects Vice President Sprio Agnew to be on hand for Saturday's round at Bermuda Dunes. Agnew has played in the Hope tournament in recent years. Nicklaus, who has won most major events in his career, including the 1963 Desert Classic, ranks as a favorite for this year's $32,000 first prize from a total $160,000 purse.

Nicklaus should be well rested for the tour's longest tournament. He skipped the Hawaiian Open after scoring a playoff triumph two weeks ago in Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am.

Palmer ranks as the only four-time winner of the Hope—1960, 62, 68, 71 — and has collected more than $95,000 from Classic purse.

Two-time Classic winner Billy Casper, 1965 and 1969, has entered along with defending champion, Bob Rosburg.

Prospects bright for Oilers, Patriots

The draft—how each club helped itself

Scouting reports have been put away and Na-tional Football League clubs are getting down to the task of signing their college draft choices. For many clubs, notably the Houston Ollers and the New England Patriots, draft provides a bright prospect for the fu-

Here is a capsule summary of how each club helped itself with this year's draft and related trades:

LOS ANGELES - The Rams picked up veteran quarterback John Hadl from San Diego and grabbed another promising passer, Ron Jaworski of Youngstown State, early, so Roman Gabriel's days may be numbered. Defensive back Cullen Bryant of Colorado and linebacker Jim Youngblood of Tennessee Tech come highly recommended. highly recommended. Chuck Knox started cleaning house by trading off three vets for draft choices and it may be a trend.

ATLANTA - Picked up a load of defensive line at tackle by obtaining Mike Tilleman from Houston and making Greg Mark of Notre Dame its top pick. Combined with Claude Humphrey and John Zook, the Falcons could have one of the top front fours in the league Wary, very soon.

BALTIMORE -General Manager Joe Thomas cleaned house, sending quarterback John Unitas and running back Tom Matte to San Diego, ceπter Bill Curry to Houston, running back Norm Bu-laich to Philadelphia and defensive end Billy Newsome to New Orleans. Thomas began rebuilding by taking LSU quarter-back Bert Jones and Syracuse defensive tackle Joe Ehrmann on the first round, Veteran Fred Hoag-Iln was obtained from Cleveland to replace

BUFFALO - The Bills' offensive line was decimated by injuries last season and Buffalo went

Milburn: I'll play pro ball

Associated Press Olympic hurdles champion Rod Milburn of Southern University doesn't plan to go the way of many college track stars who failed to survive professional

"Trigure I can be as good at pro football as anybody else if I work at it," said Milburn, drafted by the last week's National Football League draft. "I kind of feel I can make it the first Milburn, the world record helder in the 110meter hurdles, said some track stars failed to make the pros because they didn't want to badly enough.

"IF you want to excel in another sport, it's up to you to make it," Milburn said. "That's one reason some track gnys don't make it. They don't want to badly

"I feel like I can hit someone else just as hard as he can hit me," the 6-foot 180 pounder said.

Milburn played free safety and wide receiver three years in school but had only one year's experience at Southern, his senior year.

Milburn said he was used mostly as a decoy at Southern last season as a reserve wide receiver.

"The first thing I've got to do is work on funda-mentals," Milburn said. "I haven't learned all the alechniques yet.

"I try to get out about Three-quarter speed kind of as a gimmick and then turn on the speed."

Milburn won the gold medal in the 110-meter hurdles at the 1972 Games.

CHICAGO - The Bears got the top quality pass rusher they needed in Wally Chambers of Eastern Kentucky and also grabbed Gary Huff, a quarterback who can throw, from Florida State. Huff could get the Bears to move Bobby Douglass to running back. Purdue tackle Gary Hrivnak and UCLA back Alan Ellis could be big surprises on defense. Offensively, the Bears hope Carl Garrett, the controversial running back obtained from New England, can provide the explosive punch lost with Gale Sayers two years

CINCINNATI - The Bengals feel they've gotten the speedburner wide receiver they wanted in Isaac Curtis of San Diego State and picked up a strong backup tight end in Albert Chandler of Oklahoma. Tim George, anoth-Carson Newman, could be a big surprise.

CLEVELAND - Like the Bengals, the Browns got their speed at receiver in Steve Holden of Arizona State and helped their offensive line with Southern Cal guard Pete Adams. The Browns took Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt as a running back and it could be an interesting experiment. Don Horn was acquired from Denver as a backup man for quarterback Mike Phipps.

DALLAS - Billy Joe Dupree of Michigan State should provide a new dimension at tight end he's big, fast and can catch. Second choice Golden Richards of Hawaii is a superb athlete but he'll be battling a half dozen other more experiwide receivers. Third pick Harvey Martin of East Texas State could surprise on the defensive DENVER - Purdue's Olis Armstrong will join Floyd Little and Bob Anderson to give the Broncos three solid running backs and Barney Chayous of South Carolina State could be the big guy Denver has been looking for on the defensive line since Rich Jackson was dealt away. John Ralston went heavily for defensive players.

DETROIT - The defensive line did nothing last season and the Lions are hoping big Ernest Price of Texas A&I can add some new life. Five of the first seven picks were defensive players so it's not hard to figure what new coach Don McCafferty thinks was wrong with the GREEN BAY — The Packers wanted the home run receiver and feel they have him in Barry Smith of Florida State. Four of Green Bay's next six picks were linebackers so there should be some changes there. The Packalso traded for two veteran defensive linemen— Aaron Brown from Kansas City and Carlton Oats from Oakland.

HOUSTON - The Oilers had first pick and made some superb choices.
John Matuszak, the No. 1 pick from Tampa, should start immediately in the defensive line and George Amundson of Iowa State should break in at running back. Linebacker Greg Bingham of Purdue and wide receiver Edesel Garrison of Southern Cal could step right in, too. Veteran Bill Curry will lend a stabilizing influence at center.

KANSAS CITY — Top pick Gary Butler of Rice could move in as starting tight end, a sore spot recently for the Chiefs, Paul Krause, an offensive tackle from Central Michigan, is a good bet for the fu-ture. The Chiefs also picked up Willie Ellison from the Rams and he may up the running MIAMI — The Dolphins already have one of the hest-balanced clubs in the league and didn't pick until 52nd because of an earlier trade for Marlin Briscoe. The one interesting pick is Don Strock, the nation's total offense leader and No. 1 passer from Virginia Tech. He could be important if Earl Morrall decides to retire.

MINNESOTA .- The Viking running game fell down last season and they're looking for burly Chuck Foreman of Miami (Fla.) to pick up the slack A good dark horse pick might be Mike Wells of Illinois, who could move in as No. 2 quarterback behind Fran Tarkenton.

NEW ORLEANS - The Saints also will have a new look in "73. Billy Newsome comes from Baltimore to add strength to the defensive line and the club's top two picks also were big defenders; Steve Baumgartner of Purdue and Derland Moore of Oklahoma. Pete Van Valkenburg, the nation's top rusher from Brigham Young, has a good shot at starting.

NEW YORK GIANTS The Giants had an excellent draft on paper. The big problem will be getting their top choices on the field. Top pick Brad Van Pelt, a linebacker from Michigan State, is debating between a football or baseball career He turned down a $100,000 baseball ofter from the Angels last season. Next pick, Rich Glover, the nation's outstanding lineman from Nebraska, has no real position in the pros and may go to Canada, where his talents are better suited. Next choice Leon McQuay, a running back from Tampa, al-ready is in Canada and two more seasons.

NEW YORK JETS The Jets went right to their weakness - defense. They traded with New Orleans for the big, tough lineman they needed -Richard Neal - and secondary depth - Delles Howell - and made Burgess Owens, probably the best college defensive back in the country, their top pick. There could be a lot of maneuvering next season in the Jets' de-OAKLAND -- The Raiders, who traditionally come up with superb picks, may have another in Ray Guy, a punter-defensive back from defensive back from Southern Mississippi. But like Van Pelt, Guy has a big baseball offer.

PHILADELPHIA Quarterback John Reaves claimed he needed protection and the Eagles went out and got some. They took tackle Jerry Sise more from Texas, tight Charles Young of Southern California and guard Guy Morris Texas Christian, three outstanding blockers, as their first three picks.

Miami, the Steelers are well-balanced and solid almost everywhere be-cause of successful drafting lately. The defense-minded Steelers went neavily toward that phase of their game, with two defensive backs, James Thomas of Florida State and Ken Phares of Mississippi State, their top picks. But there won't be too many new faces on the Pittsburgh roster next season. ST. Bradley: Sure we can beat the Russians

By JOHN DIXON

Whether it's emptying vodka bottles or playing water polo, you can't beat the Russlans at their own game. Or can you? A hastily thrown together United States team will endeavor to pull a George Fixemen against Russia's Olympic Games water poly champions Thursday night (8 p.m.) at Belmont Phasa Olympic Pool. Can the U.S. win? Sure, we can win, "insists the Yank bellwether, Bruce Bradley. I wouldn't be playing if I didn't think we could with Bradley, a student of psychology at Long Beach State, will team up with such athletes as James Perguson, econonics, UCLA '72; Peter Asch, business administration, Cal-Berkeley, '11; Barry Wellzenberg, industrial engineering, Cal-Berkeley, '19; Kevin Craig, physiology, UCLA '73, and John Schmidt, San Jose school teacher.

THE RUSSIANS graduated cum laude with degrees in water polo. They all live in Moscow," says Bradley. "I don't know that they have any jobs other than water polo. In Europe, there's competition throughout the winter. In the spring, they hold Tickets for Thursday's 8 p.m. game will be sold at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool only on game night. They are priced at $5 adults, $3 students, $2 under 12. The teams meet again at Newport Harbor High Saturday at 8 p.m., Sunday at 2 p.m.

the European Championships." Sounds like the Yanks will be just another cup of borsch for the Russians. Not at all," analyzes Bradley, leading scorer in the championship bracket of the Olympic Games water polo. It will be a hard game. If we were as prepared as we were in Munich, and the game were in the United States, I think that we would have a lot easier time than we did in the Olympics (the U.S. was the dominant team in a 6-6

"FIVE OF us played against the Russians in Munich for the first time. We know what to expect of them as individuals and as a team. We have confidence. By substituting, we can be as physical as they are. We'll keep scrapping away. In Munich, Russia and Hungary were the most physical teams we played, but Hungary was more polished. The Russians were quite nervous when they played us, They were getting close to a medal. They had reason to fear losing. They had every right to lose." Europeans play a conservative game," pointed out Bradley, a veteran of 60 international matches since graduating from Millikan High in 1964. "We press and use a fast break. We have some very fast guys like Pete Schnugg of California. I think that we can give them a few surprises." U.S. squad members are priming under Olympic coach Monte Nitzkowski of Long Beach City College this weekend in Berkeley. We're just getting our system down," says Bradley. "Because we're not in Olympic condition, we'll probably use a different game plan. We'll be subbing more. I think that our main weakness will be offensive punch. Some of our great players like (Olympians) Gary Sheerer, Stan Cole and Russ Webb won't be there.'

BRADLEY, 12 units distant from a masters degree in psychology, contemplated retirement follow-United States' third place award in the Olympic Games. The Russians offered a challenge he could not turn down. I've been swimming 4,000 yards three or four times a week. Recently, my workouts have been a little more intense. Against the Russians, I'll be in good enough shape to be effective, but my entire game won't be as effective as it was in Munich.

Clydesdales a rodeo treat

There's only a handful of men in the world capa-ble of handling a "Six-in-Hand" team of giant Clydesdale horses.

One of them will be one of the specialty acts at the 11th annual Golden State Rodeo Feb. 23-25 in the Long Beach Arena. Cotton Rosser, managing director of the rodeo, said Louis Silva of Hayward "is probably the best man I can get to show these spectacular horses.1

Silva will direct not six, but eight of the mammoth animals through difficult maneuvers with a climax that will surprise the audience. Tickets for the $15,000, 200-cowboy show are priced from $2.50 to $5. They are on sale at the Arena and all Southland ticket outlets.

Armstrong proves Compton boobooed

By GARY ELLIS Staff Writer

Palm Springs is noted for its plush golf courses, and healthy climate. But its biggest sports asset may be the relocation of one of the best high school basketball coaches in the business. Bill Armstrong is a legend. His Compton High teams set a CIF record for most consecu-A titles in 1958, 61, 63, 68 and 69 and captured 12 of 14 league titles. The other two years the Tarbabes finished second. During his 26-year coaching ca-reer, Armstrong's teams have won 19 league titles, taken second six times and finished third once. His record speaks for it-self. Unfortunately, the win-loss mark was misleading to several administrators. They somehow felt that with talent any coach could win. Time has proven that axiom wrong. After his departure from Compton Armstrong applied in the immediate area for a position. One school had hired him, but let Armstrong go before the year started. So Armstrong packed up and headed for Palm Springs, land of plenty. It may have been Armstrong who brought the wealth to the area. Last year his team finished second and advanced to the CIF quarterfinals and year his Palm record. "In all tr uthfulness, I was bitter at first about the situation," said Armstrong. "But as far as I'm concerned now, it was all for the best. I like what we have over here and I couldn't ask for a better bunch of kids." An example of the respect Armstrong brings may be illustrated by last week's by his performance players. Armstrong was in West Virginia attending the funeral of his mother and after a win his players called him long distance to give him the results. "They went out of their way for me. I'm very proud of the type of players we have. They appreciate what we're trying to do. If an opening came up somewhere else, I'm not sure if I'd want to leave. My wife said "You may want to move but I'm staying right here,' Armstrong laughed. "There is absolutely no place like this. We have a ested in trying to im-prove." Much like the old New York Yankee manager, Casey Stengel, most people thought the only job Armstrong had at Compton was filling out the lineup card.

"I BELIEVE a team must be well-drilled in fundamentals. You won't win close games against good teams without fundamentals. I may be wrong but I still think that you must have a good fast-break offense. I don't know why a lot of coaches don't use it. Our fast break contributes to our success along with our sidelines break. It keeps other teams from doing some of the things of which they may be capa-

"We spend a great deal of time on technique, shooting and little things. A lot of coaches won't bother a boy who can shoot fairly well. We try to dabble around working on the shooting followthrough. This year we're shooting at a .470 clip and averaging 74 noints a game (the tallest player is 6-3 and the smallest starter is 5-10). I've always looked for the little things -the big things everyone does. Little things make the difference. We try to adjust if we're faced with a new situation we haven't covered. If I find something going on I may have to tell the players to adjust. The players have to accept it.

"AT COMPTON, in the OIF finals against Ramona, I spotted something in the second quarter. At halftime I diagrammed the situation. Our offense, had never tried it before but at the start of the third quarter we scored three out of the first four times we had the ball and went on to win." Then, could Armstrong's success be attributed to little things? Success is anything but little. This year, 24 former Armstrong students are playing basketball in codege, including Buff Burell at USC and Larry Hollyfield at UCLA. Freddie Goss is a coach at UC Riverside and two more of his players -Mary Fleming and Roy Jefferson-participated in the Super Bowl. When will it all end? "Why relies when you enjoy what you're doing?" Armstrong. asked. "As long as I have good health and enjoy the game I won't retire. I know it's all got to end but I'm not going to rush

No coot shoot for California

While trying to clear my desk of many letters, publicity releases and show photographs Friday, a tele-phone caller demanded: "Why the hell don't you print something about the coot hunting season?

I was rather startled, but ready for that one be-cause there are no plans to stage special coot shoots anywhere in California at this writing. What's more, there orthably won't be any. In part years it has been customery for the federal government—and it must be the federal, not the state—to issue special depredation orders to permit the taking of cools hat were damaging crops. Such orders usually come after the close of the migratory waterlowl hunting seasons.

I might point out that permits for special shoots may be issued to land owners and farmers who prove that coots (mudhens, if you wish to call 'em that) are damaging crops. However, such orders can not embrace the shooting of thousands upon thousands of such birds, and the orders can not be issued to the general

A farmer has the option of permitting shooting if he obtains such permits, but so far this year, no one has complained. Application for the special shoots can be made to either the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service or to the Department of Fish and Game

BOTH HUNTING PRESSURE AND the number of waterfowl killed declined in the season just ended in California. The number of hunters was down three per cent from last year's record high of 111,035 in the previous season. Here are the figures as released by the Department of Fish and Game: 107,546 hunters used the 15 state and federal shooting areas and downed 181,486 ducks, 9,582 geese and 6,849 cools, a total of 197,917 birds for an average of 1.8 birds per hunter. The kill represented a drop of 24 per cent from the 262,353 birds shot in the 1971-72 season.

The DFG spokesman said that the closure of Sut-ter, Delevan, Grizzly Island and Colusa areas because of flooding near the end of the season had much to do with the decline in the kill. Yet, the waterfowl population was estimated at about the same as in the previous season. Best success was in the Colusa area, where the average was 2.8 birds per hunter. The largest number of hunters and birds was reported from Grizziy Island.

Incidentally, Grizzly Island was to have been the scene of a big jackrabbit shoot in late January, but flooding in the north caused a change in plans. The shoot now is scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday. However, Grizzly, which is 10 miles southeast of Fair-field, is out of driving range of Southern Californians.

WHEN THE NAME "OLIN" IS INJECTED into conversation where there are hunters or trap and skeet shooters, there is only one thought: Olin is the parent conglomerate controlling Winchester and Western. Yet, there is a division called the Signal Products Operation of Olin's Energy Systems which produces a variety of marine kits for pleasure boating. In those kits are meteor and parachute flares with 10,000 and 20,000-candlelight power, smoke flares and hand-field flares. That division of Olin has been awarding a Marine Safety Trophy for five years, this being the fifth. It was my pleasure to see the award go to Mary E. Howes, a layout engineer with the Boeing Company in Seattle, at a reception held in New York in connection with the National Boat Show.

Howes is a volunteer operations officer of the 13th Coast Guard District, U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, which covers the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Big Horn County in Wyoming. Any at-tempt to enumerate the hours upon hours that Howes has spent in the promotion of boating safety in the northwest would take columns of space. A handsome clock and barometer for his power boat made a beauti-

Howes and his wife live at Redondo, Wash., near Seattle. They flew to New York for a brief stay and the award was made by Robert C. Menken, vice president of the Olin Corporation's Energy Systems.

THERE WERE OTHER AWARDS made in connection with the National Boat Show. Florida XI.I, U.S.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, Clearwater, Fla., got the National Gold Cup for public education, courtesy motorboat examination and search and rescue efforts.

The Sandusky, Ohio, Register won in the press category for a series of safe-boating articles by Charlie Lewis, that newspaper's boating editor. The Illinois Conservation Department won an award for its safeboating educational program in schools ranging from junior high through the college level. More than 42,000 students took part in the program.

The National Assn. of Engine and Boat Manufacturers gave two high awards in addition to the one which I received. Nancy L. Jaslow, a graduate student Thomas Fleming Day Scholarship, which included a $500 grant and a one-month work opportunity with H. uno and Associates, Inc., public relations firm for NAEBM.

Armand Hauser, NAEBM president, presented a silver tray to James R. McQueen, president of Trojan Yachts, who was stepping down from the board of directors after 11 years of service. Somebody should have given a trophy to Ralph Ianuzzi, chief of operations of Brune and Associates. He did an outstanding job of coordinating all the various programs and presentations that went along with the National Boat

"You'll have to admit that it's something that not everyone does," said Bruce Monroe of Seal Beach in explaining why he and his wife, Corinne, spent a month's vacation trekking in the remote. West Nepal-Karnali Zone of the Himalayas.

"In a sense it's a last frontier and as such something to be conquered. Physically, it's the furthest you can go from the United States and we found that it's one place that man can go to really get away from things."

-THE IDEA FOR the trek (the term used for hiking in the Himalayas) was originally planted by Corinne when she suggested that they consider doing something different for their vacation this year. The couple, both avid sailors, had spent almost every vacation since their marriage at sea level, cruising around such ports of call as the Virgin Islands and

LÉTTERS ABROAD

Program puts friendship in writing

By PATRICIA McCORMACK UPI Family News Editor

NEW YORK - An American student of French sharpens his skills at the language by gaining a pen friend in Paris, another student.

In another high school, a student in Spanish corresponds with a student the same age in Mexico. The gain: language skill.

It works two ways. In Japan or Germany, stu-dents studying English will seek American corre-spondents willing to write in English.

The language-polishing aspect of an international pen friend organization, Letters Abroad, is among many of the bonuses inherent to participants. Last year, Letters Abroad matched 43,592 pen friends — compared to 41,590 in the previous year.

Mrs. Eleanor Ulrich, Letters Abroad vice president, oversees the matching operation. A widow, she does not get paid.

Around the world, Mrs. Ulrich over the years since the early 50s has matched beekeepers with beekeepers, policemen with policemen, chess players with chess players.

This year the one-millionth pen friend link will be established by Letters Abroad. It will be a milestone for the organization begun in 1952 and dealing Lin international friendships.

RIGIT NOW the organization especially needs persons who want to write to non-European countries from which the demand currently is greatest -

Japan, Korea, India, Ghana, Nigeria, Pakistan, the Philippines and Turkey. The age range for corre-spondents is from 16 on up, but Mrs. Ulrich said more correspondents are needed particularly in the 18 through 25 age bracket.

"There is a great personal satisfaction in helping to form international friendhsips, many of which last for years," Mrs. Ulrich said.

"Many of our American correspondents think of themselves as ambassadors for our nation's ideals and way of life. It's certainly the answer for those who ask — 'What can I do personally to ease the tensions in the world?' "

Letters Abroad does not consider adult pen friendship a hobby. It is a civilizing pursuit that can broaden one's mental horizons, according to Mrs. Ulrich: That's why the organization is chartered under the laws of the state of New York as an educational institution.

THE OPERATION began with a box of letters from overseas, supplied by U.S. government agencies and other organizations and desk space in a Quaker school in New York City. The year was 1952. The office now is in a converted flat in a modern apartment building.

Mrs. Ulrich said more than 100 applications a day come from people in nations around the world. In those nations the services of Letters Abroad are publicized by the U.S. Information Services, embas-sies, clubs, radio, papers, directorics and word of . The organization is very discriminating in matching its applicants. It does not - repeat, not match up persons looking for mates or looking for sponsors willing to help them gain entry to the United States for an education or anything else.

Mrs. Ulrich explained that the system is as exacting as it can be. Persons of similar ages, professions and college levels, interests and hobbics are matched for a more meaningful exchange of ideas. Individual requests as to sex of the pen friend, geographical and language preferences are fulfilled where possible. Correspondence is initiated by the American. There is no charge for this service but a suggestion for a minimum donation of $1 is made to American applicants who apply by writing to Letters Abroad at 209 E. 56th St., New York, N.Y.

THE MATCHING is so good and the service is so prompt, according to Mrs. Ulrich, that there is less than 1 per cent rejection (Americans who say they don't want to write to the correspondent select-

Through the years there have been some marriages among pen friends, but these are the exceptions. However, Mrs. Uhrich said, more and more Americans are visiting their correspondents abroad and vice versa. American children have been named for correspondents. Correspondents act as godparents. There is much exchanging of postcards, stamps, books, gifts.

Some excerpts from letters on file at Letters Abroad tell more:

-"It is interesting to become acquainted with my pen friends' opinions about their problems, which are the same throughout the world." S.M.K., Luebeck, Germany.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1973

"Let me thank Letters Abroad for making my life so happy and for all the good works you are doing toward making peace in this world." F.H.R., Sun City, Calif.

-- 'May your work go on and bring more people' together over the world." L.V., Boom, Belgium.

The service you render is a great contribution in spreading goodwill and friendship in the world." G.D.L., Honolulu, Hawaii.

LETTERS ABROAD'S only paid worker is a secretary. Its budget of around $18,000 a year comes in in drips and drabs — bolstered by benefits, usually charging from $30 to $50 a ticket. All the $1 bills from applicants are necessary to keep the pen friend operation sailing along. Sometimes when an application does not contain the suggested $1, Mrs. Ulrich and others at Letters Abroad understand. The following letter, however, held out the hope that the $1 would be forthcoming decades from now — or scores

I wish many times that I could send you a contribution . . . but right now that's next to impossion ble. I do, however, promise to remember you in my

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Party giving a Fine Art

By CAROLYN MeDOWELL

THE HOME was beautiful and so were the people which made it unanimous at the beautiful party for Fine Arts Affiliates hosted by Dan and Frani

If the Ridder name sounds familiar to you, it is probably because Dan is a member of the Board of Trustees of the California State Universities and Colleges. He also happens to be the publisher of these newspapers.

Highlight of the evening was the premier showing of a film story of Long Beach University.

The making of the film was a student project under the guiding hand of instructor Tony Brennan who was there with his wife, Marsha, to get reactions to the production and incidentally run the movie projector.

The film is narrated by Dr. Stephen Horn, who came with Nini for dinner and group discussion on the "State of State."

Special guests introduced were Frani's parents, David and Yolanda Armour visiting from their home in Rye, N.Y. and Dr. Horn's brother, Al. and his wife, Ruth, who live in Ather-

Dan and Dr. Maxine Merlino were there, of course. She is head of the Fine Arts Department. Others included Harriet Williams, Blanche Collins, Betty Ann Kirkpatrick, Dr. Alex and Luba Kadvany and John and Doris

More were Palmer and Betty Wentworth (Betty appears briefly in the film work Getty appears briefly in the film thus making her a star), Duane and Lucy Kuster, Eric and Virginia Lad-dey, Charles and Nadyne Gibson, Roger and Elaine Coleman, John and Margaret Dennis, Vic and Suzzame Mingers, Aiberta Carlson, Roseanne DeGraw and Bob and Nancy Lobdell.

JERRY Hazzard played a dual role at Long Beach Yacht Club.

She and husband, Don, played host to Dames Club members and guests and Jerry received congratulations as the new president of Dames.

New officers and husbands, toasting success to the new year, included Doro thy and Bob Holland, Steva and Al Williams, Hilma and Bob Greenberg, Gloria and Dick McWilliams (Gloria is retiring president, but they won't let her retire from the board), Doris and Bob Sturgeon, Jerry and Jack McCutcheon, Jean and Leonard Jones, Ruth and Hoover Pratt and June and Through the years, Dames have given substantial amounts to Cystic Fibrosis and other local organizations.

A few years ago, they decided to adopt a Korean orphan, a little girl. June took on the job of sending gift packages and letters to the child.

Dames got such a warm feeling for the girl and the project that they re-cently adopted her sister. Now they get a double warm feeling.

SOME longer-weds.

Thirty years to be precise. Lt. Cmdr. Lewis and Irene Strolm decided on an all day celebration for their 30th wedding anniversary.

They began the day with a renewal vows and an exchange of new rings in Our Savior's Lutheran Church. They were attended by their original best man and matron of honor, Ed and Nan Faulkner.

They went on to luncheon at Allen Center where they were joined by re-tired Navy officers and wives including, Frank and Lois Spencer, Earl and Pat Corday and Jerry and Breezy Fopaino. Lewis' sister, Lucile Strohm also joined the group.

THEN they adjourned to the Strohms' Belmont Heights home for a buffet dinner.

Irene told me it turned into a double celebration when they learned that the name of Frank Spencer's cousin was on the POW list released from Hanoi. Lois Spencer has been wearing his bracelet since 1966.

AND EVEN longer . . . Leo and Elaine Malco celebrated 34

Love battles keep police busy

Staff Writer

The old and perhaps outdated song says that like the horse and car-riage love and marriage go together. But ask the average patrolman on the beat and he'll say that nothing is more insepara-ble—no matter the lifestyle—as love and the policeman.

Domestic quarrels or family beefs as the patrol-men refer to them, consume as much of a policeman's time as any other single kind of situation. Moreover, according to the 1967, report by the President's Commission on Lay, Enforcement and Administration of Justice, refuse to press charges. domestic disputes were considered as probably the single greatest cause of Komicides. Long Beach Police De-spokesman, is estimated to handle approximately 600 domestic boy-girl situations each year, ranging from disturbing the peace, to batteries and felony wife beatings.

The most common solutions to the test common solution that the state of the state of tion to such situations is to simply separate the battling pair for the evening and remove any dangerous weapons from the household.

VERY SELDOM does the complaint result in prosecution. Spokesmen for police forces in sur-rounding cities said that more often the woman will get her husband or boyfriend thrown in jail for the night but change her mind by morning and

Frequently the police themselves will wind up as the bad guys in these instaances when the husband and wife stop fightpartinent, according to a ling each other and team together against the "out-sider." One such humorous incident happened in Torrance about nine years ago. As the policeman involved told it:

It was late at night as he walked quietly up to the front door which was standing wide open to the evening air. Inside was an extremely large man stretched out on his back. On top of his chest sat his diminutive wife systematically beating his face to a pulp and screaming at the top of her lungs that her husband was beating her

Spying the policeman, the man stood up and meekly requested, "I appreciate your coming over, officer. Could you please keep her away from me?" The wife meanwhile continued her outery that her husband beats her up all the time. Finally the man could take no more and made a slight move toward the squealing woman. The policeman grabbed the man's arm, enraging the wife who immediately crashed a chair over the patrolman's back.

The officer soon gave up and left the couple alone to settle it in their own manner, but was called back before too long and took the wife to jail on a drunk charge.

IN PALOS Verdes the patrolmen told of a story not too long ago involving owners of a $70,000-plus estate. The man wanted a divorce but lacked the courage to tell his wife. Until finally he just came home from the office as usual one evening and handed her the legal

The woman's response was just as swift and devastating. Instead of lashing out at her husband, she proceeded to destroy all the expensive furnishings in the home. First the television sets, then the chandelier which she reached by swinging a chair, and on to everything else within reach. The patrolman would the grounds that the property was half her own and she had a right to destroy it.

In San Pedro, the officers have been called to the home of one couple at least once each week for 13 years. The 50-year-old woman calls the department everytime she and her man become embroiled in an argument, usually over nothing more sig-nificant than sharing a disturbance, the patrol-man said, but the woman never hesitates to call on the grounds that she wants the man thrown out of her house. The patrol-men's standard solution: have the man take a walk for an hour.

GFWC counteracts opponents of ERA

The national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs has sent a message to all 13,-500 clubs urging support for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution.

"The General Federa-tion of Women's Clubs has been working for the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment for 29 years. Coping during crisis

By ERMA BOMBECK

I never pay a visit to the emergency room of the hospital with one of my children that I do not reaffirm my belief that some women were not only born to this kind of cliaos, they thrive on it.

I mean it. They're the women who get up in the morning, tidy the house, put on hose, a skirt the right fashion length, a sweater that matches, gay scarf and shoes with arch supports.

They gas up the car, study up on their pressure points, stock their purse with spirits of ammonia and sit there reading the First Aid Handbook until one of their kids runs in and says, "Mommy! and says, "Mommy! Come see Billy!" She calmly puts down her book, slips a roast for dinner in the oven and says, 'Mommy is ready.'

an emergency in my life that I wasn't wearing bedroom slippers, a pair of slacks that fit when I was 10, a raincoat from lost raggy found, underwear and greasy

I CAN NEVER find my car keys. When I do, the car won't start. I wrap the wound in a diseased T-shirt. And I invariably go through a tacky scene at the admissions desk.

"What is the boy's asks the recepname?'' tionist.

"Wow. You asked me too fast. It's Brad Bryce...Brucie!"

"How old is Brucie?"

"They're getting harder. Let's see, we got the freezer on Feb. 26, 1968 and Brucie was born sometime that spring."

"I don't suppose you would remember your insurance policy number?" (I shake my head.)
"You DO have insur-ance," she says suspiclously.

I pull myself up stiffly and fold my arms to hide the safety pin holding my zipper together. "Are you implying we cannot pay for this visit? Well, you are wrong. You couldn't find a better credit risk."

;"I understand," says. 'Have a seat." she says. Have a seat."

"Oh, incidentally," I falter, "could you cash a check for a dime? I have to call my husband."

THE DOCTOR finally reports to me. "You may come in now. Your son has a head wound and we have to take some stitches. I don't want you to be upset by what you see. Just be normal, talk to him so he will relax and make him feel that everything is just fine. I walk into the room, clutch my throat and scream, "My God, he's bleeding to death!" and pass out on the floor.

As they wheel me by the waiting room, I see the professional emergency mother sitting there with a full box of Crayolas for her younger son, sip ping on coffee and rattling her pocketful of dimes.

Jurned down after trying to sell her body

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I decided to will our bodies to a university medical school because we understood the were needed in their teaching program. So far, we have been turned down by FOUR medi-

The last turn-down came from Yale Medical Schools, We received what appeared to be a form letter stating in part: "Because of the extremely." cause of the extremely generous response to our Willed Body Program, we are currently at a maximum of our needs and the this program is now temporarily closed. We shall place your name and address in our file of prospective donors. > DEAR ABBY: Why is it that friends think they are doing you a favor by not telling you about a cheating husband?

Now I realize that for years all my friends knew my husband was cheating on me, but no-body ever told me. I would have considered it a favor.

I recall my aunt telling me that on her way to church one day she saw the husband of a friend kissing and hugging another woman in a parked car. The husband then met his wife after church, and off they went together! My aunt called the man all sorts of names and said the wife was foolish to put up with it. But when I asked my aunt if she had told the wife what she saw, she said,
"Oh, no, I couldn't bring myself to tell her!"
Why? WANTS TO

Here's how I handle it: When he starts one of those familiar stories, I look him in the eye and tune him out and start to plan my meals or think of something else. I do throw in an occasional "Oh, really" or "Is that so" when he pauses, just to let him know that I am "lis-tening."

IRA G. CORN JR.

Dear Mr. Corn:

Please help settle some confusion. In the following sequence, how does opener ask for aces - Gerber or Blackwood?

Wasn't Asked Wasn't Asked Farmington, Mich. Amser: I imagine most sodial players would re-gard a four-no-trump bid as Blackwood. Tourna-ment players would run into some problems and there is no standard answer. I prefer four no trump as invitational and four clubs as asking for aces; others play four no trump as Blackwood and four clubs as a suit and stamitry. There is no substitute for partnership discussion and agreement.

Dearly, Corn:
Live been told to open a with one club and then make a forcing jump rebid or bid game after partner's response. Is this Doubting Thomas Trenton, Mich. Aiswer: Yes. Opener's rebid is often the most important bid of all. Since the opening range is so great (13-22 points), opengorio describing a minimum, intermediate or strong hand. A 20-point opening opposite any response justifies play in game, and opener should måke sure he reaches it.

Dear Mr. Com: puied after the game breaks up and a rubber is unfinished?

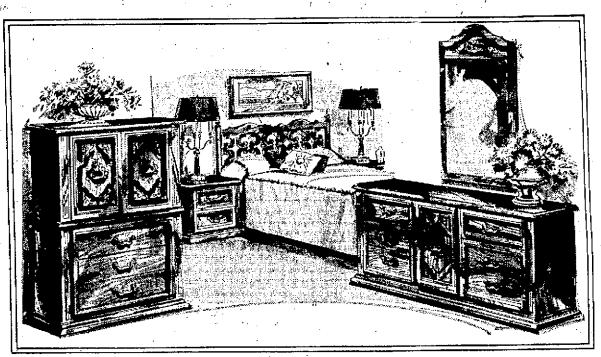

Late Night Mt. VErnon, Ill. Answer: I quote from the Laws of Contract Bridge: "If only one game is completed, the winners of that game are credited with 300 points; if galy one side has a part score or scores in a game not completed, that side is eredited with 50 points; points of each side are then added, and the side with the greater number of points wins the differbetween the two

Obviously, if both sides have a game or part score, these bonuses cancel out each other. Dear Mr. Corn:

We recently suffered an embarrassing situation. Our opponents bid five clubs with 20 points on score. They went down one and blamed me for not amnouncing the score. keeper. Was I responsi-

And so the couple set out-each weekend to a different spot in the Southern California area, each weekend setting progressively more ambitious goals

"To be able to handle this trip, which was Crated, we needed to be able to hike 15 miles a day at an altitude of at least 15,000 feet," explained Monroe, who added that Mountain Travel offers five levels of avourising from A the simulation. levels of excursions ranging from Λ (the simplest) to E (the most difficult).

"In this area, we weren't able to find a peak higher than 12,000 feet, but we did eventually achieve our goal of 15 miles a day."

In the meantime they read everything they could on the Himalayas and for months before their departure were totally absorbed in the geography, people and politics of the area.

'UM NOT SURE you could enjoy this trip to its fullest unless you had an understanding of the peo-ple," said Corinne, who is administrative medical technologist at Memorial Hospital Medical Center, ELABORATE JEWELRY made of silver. turquoise, amber and coral is a common sight in Nepalese villages.

"An appreciation of the religion is especially important—otherwise it's so easy to inconvenience

According to Covinne, the Nepalese, like the Indians, are very conscious of caste. Foreigners, she said, should never enter the home of a caste-con-scious Nepalese uninvited because they are considered to be of a different caste and therefore "un-

"One woman in the party had no idea how much she was inconveniencing the families whose homes she entered. She'd just drop by to say hi, never realizing that it would take a full two days to 'cleanse' it after she left."

Corinne explained, too, that it is important to remember that among many of the people living in the area, the cow is considered sacred.

"Because of this, it's in very bad taste to enter a temple or touch a native's amulet while wearing anything made of leather."

THE MONROE'S GROUP was made up of 13 Westerners, including their leader, Barry Bishop, who was the first American to reach the top of Everest. Most of the members of the party were in their 40s and 50s, though there were a few younger people, including several single women.

"There was one woman from Oregon who was 56 and on her fifth trek," Monroe added. "She's so enchanted with the Sherpas (natives of the area) that she makes the tip at least once a year to bring them items they need and to visit friends she has made on previous treks."

The Monroes, too, were quite taken with the Sherpas's especially the eight who served as their guides during the 29-day trip.

"One of the highlights of our visit was our association with these wonderful people," Monroe said. "We were very impressed with their dedication to duty, their kindness and their willingness to help us whenever they could."

The trek, which covered 245 miles plus side trips, departed from Jumla, the area's principle city, From there the party headed northward to Rara Lake through dense forests, rolling green valleys, sparsely vegetated mountain peaks and some

"Until a year and a half ago, this area was closed to Westerners," Corinne explained. "Even now, it's quite isolated and primitive and has limited communication with the outside world."

DURING THE TREK, the party hiked to altitudes of nearly 17,000 feet and dropped as low as about 8,000 feet. Because of the extremes in temperature— anywhere from the mid-60s during the day to below freezing at night—members of the party carried with them warm extra clothing, as well as snacks to eat along the trail, cameras and

"Each party has its own doctor," Monroe explained, "who provides medical services not only for members of the trek, but for villagers in these outlying areas."

Added Corinne, "Everywhere we went, local inhabitants would flock to see the doctor. One village patient had walked miles because he's heard about vascetomy and wanted one performed on him.

"The doctor did it, incidentally, for a payment of five eggs."

The natives the Monroes met suffered from a variety of medical disorders, including ulcers from a type of chili used to spice their otherwise bland food, iodine deficiencies and chronic respiratory prob-

Americans taking to ski slopes by the millions

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK --- So you want to join the growing group gliding gracefully down snowy slopes across the land and around the You're hardly ever too young — or too old.

But you must be cautious at any age. Gordon Lipe, a ski safe-ty expert, says he's seen children no older than 3 start learning the sport and he knows of some senior citizens who've taken it up at 80 or more. Increasingly, it's be-coming a family sport, with mama, papa and the kids all checking in for a week or more at a resort. And not all are with the means of the Fords or the Kennedy clans. Lipe (pronounced with one syllable as in life) says that the sport is showing an increase of about 15 per cent per year, that there now are at least 3.5 million "real" elions in the notion. skiers in the nation.

America (SIA), a trade group, tells how big business the sport has become. Executive vice president Ralph Des Roches estimates gross retail sales of clothing, equipment, special footwear and such at $405 million annually. Counting in the amounts spent on travel, lodging, food and other expenses, an esti-mated $1.740 billion is spent yearly.

Lipe makes a career of making skiing safer. Right now, he says, the injury rate is about four skiers in 1,000 reported--cuts, bruises and broken

Ethel Kennedy and Lucille Ball both were vic-tims last year with brokengoing to have even the experts getting into some situation where they will fall," said Lipe.

He thinks friction is the major cause for breaks occurring when excessive weight is transferred to the ball of the foot creating friction between ski and boot. This friction causes the boot to stick to the ski and hampers the binding from letting go before the crash.

ACCORDINGLY, he's developed two devices — the Lipe slider and the Lipe release check - to help prevent such accidents. Other equipment makers now are making safety releases for binding in case of fall and Lipe says "in the next year or two friction release should be standard equipment."

For a while, Lipe ran his own manufacturing company but sold to Na-tional Recreation Industries, Inc., so he would have more time for writing, lecturing and acting as consultant to the industry. He writes a regular zine.

Lipe, a native of Skaneateles, N.Y., practi-cally grew up on skis but says he's not a champion by any means. All five of his children, ages 9 to 21, are skiers too.

"Kids are pretty supple," said Lipe. "But they should have just as good equipment as their parameters." ents. Some parents aren't willing to spend that much for the children."

Lipe, in a telephone interview from the ski area around Jackson Hole, Wyo., listed these safety suggestions:

Be careful in choosing equipment. Take lessons. Stay on the beginners' slopes until you're fully confident of more challenge. Check equipment regularly and keep boots clean (very important, he said). Don't get careless - the "it won't happen to me" åttitude.

And don't mix skiing and alcohol — "you need every one of your wits around you on the slope," tions for later at the fire

Last week's art column began with news about a colloquium of directors of art museums which will be held Feb. 18 from 2:30 to 4 p.m. in the Grand Salon of the Queen Mary.

Unfortunately, our composing room computer was ailing—judging from the story that appeared, it had a combination of stuttering and hiccups. That's too bad, because the colloquium, to be hosted by Jan von Adlmann, director of Long Beach Museum of Art, is one of the most significant art gatherings to be scheduled in this city.

It is premised on the fact that Long Beach has land and money designated for a new museum. Discussion will pertain to ways the modern museums can best serve the public.

Salvatore Costabile, vice director of American Association of Museums, will come from Washington D.C. to moderate the panel.

Speakers will be these directors of art museums: William C. Agee of Pasadena Museum of Art; Tracy Atkinson of Milwaukee Art Center; Cath-leen Gallander of Art Museum of Southwest Texas in Corpus Christi, Tex.; James Harithas of Everson Museum, Syracuse, N.Y.; and Peter Selz of University Art Museum, Berkeley.

Panelists will use audio-visual materials to illustrate points and describe their museums.

Representatives from art magazines and galleries will attend as will artists and architects. The colloquium is open to the public without charge. However, seating is limited to 500 and reservations are coming in rapidly. If you wish one, call Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blyd. at once.

After the colloquium, there will be a cocktail hour from 4 to 5 p.m. to allow those attending to meet guest museum directors.

Violinist Harold Hensley will perform for Musical Arts Club at its dinner meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in Covenant Presbyterian Church, Third Street and Atlantic Aveliterary program. Com-posed in 1885, it falls between the composer's Fourth and Fifth symphonies.

Scriabin, who composed only one concerto, made his American debut in 1906, playing the work.

Maazel's first conducting assignment with the Philharmonic: he conducted the orchestra at Hollywood Bowl when he was only 10 years old. He went on to establish a ca-reer as a concert violinist but eventually turned to conducting. In 1960, at age 30, he was the youngest and first American conductor to appear at Bay-reuth. From 1965 to 1971, he was music director of Berlin's Deutsche Oper. He resigned to become associate principal conductor, with Otto Klemperer, of the New Philharmonia Orchestra of London. Vienna choir boys in opera

The Vienna Choir Boys will present a comic opera by Richard Ros-smayer, Tales From Old smayer, "Tales From Old Vienna," based on music by Johann Strauss, next Sunday at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. in The Music Center's Ahmanson Theater.

This unique choir, founded 450 years ago, has entertained American audiences each year for more than a quarter of a century under S. Hurok's auspices.

In the opera, the young singers will tell about the daughter of a master baker of Vienna who is about to be married off to a dandy she despises. Her friends save the day by exposing her fiance as a crook, with the attendant fireworks for which the Vienna Choir Boys are known.

The choir also will sing sacred music by Gallus, de Rore, da Palestrina and Bloch; German folk music by Theimer, Krull and Burkhard; and Austrian folk songs by Johann Strauss Jr.

Honor groups on bill

Monday at 8 p.m., the Southern California High School Honor Orchestra and Honor Choir will give their annual concert in The Music Center Pavil-

Dr. Hans Lampl, conductor of the Long Beach State University Symphothe 110-member orchestra. Dr. Charles Hirt of the School of Music of USC will direct the 140 voice choir. Members of the honor groups are se-lected through auditions from outstanding students in an area reaching from San Diego County to Santa Barbara and Inyo counties.

The event is sponsored by the Southern California School Band and Orchestra Association and by music teachers in the pub-lic schools who belong to the association and are responsible for training the participating young musicians.

The orchestral part of the concert will include "Tragic Overture" by Brabms, "Music for a Scene From Shelley" by Barber, the first U.S. per-formance of "Clouds Now and Then" by Australian composer Richard Meale composer Richard Meale and "Evocation" and and "Evocation" and "Fete-Dieu a Seville" by Albeniz-Arbos.

The choir will sing short works from the 16th to the 20th centureis, then will join the orchestra in "Take Thy Hand" by Norman Dello Joio.

FASCINATING FABRICS

Doing tricks with tricot

By FRANCES DIETRICH

There's a lucky 16-year-old girl in St. Louis, Mo., whose bedroom windows glow like sunshine even on whose bedroom windows glow like sunshine even on a gray day. Her criss-cross and cafe combination curtains are not only cheerful yellow, but have a subtle silk-like luster, drape softly with a generous amount of fullness. The opacity of the fabric filters the outside light and also maintains privacy. The curtains have helped transform her room and she's had lots of compliments. She answers, proudly: "My mother made them." mother made them."

What's the fabric? It's a knit. It's tricot. The what's the labric? It's a kint it then. The word liself derives from the French "tricoter," meaning to kint. But, the method for machine kinting this run-proof, snag-resistant and non-ravelling fabric was invented by an Englishman in the early 1700s. Until five years ago, tricot was an unsung staple used by manufacturers of men's underwear, women's lingerie and backing for bonded fabric.

With the tremendous surge of interest in knits, tricol got spotlight attention as it is the fastestknown method of creating cloth. Yarns and styling were improved and it blossomed out in women's wear items such as dresses, blouses, loungewear and swimwear; and, in the men's field in shirts, slacks and light jackets. The highpoint was releasing it to fabric stores for longe sewing.

It to fabric stores for home sewing.

IMAGINATIVE women snapped it up for lingerie making. But, the newest use is in the 40 dernier weight for curtains, bed sheets, tablecloths, pillow cases, room dividers and garment bags. It has economy going for it, as well as beauty. Tricot is sold in 108-inch width at approximately $2.50 a yard. In nylon, it also contributes durability.

In nylon, it also contributes durability.

Identify tricot by its fine, vrtical ribs on the front; crosswise ribs on the back. Quick-check the right side by stretching a crosswise edge. The fabric will roll to the right side.

When measuring and cutting long lengths, as in making curtains or bed sheets, you may wish to spread tricot fabric out on carpeting. Or, place a cotton sheet or tablecloth under the tricot on your cutting table. When using a table, keep the unused section rolled up or support it on chair backs.

Be sure the lengthwise cut édge is on the grain by following a lengthwise rib. To assure a straight by following a lengthwise rib. To assure a straight edge crosswise, follow the horizontal rib on the back.

To cope with indon's toughness, which is really one of its virtues, use very sharp seissors such as a long, thin barber shears; sharp pins; a fine, sharp ball point sewing machine needle in size No. 9 or No.

Either a straight stitch or zigzag may be used. Polyester or a combination of polyester and cotton thread is the right choice, but use the same type in both bobbin and spool.

YOU'VE LEARNED that in straight machine stitching, the "knot" between each stitch should be concealed midway in the fabric. However, with thin fabric such as tricot, a little "dotty" knot will appear. You're okay if the stitching is regular and looks the same on both sides. Practice on a folded piece of fabric using 12 to 15 stitches per inch.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Vegetable is a bit Looney

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

Did you ever hear of a man who drives a Cadillac and is in the Dodge business, without thinking him a bit "looney"?

Well, now that we've dodged that one, we'll introduce today's Chef of the Week, Robert "Bob" Looney, general manager, Glenn E. Thomas Leasing Co. He won the Cadillae in a Lions Club picnic draw-

Looney started out in Northern California-Oroville—and progressed southward. Before getting too far south, however, he served as a U.S. Navy officer in the European and Pacific Theaters for four years and got his master's degree in business administration at UC, Berkeley.

During a stopover in Oakland in 1948 he served as executive secretary to that city's mayor, Joe Smith, It was during this period that he attended both the Republican and Democratic Conventions when Thomas E. Dewey and Harry Trunian were nominated for the presidency by their respective

Since arriving in Long Beach, Looney has been active in numerous endeavors. He holds membership in the Southern California Leasing and Rental Club and in the Diamond Chapter, Dodge Delta

In fact, as of Jan. 15, he received notice that he was the recipient of the Chrysler Leasing Systems Club Award for 1972. It was presented as recognition for outstanding achievement in leasing company sales and management for that year. He has been in the automobile business for 18 years.

A member of California Heights United Methodist Church, he has just been nominated to the Council of Ministers of that church. He is vice president and camp commissioner on the board of trustees of the Southern California-Arizona Conference. such, he determines and sets policy for 10 Methodist camps in Southern California and Arizona.

Also, Looney has 15 years as a YMCA executive secretary in Oakland, Los Angeles and South Gate to his credit. He has been active as finance chairman of the Dan Bear District Boy Scouts.

A member of Downtown Lions Club, he has served as membership chairman, board member, Sea Lion editor and as Lion tamer. We assure you the latter has nothing to do with wild animals.

Looney also is the proud owner of the Golden Lion Award 1971-72, given annually to an outstanding member by Downtown Lions Club of Long Beach.

His hobbies include sports, writing and the family mountain cabin in Wrightwood. He and his wife, Ruth, are the proud parents of a married daughter, Berla McKa, and four granddaughters. She and her husband live in Cypress.

As for his cooking, "he CAN manage breakfast," says Ruth. "A handyman he is not. I can hand him a lamp in one piece and in no time he can come up with unpteen pieces. But, give him a speech to write and he can sit down at the typewriter and it's complete in a matter of minutes."

Guess who prepares the "Looney Carrots"?

LOONEY CARROTS
2 bunches (about 2½ pounds) carrots 1/3 cup boiling salted water

1/4 cup cooking liquid from carrots

1/2 cup mayonnaise 1 tablespoon mineed onion or instant mineed onion I tablespoon prepared horseradish Salt and pepper to taste % cup fine cracker crumbs

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Cook carrots in salt water until tender; save ¼ cup cooking liquid. Cut carrots lengthwise into narrow strips, arrange in shallow 8 or 9-inch square baking dish. Combine 1/4 cup cooking liquid with mayonnaise, onion, horseradish, salt and pepper. Just before mealtime, pour sauce over carrots. Sprinkle cracker crumbs on top and dot with butter. Bake uncovered in 375 degree oven for 45 or 20 minutes. Serves 6.

Shirtwaist news

The shirtwaist springs up again for spring and summer. It's done deluxe in soft crepe de chine, jer-sey and silk. It's also available in all kinds of plain fabrics. The shape tends to be softer than ever with fuller sleeves, blouson tops.

By CHORAL PEPPER

Palau has to be the most exclusive place in the Pacific. On any single day last year, it had more islands than tourists and its only modern hotel, the luxurious new Palau Continental, can accommodate only enough people to fill 56 rooms.

Considering that 217 rock islands comprise the Palau group, there is always an empty one available for a day of skinny dipping, playing shipwreck or niceleting.

This idyllic South Pacific outpost is served with jet convenience from Hawaii by Air Micronesia, a subsidiary of Continental Airlines.

Our party rented an outboard motor boat with a local guide who turned out to be as good a fisherman as boatswain. By simply throwing a line into the water with a piece of clam on the end, he caught a tuna for our lunch.

tuna for our lunch.

His best concoction, however, was meat from a giant tridacna clam which he cut into bite sized pieces, sprinkled with lemon juice and flavored with the milk of a fresh coconut picked on the island. He served it in its beautiful, scalloped shell.

THE CORAL REEFS that surround most of the Palau islands present an underwater world that has been growing for a million years. Its forests of staghorn, leaf tube and brain coral inhabited by a psychedelic array of tropical fish are so exciting that you are tempted to forget all about civilization and stay there snorkling forever.

The only drawback is that the best beaches are on uninhabited adjacent islands to Koror, where the hotel is located. This incurs the expense of renting a boat and driver, since the coral recfs must be navigated by an expert. The hotel has a pool, of course, and it is possible to snorkle from the Hotel's boat dock, out the best underwater spectacles, like the beaches, lie at neighboring isles.

In addition to water sports, exploring Koror itself is an adventure. Within walking distance of the hotel are a series of old Japanese stone lanterns. These once embellished a trail to the fourth most important Shinto shrine outside of Japan, blessed by Emperor Hirohito just prior to World War II.

Today it has been reclaimed by the jungle, but if you are willing to risk getting lost in a melec of embracing vines, gooey mud pools that once held sacred carp, broken moss-covered steps and dense jungle trees inhabited by screeching monkeys and birds, it is not hard to imagine the arched bridges and pagodas that led up to a huge Buddha at the crest of the hill.

Unfortunately, the shrine was a bomb target during the war.

SHOPPING FOR story board woodcarvings indigenous to this island group is also an experience. The most skilled carver is named Hitler and is a prisoner at the jailhouse.

His carvings on long, carefully wrought planks illustrate scenes from local legends, usually reaturing the stormal triangle.

ing the eternal triangle.

Hitler's five-year sentence will end soon and he will then go into business for himself at his brother's shop, located near the courthouse. He recently completed an exquisite, totally carved 6-foot long coffee table for a Japanese senator who paid $700 for it.

Hitler's custom orders are made of ironwood which will not shrink and crack in dry climates and they are shipped by sea. His story boards, as well as those made by other prisoners, are sold where they are made, in the rear of the jail house. They cost from $10 to $35, depending upon size.

The first Americans to encounter Palau's natives were 11 whalers aboard the Mentor in 1832 when it hit a reef. The sailors were rescued by Palauans, but underwent extreme hardships before the few who lived through the two-year-long ordeal made it back across the Pacific.

Where beasts meet

By HERB SHANNON I,P-T Travel Editor

SAN FRANCISCO—There are eight major dragons in the Western World's largest Chinatown centered around Grant Avenue here, but only one Gum Lang. The 120-footlong monster which reigns over the city's Chinese New Year celebration this month is a heavyweight in the classic Oriental tradition.

No self-respecting Chinese knight of history would think of slaying a dragon any more than King Arthur would have launched a crusade to stamp out the British lion, if there were any in those days. It would be like Miles Standish roasting the American bald eagle for Thanksgiving.

for Thanksgiving.
Unlike those of Sir Lancelot's day, the dragon of Chinese legend was a national emblem. It was and still is a sacred and beneficent beast.

The many-faceted protector of the Chinese multitude has the head of a camel, horns of a deer, eyes of a rabbit, ears of a cow, neck of a serpent, belly of a frog scales of a fish and talons of a hawk.

Standing above the less-standing above the lesser breeds is Lung, the divine do-gooder which inhabits the skies. A symbol of imperial power, Lung decorated emperors' standards, postage stamps, coins of the realm and other trappings of royalty. The behemoth was also indispensable in any major procession.

SUCH A creature is the Golden Dragon which will writhe through San Francisco's downtown streets in the wake of a 90-minute spectacle starting at 7 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 17. The parade is the climax of the Chinese community's nine-day Year of the Ox festival.

The reigning dragon arrived in this country in the Year of the Rooster (1969). Conceived in Hong Kong of paper-mache, many-hued silk, velvet, bangles and bamboo, he is the latest in a succession of Golden Dragons imported by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce since 1953.

Gum Lung hibernates in a warehouse from winter to winter. The cumbersome centerpiece of the annual festival is roused only when the new lunar year draws near.

It takes several artisans under the direction of Dragonmaster Lee Foon from eight to 10 days to link up his block-long body of hand-tied bamboo sections.

San Francisco's "Night of the Dragon" parade developed into a double-header in. 1969 when Macy's department store imported a 60-foot side-kick for Gum Lung and presented him to the Chinese Chamber. Supported on sticks, this junior model is maneuvered by 12 runners, while it takes three relays of 22 muscular athletes, a dragon teaser, cages of firecrackers and a generator truck to keep the maestro in motion.

The stick dragon can be seen in action in Union Square during the Ox Year celebration kickoff commencing at noon this coming Saturday.

GUM LUNG'S closest rival, the Silver Dragon, makes his annual Chinatown appearance later in the year, on Dougle Ten, the holiday commemorating the birth of the Republic of China with the Wuchang Uprising of October 10, 1911. This four-year-old 70-footer from Hong Kong has silver-tipped scales.

Other dragens abound

Other dragons abound in Chinatown year round. Visitors who m'ss the go go ensembles listed above can catch an authentic, if immobile, Golden Dragon at the Chinatown Wax Museum at Grant Avenue and California Street. The huge, hing-jawed head is regulation size with the body pared down to 30 feet to fit the showcase. The exhibit includes the mandatory dragon teaser with his "precious pearl" scepter, attendants, musicians and dragon's voice (drum and gong) sound ef-

The foregoing examples are centipede-type dragons. A gold screent dragon is suspended in the street-level window of the China Trade Center at 838 Grant Ave. The coiled body of this ferocious-looking specimen measures 40 feet.

The granddaddy of them all is on view at the Chinese Historical Society of America at 17 Adler Place just off Grant. The museum houses the wellpreserved head and tail of a Golden Dragon made in Hong Kong for San Franeisco's 1915 Panama-Pacific International Exposition position.

Sequestered elsewhere in Chinatown are a lizard-like Taiwan sand dragon and a new, articulated wriggler. The 40-foot sand dragon owned by the Chinese Library of America slithers forth from its lair at 109 Waverly Place for special events such as grams and state fairs.

The wiggly latest addition to Chinatown's dragon pack is a ribbon-like reptile of indeterminate length. Owned by a Chinatown lion dancer group, it is red, has a detached head and tail and a body wich expands and contracts depending on the number of dancers manipulating its free-flowing midsections.

The gateway to Chinatown leads to the biggest dragon preserve in the Western hemisphere. They surmount the gateway, encircle the lamp posts and glower good-naturedly from almost every shop window.

Explore the last frontier aboard The Yacht.

The new Spirit of London makes her maiden voyages to Alaska and Canada.

This is the last frontier.

Spirit of London glides past awesome mountains split by long-fingered fjords. A glint of sunlight flashes off a thousand-foot tower of ice. A bald eagle appears as a dot in the blue of the sky. The silence is enveloping. You feel one with nature.

There is no better way to see this Alaska than by ship. Summer cruising aboard Spirit of London is perhaps the most dramatic vacation you will ever take. (And seeing it all by the light of the midnight sun is an experience you'll never forget.)

From the Greenwich Room at the top of the ship, you will sit in indoor comfort and enjoy a spectacular 280° view of snow-capped mountains, virgin forests, and deep blue waters. You will visit Glacier

Bay, with 20 of the world's most beautiful glaciers inching toward the sea under millions of tons of pressure.

And when you are anchored at . Juneau, be sure to make the 12-mile journey to Mendenhall Glacier. You'll see a forest that was shaved by the advancing ice, and is preserved within the glacier.

Explore the legendary cities of the Far North.

You will go ashore in motor launches to visit the haunts of the sourdoughs who took part in the frenzied Gold Rush of 1898. Bears, wolves, deer, waterfowl, seals and otters abound. You can shop for Eskimo handicrafts-a marvelous way to bring back unusual gifts for your friends.

You will visit Juneau, the scenic state capital. Historic Ketchikan. Sitka, once the capital of Russian Alaska. Or Skagway, with its old narrow-gauge mining railway.

And you will enjoy the beauty of Canada's Pacific coast. The cruise has been specially planned to pass through the Seymour Narrows during daylight hours. You will call at Vancouver. And at Victoria, more British than most cities in Britain.

All the comfort of a liner, all the intimacy of a yacht.

Spirit of London is a 535-ft, cruise ship with so many elegant touches, so much personal attention, she's more like a luxury yacht. There are seven passenger decks with countless activities from dawn 'til way past dusk. You will find that your problem is not what to do, but what to choose to do. You can doze in a deck chair. Swim in the pool. Participate in the Bridge tournaments. Dance to a live orchestra in the Churchill Room. Quaff a foaming mug of English ale in the Union Jack pub.

You can watch current films in the Globe Theatre. See cabaret performances. Even sharpen your swing at the ship's driving range with a resident pro to assist you.

The one thing you will never have to do is serve yourself. There is one crew member for every two passengers aboard. Although the ship was designed to fulfill perfectly the American taste for comfort and convenience, you will be served in the friendly, courteous British tradition.

The pride of The Yacht is her food.

Our Chef de Cuisine has learned his art in some of the finest kitchens of the Con-A tunical dinner menu will offer a choice of five entrees, including specialties from the waters the ship is cruising, such as Alaska King Crab and fresh Pacific

And because Spirit of London is registered in Britain, we take our tea at four in the afternoon, along with the rest of the Commonwealth. It's an opportunity to try the Chef's fresh-baked cakes, biscuits, petit fours, and scones.

French traditions intact in Quebec

The city of Quebcc, founded 364 years ago by Samuel de Champlain, French soldier, navigator, geographer and explorer, is one of America's most historic sites and resembles old European cities more than any other on this continent.

Capital of Canada's largest province, Quebec, it is the only city in North America completely sur-rounded by a stone wall, and because of its French traditions, continental flair and old world atmosphere, it radiates an irresistible charm.

Perched astride a 350-foot cliff dominating the majestic Saint-Laurent river, Quebec is a city of stone walls and gates, of ancient cannon poking through holes in the forti-fications, of old churches and narrow streets. It's also a city of tree-lined boulevards, green park-lands, and it has more than its share of historical

FROM ITS very beginnings, Quebec has been a military town and a seat of government, and today, more than three and a half centuries later, that aspect has not changed. But, whatever attracts millions of visitors to "la vieille capitale," its chief claim to fame is still the European charm and the French way of life that have made it one of the world's great tourist cen-

Long known as the split-level city with an un-changing profile, the familiar skyline of Quebec at long last is changing. But unlike Montreal, a sprawling and fast-changing cosmopolitan centre, the capital city is being transformed slowly, subtly, while retaining its quiet charm. It is still Canada's most elegant while other cities have been sprouting skyscrapers for years, this city has just recently been given its first one, a 32-story tower that is part of a new $40 million govern-ment office complex located next to the Renaissance-style National Assembly building, built in 1886.

Quebec is really two cities in one, the old part, on a high promontory within the walls, and the newer part, in the surrounding areas outside the fortifications. The old city contains scores of ancient buildings and insti-tutions, some of them as old as the city itself. The modern buildings and sky-scrapers are found outside the walls.

Throughout the city, one admire beautiful monuments to some of the great figures of Canadian — and North American — history: Cartier, Champlain, Wolfe and Montcalm, Laval, Frontenac, Levis, Jolliet, Marquette, la Verendrye and many others.

The center of the lower town of Quebec along the river-front — Place Royale and its surrounding streets — represents the greatest concentration 17th and 18th century buildings in North America. This is where the city was born, where Champlain built his first "Abitation," and where one can visit the historic church of Notre-Damesdes-Viétoires (1688).

THE PLACE ROYALE area is undergoing careful restoration, and in time it will completely recreate a segment of the past. The church and seven of the old houses are open to visitors, and an information centre is located in the Le Picart house (built in 1763). The square is reached via Cote de la Montagne and the "Breakneck Stairs" or by the cliff-side elevator from Dufferin Terrace in the uppertown area. Within the city's fortifications, completed in 1832, stands La Citadelle, a huge fortress on the city's highest point.— Cap Diamant. A must for every visitor to Quebec, especially in summer when a daily changing of the guard ceremony is the guard ceremony is staged by the famed Royal 22nd Regiment, a tour of the Citadel is an unforgettable experience. Just west of this great fortress, outside the walls, lies Battlefields Park, long one of the city's major attractions. One can stroll across the "Plains of Abraham," as the park is also known, and relive the battle that took place there in 1759 between Wolfe's troops and those of Montealm by reading the tablets on granite bases. The Quebec Museum, containing a fine collection of Canadian paintings and other objects d'art, is open to visitors, and there are two

Martello towers and a beautiful sunken garden:

QUEBEC city has two summer stock theatre companies, one French and the other English. The Theatre de la Feniere plays in a huge barn at Ancienne-Lorette, seven miles from the heart of the city, while the newly-formed Quebec City Sum-mer Stock Theatre performs on the grounds of the historic Anglican eathedral (1804), the first Church of England cathedral ever built outside the British Isles. It is located in the old part of the city, in the shadow of the castle-like Chateau Frontenac hotel. Croud

The city's Grand Theatre, just a few blocks Grand from the government complex on Boulevard Saint-Cyrille, features theatre and concerts and houses the Quebec Conservatory of Music. It is the home of the Quebec Symphony Orchestra.

In Sainte-Foy, a major suburb just west of the old city, the extensive, modern compus of Laval University has nearly 10,000 full-time students. This is the oldest French language university in America, and its summer school—especially its French courses—altracts students from around the world.

Adjacent to the campus

Adjacent to the campus are two giant shopping centres, one of them the largest in eastern Canada with 220 shops, boutiques, restaurants and cinemas.

Some 95 per cent of the 400,000 residents of the are French-speaking, and this aspect is reflected in every phase of the city's life — in shops, restaurants, offices, schools, churches, theatres and nightelubs - but most of all in the people themselves who are renowned for their hospitality and friendliness.

THE BUSINESS of getting around in Quebec, whether in the old city or the newer parts, is never difficult. One can hire a qualified guide to drive the family car, or take a sightseeing bus tour, and for something a little more picturesque a ride in a "caleche" has its own special charm. A different view of the old city can be had by boarding one of the ferry boats that ply the Saint-Laurent river between Quebec and Levis.

But the best way to really see this historic capital is to take a walking tour inside the walled city, sample the delightful cuisine of its fine restaurants, and to explore some of the byways of Canadian history.

TWA's EUROPE. ANY WAY YOUWANTIT.

CITY HOPPER TOURS. 579 TO 1139.

The City Hopper Tour is especially good if you've never been to Europe. Because it goes to just enough places to let you see them thoroughly.

You get round-trip airfare, transportation between airports and hotels (double occupancy), in every city you visit, and a half day of sight seeing in every city you visit. Every hotel comes with Continental breakfast. And tips at the airport or hotel are taken care of. There are 19 City Hopper Tours in all (7 new ones). They go to many countries. Some are 2 weeks long, some 17 days long, and some 3 weeks long.

FLY/DRIVE TOURS. $474 TO $1727.

The best thing about the Fly/Drive Free-Lance Tour is the freedom it gives you. You can go for 2 weeks or 22 days. Anywhere you want. At any pace you want

You'll get your round trip fare, an Avis car with unlimited mileage, a choice of 3 different styles of accommodations (double occupancy), and a hotel discount card. Plus touring guides, maps, and a booklet listing all Fly/Drive hotels.

There's another Fly/Drive Tour. On this one you'll get hotels, sightseeing, and a cassette to put in your car (now it's called the Auto Cassette Tour). It has a prepared itinerary, with information and stories about each place you go.

We've put forty-seven vacation ideas for different countries throughout Europe in the Europe Fly/Drive, Fly/Cruise Brochure.

METEOR MOTORCOACH TOURS. ¹619 TO ¹1149.

You fly to one point. That's it. The rest of the trip (except the flight home of course) is done in a Deluxe air-conditioned "Meteor" Motorcoach. This is a whole new kind of coach with extra large seats, reclining headrests, and extra leg room. All in all, the most comfortable coach you'll ever ride in.

You'll get transportation between the airport and hotel (double occupancy). The hotel will always be a first class one complete with private bath, Continental breakfast, and, in some of the cities, a table d'hôte dinner. And all tips are taken care of.

You'll go sightseeing with a multilingual guide who will be on the bus the whole time.

There are 14 motorcoach tours you can take to many European countries. And they're all in the book.

SEND FOR TWA'S FREE GETAWAY EUROPE BOOKS.

Fly/Drive, Fly/Cruise Book you'll see just how much there is to choose from. Eighty-four tours in all. And we've been very thorough planning them.

You should make your reservations no later than 40 days before you want to leave (first departure dates are April 1 through October 31). The books will give you a complete outline of every single tour we offer.

Right down to the last detail. The fares in the brochures are subject to change. But on TWA, you're getting the lowest legal price for comparable service and routes. And we form the groups and set departure dates.
There are also helpful hints about passports and customs, duty,

Voice of Lakers' doesn't put all his eggs in one basket

By BOB MARTIN TV-Radio Editor

If happiness is having the right job, then Chick Hearn has to rate as one of the world's most happy

"Can you think of anything you'd rather do for a living than what you're doing now?" I asked the noted

"Oh; my, no!" Chick immediately responded. And I've never heard any words that sounded more sincere. Chick's enthusiasm for his work, especially as the "Voice of the Lakers," is quickly evident to anyone who has ever tuned in the Lakers on television or radio. It is a key factor in his tremendous popularity with Laker fans, most of whom will tell you he is the greatest basketball announcer in the history of the

: But Hearn doesn't put all his announcing eggs in just one basket. Over the years he has covered just about every sport you could name at one time or another. And, though not as widely known for football as for basketball, Chick does the USC Trojan games in the football season; they are carried on KTLA (Channel 5) on a delayed basis.

"I'm very lucky," Chick told me at lunch one day last week at the Wilshire Country Club. "I'm probably the only sportscaster with two world champions."

The basketball-football announcer also has a six-nights-a-week bowling show on Channel 5 called "Bowl-ing for Dollars." He's the host for the game show pro-gram, which sees seven ordinary, amateur men and women bowlers try for two strikes and a jackpot on women bowlers try for two strikes and a Jackpot on each half-hour program. Viewers at home send in cards as "Pin Pals," and if their name is drawn by a winning bowler they win an equal share of the money. The jackpot keeps growing until someone gets two consecutive strikes. Though not many contestants hit the jackpot, the bowlers and their "Pin Pals" get small amounts of cash for each pin knocked down.

How does Chick Hearn do it — host six shows a week in addition to doing home and road games of the Lakers?

"It's not as difficult as it might seem," he explained. "This evening, for example, we'll do five of the half-hour shows. We'll tape them one after the other, shooting from about 6 to 10 p.m."

KTLA had Brunswick construct two Astro-line lanes at the studio. Bowlers chosen to appear on the program are allowed to bring their own "cheering section" — family or friends who are briefly shown on

"We've been astounded at the success of this program," Chick told me. "I thought it might last 13 weeks, but I'm told it has been varying between No. 1 and 2 in the entire Los Angeles market for its time

"Bowling for Dollars," which got its start last July, airs from 7 to 7:30 p.m. each Monday through Saturday, except when occasionally preempted. When first started, it was on from Tuesday through Friday. The program is a spinoff from the popular "Duckpins and Dollars" show on WBAL-TV in Baltimore.

"I understand KTLA received over 100,000 cards in just one week from bowlers and Pin Pals," Chick said.

"It's amazing."

"The show is quite a change of pace for you from covering the Lakers, isn't it?" I inquired.

Hearn, who is famous for his rapid-fire descriptions of basketball action, gave a hearty chuckle. "Yes," he agreed, "the pace is entirely different."

He proves he can talk at normal speed when chattered the cartering of his bowling show.

ting with each of the contestants on his bowling show, but I'll have to admit, nevertheless, that I began my one-on-one confrontation with Chick with a bit of trepi-dation. After all, I didn't have a tape recorder along, and what reporter could hope to keep up with the fastest tongue in the West?

My worries were groundless. We had a leisurely lunch while looking out upon the Wilshire Country Club golf course, and Chick made no attempt to dazzle me with his verbal fast break.

"Have you always been able to speak as fast as you can now?" I inquired. "Yes, I think I've always had the ability — but I didn't always realize it," Hot Lips Hearn replied. "I consider it a God-given talent, and I advise prospective sportscasters not to try to talk so fast if it doesn't come naturally. They just can't do Chick pointed out that he would not use nearly so many words as a telecaster were it not for the fact that he is also reporting the Laker games for radio (KFI), "What I try to do is to present a word picture so that the radio listener can see what is happening on the. court." he explained.

Hearn's accounts of the Laker games are so well-liked by Laker fans that many of them bring their radios to the home games in the Forum and listen to Chick as they watch the competition.

Doug Ives, who covers the Lakers for The Independent, Press-Telegram, told me that Jack Kent Cooke installed a lot of expensive equipment in the Forum just so the fans could use their transisters and listen to Chick.

"Half the crowd might be laughing, and the other half wonders what Chick sald now," Ives said.
"The cold now." Ives said.

The Laker announcer has, of course, contributed many colorful phrases to the language of basketball. Many have been picked up by other broadcasters, and some would have to rank as cliches by this time. But some would have to that as cheens by this time. But they're all music to the ears of Laker fans — "he got faked into the popcorn machine," "alley-oop," "hotdog play," "ficky tack call," "house that Jack built," "garbage time," "no-harm, no-foul," "heartbreak shot," "a frozen rope," "bunny hop," "give-and-go," "stutter step," "don't-hurt no-more-stuff" and others.

Ives informed me that Chick is known as "Golden Throat" to the Lakers themselves. The players also call him "Motor Mouth," a label that Elgin Baylor once owned.

According to Ives, Hearn is popular with the players and the press. "He often entertains the whole bushoad with his stories," Doug told me. "He can be quite humorous. And he often fabricates stories for the rookies." Chick also is said to hold court behind the bar in the press lounge at the Forum after each home game.

As the Laker sportscaster, Chick works for Jack Kent Cooke, not KTLA. (The Laker broadcasts have changed stations over the years, but Chick has been doing the games ever since the team moved to Los Angeles in 1960.) Since last summer, Hearn has had the title of assistant general manager of the Lakers.

"Mr. Cooke has been very good to me," Chick told me. "I am able to take other assignments, such as the bowling program, so long as they do not interfere with my Laker duties."

Chick is a native of Aurora, Ill. He played basketball (forward), baseball (first base) and football (end) in high school there and also at Aurora College. ("At 6-3 I was pretty tall for a forward in those days.") He pass-was pretty tall for a torward in those days.") He passed up an opportunity to go with a big league baseball team system, but played AAU basketball and became a basketball official in the Big Ten.

After serving in World War II he became "a very successful pharmaceutical salesman," but quit that for a $47-a-week job at a smalltown radio station in Those to world be small town radio station in the salesman. Illinois. Then he worked his way up to Peoria, where he broadcast the Bradley University basketball games, among other things, and then to Chicago, where he covered all sports on radio.

CBS brought him West in the mid-fifties to broadcast USC football and basketball, and then he became sports director of KNBC-TV (Channel 4).

As the "Voice of the Lakers" ever since the team .

moved to California, Chick has had, in the view of many sports observers, as much to do with the success of the team as such superstars as Baylor, Jerry West and Wilt Chamberlain.

Despite Hearn's great popularity with TV viewers and radio listeners — and despite the many awards he has won as a sportscaster — he is not satisfied with his performance. "I'm always trying to improve," he told me, 'I frequently play tapes of my broadcasts and try to determine how I could do better. My wife helps me on this, too. She is quite knowledgeable about sports and can offer a lot of constructive criticism. I'm also a hard worker when it comes to preparing for a particular game. I spend a lot of time getting all the information I can about opposing teams. And I try to by impartial, though it's not always easy."

I asked Chick if he would like to mention the names of sportscasters whose work he either admires or doesn't admire.

"I'd rather not say anything about the ones I dou't like, but you'd have to say that Vin Scully is at the head of the class in baseball. And I would rate Ray Scott as the best at covering football," Chick replied.

"What do you think about so many famous ex-athletes going into broadcasting?"

"I have no objection to the ones who are competent," he said, "But many of them are not competent. The late Paul Christman was probably the best at foot-

"Would you care to name an all-star basketball team — at least among players of your time?" Replied Chick: "Well, you'd have to say Russell, Chamberlain or Aleiador at center. Then it would be Baylor and Bob Pettet at forward and West and Oscar Robertson at guard. But there are so many others who are so very close that it's really difficult to say.

"You know, I have tremendous admiration for athletes who excel in their particular sports. And I especially respect the ones who might not have great natural ability but who become good through a lot of hard

'Happy talk' news just fad, says Edwards

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (P) - The engineer flashed the goahead sign to the short, conservatively dressed man seated in front of the microphone at the CBS studio on West 57th Street.

"This is the CBS News Douglas Edwards reporting on the CBS Radio network," Edwards said as he launched into the second of five broadcasts he does for the network five days a week.

It was a familiar begin-ning and it should be. He's starting his 31st year with CBS News, with 25 of those years spent as a news anchorman on CBS Television. It's a record no other network anchorman on the tube today ean claim.

Edwards is of the old school of broadcasting. His presentation of the news is deliberate, straightforward and withdeliberate. out verbal or visual tomfoolery. He isn't exactly a "happy talk" newsman.

And he laughs - which you never see him doing on television — when asked whether the "happy talk" news format seen on local television stations here and elsewhere is the wave of the future.

"As they say, I'm glad you asked that," he said. "I think it's a fad. I think we're going to see the pendulum swing back a bit, but not to something stiff or mundane and boring.

"I think the happy talk news has served its purpose, which is to say Look, relax a bit. Let's not be so formal. You're talking to people in their homes.

"I think the main thing now is to be believable, not immy."

Edwards, now 55, is a native of Ada, Okla. He's been in broadcasting for 40 years. He first went on the air as a high school student in Troy, Ala., where he worked on a 100watt station.

He was paid nothing at the start, then got a whop-ping salary hike — $2.50 a week. He earns a bit more be either a broadcaster or a doctor and, having set-tled on the later, put in two years as a pre-med student at the University of Alabama.

His mother, a school-teacher, wasn't wealthy and he had to drop out of college to work and earn enough to go back to school. And that's how he really got into the broadcasting business.

He never did graduate, but after five years as a newsman for station WSB in Atlanta and WXYZ in Detroit, he was tapped by CBS News in 1942 to take over its "The World Today" news program. He was sent to London in late 1944 as a war correspondent, but never got to the various fronts as the war neared its end. After a postwar stint as CBS' Paris bureau chief, he came back home.

While working on radio, he was chosen as CBS' first television anchorman in 1947. The television network then consisted of one station in New York and one film crew to serve it.

The news came on once a week, for 15 minutes each Saturday night. It became a five-day a week operation in 1948 as new stations joined the net-work. The 15-minute format remained intact and didn't expand to the cur-rent half-hour until 1963.

Edwards anchored the CBS Evening News until 1962, when the increased success of NBC's six-yearold "Huntley-Brinkley" news program forced CBS brass to change anchor-

The BIBLE

Says

Question: Upon what basis is Christ called "the Son of David"?

It is assumed that the querist has reference to the fact that Jesus was born at a virgin — thus, how could He be the son Jesus was born as a wrigin — thus, now could refee the soli of David if Jospeh was not the actual father? (It should be understood that "son of" merely means descendant of.) First, let us say that the virgin birth is clearly taught in the Bible, and members of the church of this place believe every word of It. (Mr. 1,18, 20, 25). But the virgin birth does not at all present problems with Jesus' being called the "son of David."

The prophets taught that the Messiah to come would be a son of David (Jer. 23:5) and the promise was given to David himself (2 Sam. 7:12-13). Mary, the physical mather of Jesus (Gal. 4:4) was descended from the lineage of David (Luke 1.27; Rom. 1.3). And Joseph, though not the actual father of Jesus, but still His legal father, was also a "son of David" (Mott. 1:20).

The genealogy of the first book of the New Testament sets forth Jesus Christ as "the son of David, the son of Abroham" (Mt. 1.1). The Messian was to be the son of David and Jesus Christ fulfilled this qualification from the physical side (Mary) and also from the legal side (Joseph). Thus, Jesus Christ is the Messiah.

DIVORCE HIS/Divorce
Hers (7), 8:30 p.m.—Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton make their TV dramatic debuts in a 2part "Movie of the Week" probing the dissolution of a marriage from the view of each of the parties. Tonight it's "his" story of the marriage, recalled as he returns to their Rome home after two years on business in Africa, and recalling in flashbacks the violent loves and battles of their 18 years together.
As a reconciliation seems near, he's suddenly called near, he's suddenly called back to Africa. ("Her" story airs tomorrow. same time.)

CITIES: Our Next Frontier (7), 6:30 p.m.: — In the second of ABC's "What About Tomorrow" series, Jules Bergman looks at what technology looks at what technology can do to improve urban life. In Boston, he talks with MIT's Richard Lar-son and examines a com-puter simulator which en-ables the city to use its police manpower more effectively and which effectively, and which soon will be added to Bos-ton's fire department and ambulance dispatchers.

CENTERFOLD Pets (13), 7 p.m. — Bill Burrad looks into the selection of looks into the selection of girls — and men — for centerfold photos in magazines and calendars — and at how the publicity has affected careers of Stella Stevens and Burt Reynolds. Included are a confrontation between the models and women's libbers, and the prediction of bers, and the prediction of psychologist Clifton James as to the sex sym-bol of the future.

By CLARKE WILLIAMSON

"All in the Family" seldom finishes second to anything. But among readers who responded to our poll, it trails a couple of Jack Webb's young cops in their patrol car, "Adam 12." Is it because of teen ager adulation, would you guess? Got you there. The kids lean more toward Archie Bunker! But they like Reed and Malloy only a wee bit less.

It's mostly the middle aged and oldsters who accelerate the men in blue to the top ranking. "Sanford and Son" is a close third, deted upon, especially, by senior viewers. Here's how the readers rate various programs:

Adam 12, NBC, 77.9, superb. Adl in the Family, CBS, 74.4, superb. Sanford and Son, NBC, 73.6, good. Password, ABC, 71.8, good. Special of the Week, PBS, 64.8, fair. One Life to Live, ABC, 58.7, fair. One Life to Live, ABC, 58.7; fair.
Night Gallery, NBC, 57.7; fair.
Bewitched, ABC, 55.5; fair.
Tonight Show, NBC, 55.3; fair.
Amazing Chan and Chan Chan, CBS, 42.6; awful.

"There is a memory stays on old ships: A weighty cargo in the musty hold of bright lagoons and prowcaressing lips of stormy midnights — and a tale untold.

They have remembered islands in the dawn and windy capes that tried their slender spars, the tortuous channels where their keels have gone and calm blue nights of stillness and the stars.

Ah, never think that ships forget a shore, or bitter seas or winds that made them wise; there is a dream upon them evermore ..." David Morton.

Wells Report

Dat Kine Tourism

HONOLULU — "The Japanese task force which attacked Pearl Harbor in 1941 got its orders mixed up," jests Honolulu publicist Bob Alderman. "It was told to buy Hawaii, not bomb it."

It is only one of the wry jokes retold in the Islands these days. The second Japanese invasion of Hawaii is well underway. The tactics this time involve dollars and tourists. Last year some 235, 000 Japanese tourists visited Hawaii. This year 300,000 are expected. Japanese investments in hotels, restaurants and real estate already total more than a quarter billion dollars and are rising rapidly.

The reaction of the kamaainas, or resident Hawaiians, to all this attention from Nippon is mixed. Businessmen and economists generally hail it as a needed shot in the arm for the Island economy. But other residents already deeply concerned about overbuilding and the environmental problems of population explosion, aren't so sure.

And just as some Canadians worry about the "economic colonialism" of the United States in their country, many Hawaii citizens including some of Japanese ancestry are increasingly concerned about potential Japanese economic colonialism.

Alderman, onetime executive secretary of California Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, who moved to the Islands in the 1950s, points out that Japanese tourists leave little money in Hawaii compared to American tourists.

"They buy and pay for their tour package in Japan. They come here and stay in Japanese-owned hotels and eat in Japanese restaurants. What shopping they do is usually in the duty-free shops at the airport just before returning to Japan. It doesn't help our balance-of-payments problem."

The balance-of-payments problem is what aroused Japanese interest in the 50th State in the first place. Japanese firms had a surplus of American dollars from sales of automobiles, TV sets, radios and other Japanese products in the United States. How could they reinvest all those dollars?

Hawaii seemed a likely answer, it is only seven hours by jet from Japan. Americans of Japanese ancestry comprise 26.9 per cent of the population of the Islands. Use of Japanese is more common in Hawaii than use of Spanish in Southern California. Japanese tourists can read shop signs, make themselves understood and enjoy home cooking.

Vacationing in Hawaii is becoming as much a way of life for middle-class Japanese as vacationing in Miami has become for affluent New Yorkers. The Japanese are courteous, seldom complain about bad service, food or accommodations and never get into drunken arguments.

Toshio Sagumi drives a cab in Waikiki. He is one American who does profit from Japanese tourism. But he, too, has doubts about the Japanese economic invasion.

"You gotta unnuhstan da kine t'ing we got in Hawaii," he says in the Island argot. "We got evert'ing all mix up, dat kine. We all go school togedduh — Japanese, Chinese, haole, Filipino, Samoan.

"When da Japanese dey attack Pearl Harbor, dey send all Japanese on West Coast to da concentration camp. Dey want to send us in Hawaii to da concentration camp too. But we all go school togedduh, an' all da rest, dey rise up an' say 'No, can't do dat kine t'ing to American citizens.' So dey don't do it.

"But da Japanese come in an' buy up all da hotels, da golf courses, dat kine t'ing. I play golf myself and dey make dat old Francis Brown Golf Course one beautiful course. But da Hawaiian people, dey want to own dere own t'ings. Dat's why we fight so hard for dat kine statehood."

Some 23,000 Japanese tourists descended on Hawaii for New Year's holiday, Just 10 days before, health authorities reported that Waikiki Beach was contaminated by sewage bacteria to a point beyond tolerance levels. No attempt was made to ban swimming and the pollution soon dropped to acceptable counts. Authorities blamed the contamination on windy weather and played down the whole episode.

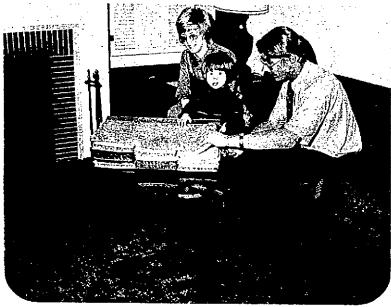

But many Hawaiians wondered how long their paradise can continue as Paradise under the onslaught of ever-increasing hordes of tourists from both the mainland and from Japan.

Elizabeth Taylor . . finds the Big Four-O appealing

John Lindsay . . . hasn't given up yet

Jack Paar . . . not hungry for jack ... yet

Mae West . . don't shake her tree

Winston Churchill ... daughter had secret on him ked that!

Was beautiful Elizabeth Taylor worried about reaching the point of no return, age 40? — Mrs. Jessica Arthur, Rubidoux, Cal.

On the contrary. Considering the alternative, Liz is thrilled to be in the 40s. "Forty always sounded so important, the Big Four-O," she says. "it's halfway or more through life but I find it so appealing. I've always wanted to be older. I think it's fantastic. I find myself much more relaxed and confident and aware now. I don't entirely approve of some of the things I've done or am or have been. But I'm me. God knows, I'm me!"

Hasn't Mayor John Lindsay given up on wanting to be President? — Mrs. R. Rebalde, Brooklyn.

Not yet. Although the colorful mayor admits: "I got washed out so badly in Florida and Wisconsin that if I said yes, I still want to be President, no one would believe me. Including my wife, my four children and my three friends!"

Q: Now that Jack Paar is back I hear he's going to eventually replace Dick Cavett completely. Is this the deal? — Harold Chait, Philadelphia.

No. Paar's not that hungry for jack. Rankled at the recurring rumor, he explained: "Dick once worked for me and he's an old friend. I couldn't see myself taking over that show — certainly not as his immediate replacement. Dick's a favorite of the intellectuals and the columnists. Can you imagine how they'd jump on me if I came in to replace him?"

Here's one that'll stump you, I bet. What vaudevillian sang a song called "If You Don't Want My Peaches, Don't Shake My Tree"? — Harvey Rosen, St. Louis.

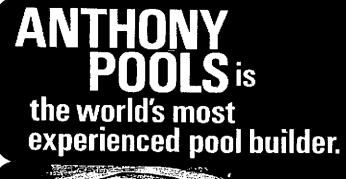

As Mae West. Accompanied on the piano by the late Harry Richman.

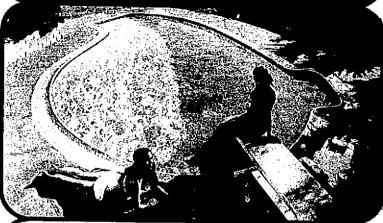

ls it true that Winston Churchill's daughter Sarah once had secret information about England's invasion plans, which she refused to "reveal" to her father? — Anna S., Washington, D.C.

Here's the real story — as we got it from Sarah Churchill herself. "At a family dinner one evening Papa looked at his watch and said dramatically, 'At this very moment, 542 ships, under the cover of darkness, are sailing through the Straits of Gibraltar.' I knew he thought this invasion information was top secret," Sarah smilingly recalled, "but I couldn't help correcting him. 'You mean 543 ships," she said softly — explaining that as a WAAF she was privy to such restricted information.

As a 19-year-old Burt Reynolds fan, I'd like to know what he sees in an older woman like Dinah Shore. Could you ask him? Also, how did they meet? — S. Luchson, Shreveport, La.

"We fell in love after meeting on her talk show," says Burt. "And I know what people think — what's a virile-looking stud like me doing with an older woman like her? Well, the fact is I consider myself terribly lucky to be as close as I am to Dinah. I don't know and I'm not interested in knowing her age. I've received from Dinah as much as I've given. We're good for each other." Reynolds also told writer Colin Dangaard that Dinah has the body of a 25-year-old, with the mind of a cultured, mature woman. (See Jan. 21 Southland Sunday.)

This can save you money and headaches!

Our experience in building 55,000 pools — more than any other builder in the world — will save you money! It also assures quality and dependability. How else could we become the world's largest pool builder?

Our unequalled construction volume gives us less costs per pool. These savings are passed along to you.

We manufacture a full line of pool equipment and accessories — thus eliminating the middleman's profit. Again, these big savings are passed on to you.

But the advantage of an all-Anthony equipped pool doesn't stop here. You are also sure your pool will be built quickly—without delay for parts or accessories.

Should anything go wrong someday on any part of your pool you need only call Anthony and we'll be there to correct your problem quickly and courteously.

Don't settle for second best when you can have an Anthony pool for less money. And skip the headaches.

DIARY OF A

By COMMODORE DONALD M. MACLEAN

Commodore Donald MacLean served aboard the Queen Mary as senior second officer in the 30s and became staff captain in November 1948, serving until the following April. In June 1959 he took command of the ship to relieve its ailing captain, Andrew MacKellar, who subsequently died and whose ashes MacLean buried at sea. MacLean also was captain of the Queen Elizabeth and later was named commodore of the Cunard Line, owner of the two Queens.

Kings and queens, presidents, prime ministers and all the great commanders of World War II have walked the decks of the Queen Mary and slept in her staterooms.

In wartime the flower of America's youth and that of her allies crossed the oceans in this mighty ship to fight in the cause of freedom - many of those gave their tomorrow for our today.

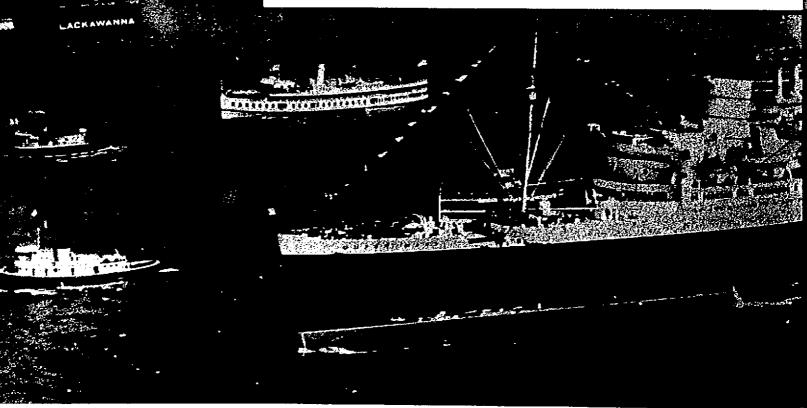

Grave decisions affecting the future of mankind have been taken behind the closed doors of some of this famous ships' public rooms. It has been said that it was in his stateroom on the main cleck that Sir Winston. Churchill examined in detail the top secret plan for the invasion of France for the first time.

The Mary, now in Long Beach, has earned an enduring place in the nation's history.

Work on the Queen Mary began in December 1930. In April 1931 Sir Percy Bates, as chairman of Cunard, publicly outlined the company's intention of conducting its transatlantic express service using two vessels instead of three. At that time the service was maintained by the Aquitania, Berengaria and Mauretania.

In December 1931, because of the worldwide financial depression, work was stopped on the Queen Mary. As a condition for government financial assistance, Cunard and the White Star Line merged and work resumed on the Queen Mary in April 1934.

She was launched September 26, 1934 — "the inevitable ship" — inevitable in the sense that as technical know-how and passenger demand grew, a ship 1,000 feet long would have to be built.

In December 1936 work began on the Queen Elizabeth. She was launched in September 1938 but because of World War II did not join the Queen Mary as a commercial passenger vessel until October 1946.

The ultimate in transatlantic passenger service, the ships remained in active sea service long enough to realize that they had been built for a type of public which no longer existed. The speedier airplane had beaten them into the market of modern travel so the Queen Mary and her sister ship, the Queen Elizabeth, became the last of their magnificent breed.

In the course of the Queen Mary's initial shakedown cruise in the English Channel, during which she carried many distinguished naval designers as well as members of Parliament and the public, there were several people who commented on the fact that the ship was not litted with the usual handrails along her corridors and stairways. The chairman's reply to these criticisms unfortunately proved unduly optimistic. He claimed that the Mary was so large she would naturally remain steady in the roughest seas and that handrails would be quite unnecessary.

How wrong he proved to be was soon revealed when the Mary ran into her first equinoctial gale in 1936. On her initial encounter with the deep-bosomed Atlantic billows, she rolled and pitched so violently passengers and crew found great difficulty in trying to walk across the large expanses of highly polished decks leading to the public rooms, elevators and promenades. The havoc inflicted on crockery and furniture, as well as injury to elderly people, was so serious that the speed had to be very considerably reduced in bad weather.

Within the first six months of her sea career the whole of the Mary's accommodation was fitted with handrails and stormlines together with the requisite stanchions. Before the onset of heavy weather all these precautions were diligently attended to, but at best these were merely palliatives and the ship continued to roll and plunge as before, and many of us preferred to sleep on the cabin decks to sleeping in our bunks. The enormous costs incurred by heavy weather damage harassed the insurance companies as well as the Cunard Line but the latter's main worry now was the falling off in the number of female passengers carried on winter voyages.

It was not until 1958 after much research that the Cunard found the cure for the Mary's too lively behavior and duly fitted her with a double set of Denny-Brown anti-roll stabilizers at a cost of about $2 million. The price was high but it eliminated the ship's roll to a minimum. And very soon all our usual women passengers were sailing with us again in all weathers.

It highlights the Cunard's holdness in launching a ship of the Mary's size when it is recalled that the biggest Cunarder built hitherto had been the Aquitania of 44,786 gross tons. The Mary was 81.137 gross tons.

If up ended, the Mary would be about 40 feet taller than the Eiffel Tower, about three times as high as the cross atop St. Paul's Cathedral and only about 230 feet short of the top story of the Empire State Building.

During her service as a troopship the Mary carried 810,730 persons and steamed 661,771 miles,

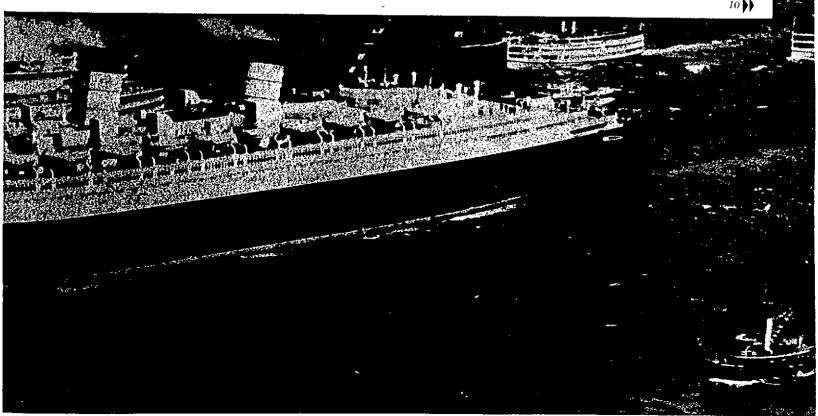

For the buildup of troops for the invasion of France, she frequently carried more than 16,500 soldiers at a time on her Atlantic crossings.

An interesting minor sidelight was the military instruction to the chef. He had to cook two eggs for every soldier on board each morning, and it is authoritively stated that the ham-slicing machines in the ship never stopped working at sea or in port.

On normal passenger service you would find crewmen filling such unusual sea roles as dog kennel attendant, Turkish bath man and head gardener. The latter's main duties were the care of exotic plants and flowers for the deluxe suites, dining room tables and, perhaps more important, the provision of fresh-blooming orchids as a predimier corsage surprise for fortunate celebrities on board. Cunard's bill for fresh flowers ran into $2,400 in those days (1950-60) each trip.

Sir Winston Churchill paid this tribute to he "Queens."

"Built for the arts of peace and to link the Old World with the new, the Queens challenged the fury of Hitlerism in the Battle of the Atlantic. At a speed never before realized in war, they carried over a million men to defend the liberties of civilization. Often whole divisions at a time were moved by each ship . . . To the men who contributed to the success of our operations in the years of peril . . . the world owes a debt that it will not be easy to measure," Churchill said.

Despite her liveliness in rough weather the Mary was tremendously responsive to the demands on her speed and pilots all agree she steered like a yacht. From 1938 she held the Blue Riband of the Atlantic for 14 years, and this proud speed record in all weathers was maintained at a time before radar was invented.

She was so ruggedly built that she was never known to do any significant damage to herself when, owing to prolonged bad weather, she had to be driven a little harder to maintain important schedules. This innate strength saved the Mary on two occasions.

On Oct. 2, 1942, while she was sleaming at high speed from New York to the Scottish troop-disembarkation port of Gourock with about 12,000 combat troops on board, she was instructed to rendezvous with the British cruiser, H.M.S. Curacoa. Without escort save a lone "Flying Fortress," and relying on her magnificent speed and a zig-zag course, she had eluded the lurking U-boats.

At a point some 50 miles northwest of Ireland, the Curacoa closed in and took up her escort station ahead of the Mary, both ships on high speed zig-zag courses — a somewhat hazardous operation in narrowing waters and one demanding unerring seamanship of the highest order. As they approached the mine and submarine-infested North Channel, between Ireland and Scotland, the four attendant escort destroyers took up their factical positions.

Various versions have been given of the tragic events on that clear October alternoon but the fact remains that the cruiser Curacoa was rammed by the Mary and cut clean in two and she literally steamed right through her. It was indeed a grievous mishap and an appalling sight for the young and inexperienced C.Is. as they crowded the Mary's deck rails. Many of them had never been aboard a ship before. And now they goggled in dazed amazement at the sea on both sides of the Queen, where hundreds of stunned and terribly injured Navymen floated amongst the debris, steam and smoke of the stricken cruiser. Three hundred and 38 lives were lost.

A prompt and agonizing decision, not to stop to rescue survivors, had to be taken by Captain Illingworth of the Mary, for to stop in those treacherous waters would certainly have been considered irresponsible madness. And so the task of picking up the 92 pitiable survivors was left to the escort destroyers.

On a very different occasion the Mary's enormous strength was tested again.

While lying in the outer harbor at Cherbourg on the night of Jan. 1, 1949, the ship had threatening weather suddenly erupt over it in a gale of hurricane violence. After heaving up the port anchor, we tried to weigh the starboard one but found it immovable. We applied maximum electrical power to the windlass and eventually the anchor slowly broke surface only to badly entangle with three black sinister-looking tentacles about six inches in diameter.

The tentacles turned out to be sections of the secret petrol pipeline running along the sea bed from England to France, used by the Allies during the invasion of Normandy, and known to some by its secret code name, PLUTO, short for pipeline under the ocean.

The wind was gusting in squalls of sleet and vivid lightning. Unable to clear the starboard anchor, we dropped the port one again as the ship began to drift shorewards. All hands were ordered on deck and after working throughout the night in blinding rain squalls attempting to burn and cut this heavy copper-reinforced rubber piping with little success, the Mary was eventually driven ashore onto the dreaded Saline Bank and there we remained, unhappily on a falling tide.

I well remember Monsieur Guy Frelant, our French pilot, coming into the charthouse and gloomily observing to Captain Grattidge and me (then staff captain): "If the ship is too far up on the Saline Bank, she will break her back when the tide falls to dead low water." An agonizing thought to add to our other perplexities.

Our crew of 1,260 was alerted to the possibility of having to land our 1,700 passengers in the ship's own lifeboats and emergency plans to lighten the ship by removing fuel and water ballast and were prepared during what seemed a very long night.

The piercing shriek of the wind made orders inaudible on the foredeck where 70 rainswept seamen wrestled with a snarl of heavy wireropes and unwieldy anchor chain. Exposed deck telephones were rendered useless. During a brief lull we managed to take soundings with the leadline enabling us to indicate to the attendant tug boats in which direction to pull in order to prevent our being pushed farther up on the sandbank.

By dawn the wind eased and veered to the northwest. The tide fell away 19 feet and the Mary's stern remained perilously suspended on the bank for some five anxious hours before the next high water made.

The wind remained in our favor, and just before the new high water reached its peak, the ship slid gently off the bank, and, as our stern happened to be pointed out of the harbor, we put the main engines to full astern and backed out between the two breakwaters. But it was not until we were well outside the harbor that we were finally able to cast off the last remnants of the tenacious Pluto tentacles.

And, although the Mary had dented her heel slightly, her back remained unhurt. A prayer had been answered and the Old Lady lived to weather the Atlantic storms for another 18 years.

When in command of the Queen Mary I occasionally had the good fortune to find that I had at my table someone who had crossed over the ship as a G.L. when she was serving as a troupship. These gentlemen, most of whom were now prosperous business men with families — and usually articulate — enlivened mealtimes at the captain's table with nostalgic reminiscences contrasting the fine flavor of the Queen's gracious living with their spartan days in the wartime Mary.

One traveller, now a socialite, admitted to an amused table that his finest memory of the Mary as a trooper was "those wonderful nights shooting craps way down below decks in the dormitories." Apart from this absorbing type of entertainment, life on board the troopship was rigorous.

The routine was generally this: As each enlisted man, carrying his full military equipment stepped up the Queen's gangplank at New York, he was handed a card informing him of his station in the ship during the Atlantic crossing, his various tasks, mealtimes and where to muster in any emergency. Then he was conducted to his bunk somewhere in the bowels of the ship where he dumped his paraphernalia. These bunks or "standees" as they were called, stood in long tiers anywhere from three to five high depending on headroom, with short aluminum step ladders to the upper bunks. The degree of physical movement depended on the number of troops being carried.

During capacity loads each soldier was only allowed eight hours use of his standee in strict rotation. This was known as "the warm bunk system,

Each G.I. was served two meals daily, usually in five or six sittings. The first breakfast commenced about 6 a.m. and first luncheon was served about 12:30 p.m. After his meal each man cleaned his mess tim under a hot water faucet and then proceeded to his next duty as shown on his card. To relieve any interim hunger there was a well-stocked PX in each section. The ship was divided into red, white and blue zones - and woe betide any G.I. found outside his correct zone without permission.

Conditions on board were cramped for officers as well as enlisted men and discipline was faut. It had to be so when ferrying a whole division of raw soldiers across a beligerent Atlantic with any degree of control.

During the dark hours, smoking or showing the merest flicker of any sort of light was a punishable offense.

Usually the majority of troops were embarked at New York by night, and the ship sailed at dawn. On account of the extra weight of troops, accoutrements, extra life rafts, food stores and tresh water as well as overseas mails, the Mary had to have a special dispensation from the British Board of Trade to load the ship more than two feet over her normal loadline.

This whole operation seen in retrospect would appear as one of the fantastic successes of the war. And it has been stated by Cunard that the availability of the two mammoth Queens shortened World War II by a year.

Sometimes in the postwar years as I strolled along the Mary's flower-decked promenades while the traditional English tea and crumpets were being elegantly served by deferential stewards to cossetted passengers, I would reflect on the fact that right here on this particular deck in wartime, 800 soldiers lived in spartan bleakness and , except for their twice daily meals, hardly moved away from their canvas standees.

There was one G.t. diversion which was not at all popular with the ship's people and that was the carving of their initials on the ship's hitherto immaculately maintained teakwood rails. Sentries on night duty on the upper decks relieved the monotony of the long hours by using their sharp knives to carve their initials, date and, in some cases, their hometown. By the end of 1945, there was hardly an inch of this line teakwood that was not deeply incised with some lonely G.I's

On postwar crossings those carved initials became quite a sentimental showpiece and the Cunard Line decided to retain them for a time. They rightly felt this to be a small tribute to those G.I.s who failed to return to their homeland. A section of the Mary's initial-carved rail was sent to the U.S. Army Museum in New York, as a very personal souvenir of the

During the second year of her commission, the Mary suffered a grievous loss when her much loved captain, Sir Edgar Britton, was found unconscious on the deck of his night cabin by his old servant when he went to wake him an early sailing morning at Southampton. Prompt medical attention was administered but it failed to rally him, and he was carried ashore on a stretcher. He died a few hours later in a hospital. It was considered by many that the prodigious amount of lavish entertaining, not only at sea but in England and America during the first hectic 15 months of the Mary's bright career, had undermined this normally quiet-living man's constitution.

Commenting on this sad occasion, a leading newspaper said: "Though rather shy, Sir-Edgar was never lacking in the social graces."

It was in October 1948, while berthed at New York, that the Mary was struck by tragedy again.

Her second officer, who had an important appointment ashore, was patiently waiting to be relieved by Third Officer Marshall. After many anxious glances at the wardroom clock, he decided to go and look for his relief. As he reached the landing at the head of the officers' stairway, he happened to look down the steps and there to his horror he saw the slumped body of young Marshall lying at the bottom.

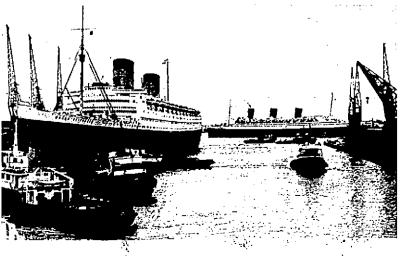

The ship's surgeon was summoned immediately, and after a brief examination, he pronounced the third officer dead.

There was definitely no question of any insobriety. Apparently the officer, who was young and nimble, was heard running up the somewhat narrow stairway. And then, for some unknown reason — possibly to look at the clock which was overhead - he stopped and apparently turned back and, in so doing, fell headlong backwards and fractured his neck when he hit the deck at the bottom of the stairway.

Despite these rather personal recollections and it must be remembered that a crew of a ship of the Mary's size was liable to the same vicissitudes as the community of any small town -- my own most enduring memories of her are chiefly of bright and exciting

There were gala evenings on board during each crossing when the captain gave his farewell dinner. This would be the signal for a whole series of parties throughout the ship and the Mary would suddenly glow with the infectious carnival spirit.

In the early years of her heydey, she had few competitors in the field of really luxurious Atlantic travel, and naturally she attracted the top people of every walk of life. And these, not subject to the present day pressures, seemed to have a greater and richer disposition to enjoy themselves.

Sometimes in port there were glamorous charity balls, where dazzling tiaras and fabulous gowns lent their sparkle to the romantic atmosphere of the Mary's elegant main lounge. Eminent men and women from the world of science and society often foregathered on board in support of some worthy cause,

Many of our regular passengers over the years developed a sort of affinity, not only with the captains, but with those members of the crew whose more specific duties brought them into close contact with each other. I have seen this tradition, so to speak, continued through successive generations of certain families. And indeed have known of the financial aid given towards the education of some crew members' families.

It sounds a little incredible now, but those seamen and stewards who gave such devoted service to our passengers received a basic pay of about $8 a week!

In the course of time, the Queens crew established a fraternity of its own recondite brands of aristocracy and democracy. Although a ship is considered as merely the place where seafarers earn their living, the Mary's crew certainly brightened this image with its well attended social and athletic, events, cinema and clubs on board. It had its own English pub, "The Pig and Whistle," on board where excellent beer and tobacco were sold at the traditional duty free prices.

Once on each voyage the crew held its own concert when quite frequently a top drawer artist would voluntarily perform. Indeed it was considered a mark of very high favor for a mere passenger to be invited to one of these rollicking crew shows. I have, in fact, seen royalty as well as members of the upper crust, move over on their hard wooden benches to make room for a couple of furnace tenders in their jeans, straight up from the boiler room. We had a seaman in the Mary by the name of Eddy who could transport his shipmates into a state of frenzied ecstasy when, accompanied by a guitarist he sang, "Night and Day," a popular song at the time. I saw Eddy briefly and recently at Cowes, where he was serving as skipper of a sumpluous yacht. He does not sing any more now unfortunately, but the same deep sun-creased smile lit up his face as soon as we met.

There are many seafaring men serving in various parts of the world who perhaps owe their lives to the fact that the Mary was somewhere in the vicinity when their appendixes erupted or hernias strangulated.

There have been many unrecorded instances when the Mary in response to an urgent radio call for medical aid, has lowered her lifeboats and sent a surgeon across to take a stricken seaman from a lone freighter without a doctor.

Perhaps the most dramatic occasion was in January 1955 with the North Atlantic in its ugliest mood. The Panamanian ship, Liberator, tossing about in a northwesterly gale, radioed that two of her seamen had fallen into the ship's lower hold and were mortally wounded and required immediate medical assistance.

It was nearly 2 a.m. when the Mary guided by the fitful light of burning flares on the treighter and her own powerful searchlights, eventually found the storm-lashed Liberator. After an agonizing series of attempts by the Mary's lifeboats, the sixth one finally managed to bring the two gravely injured men back on board.

The visibility during this hazardous operation was frequently cut to nil by blinding hail squalls. And, by the time the last journey was completed, it was discovered that part of the boat's wire-rope falls were severely chafed by the inordinate snatching of the tackle in the

An eminent correspondent, writing at first hand, described Capt. Donald Sorrell (then in command) and his sailors as "absolutely brilliant seamen and capable of tremendous courage and heroism."

But life on the Mary was not always so crisis-ridden. A warm little memory of her that has always stayed with me was the time when I met my first real "Queen Mary citizen."

In the course of a morning stroll along the spacious boatdeck, I spotted a bunch of lively youngsters skylarking around the ship's lifeboat cavits. As 1 approached they scurried away as boys will but, to my surprise, one lad stopped and called the others back; whereupon they came to a standstill and assumed a pose of feigned attention. This was accompanied by a smart military salute from the lad and a cheerful "Good morning, captain!"

I was so taken by the youngster's pleasant manner, I stopped for a little chat.

The ship was pitching easily in a rising sea and I tentatively asked him if he felt the motion. "No, sir," he replied. "This is where I belong. I was born at sea right here in the Mary when my mother crossed over as a G.I. bride in 1946. "And then with a grin he added: "That's why I boss these other guys!"

The Queen Mary set forth on its final journey in October 1967. Here the ship says farewell to its native land and heads for Long Beach.

Our young boss was 14 years old.

In the course of the Mary's last few days in England, Capt. Treasure Jones invited me to take a last walk around my old ship, and more particularly a close look at her famous paying-off pennant which would be flown at her main masthead when she finally sailed from Southampton for Long Beach. The pennant was 310 feet long — 10 feet for every year of the ship's life in accordance with old naval tradition — and reputed to be the long-est such pennant ever flown by any ship on paying off. Captain Jones was certainly very proud of this enormous expanse of red, white and blue bunting. He gave a puckish grin when I observed that, of course, right up to the end everything in the Queen Mary had to be larger than life.

On this particular day, when the public was not admitted on board, and the vast ship's decks were completely deserted, an uncanny quiet hung over everything. Suddenly I became aware of a curiously emotive memory of well remembered laughter as I walked away from the fore end of the starboard side of the promenade deck where the great pennant hung from the overhead beams. At first I found it difficult to reconcile this pressing sensation to the surrounding stillness when suddenly it all came back to me in a nostalgic flash.

One bright spring morning just before the last war, I was taking a dutiful deck officer's stroll along this same deck and almost the identical spot, when my attention was suddenly attracted towards a rather hilarious party of a dozen passengers gathered around an eleganty laid table of snacks and drinks. In the center of the group a handsome man with a deep tan and a roguish smile kept up an almost continuous flow of lively banter.

Above the hubbub of conversation two typewriters contributed their own strident chatter. They all seemed to be having a ball but it was also obvious that they listened with rapt attention to their swarthy maestro.

This team consisted of the late Douglas Fairbanks Sr., then at the height of his screen fame and married to an English beauty, the former Lady Ashley, together with script writers and others now eminent in the theater world — all happily and busily engaged on a rewrite of their latest film, "The Black Pirate," I think it was.

What a fine team they might have made for the filming of the novel, "Assault on a Queen!"

During her last week in Southampton the Cunard Co, threw the Mary open to all past and present members of the crew. Oldtimers from all parts of the country came along to swap yarns with former shipmates and it proved to be the best get together they had experienced in years — the atmosphere was indeed touching. Among these were men who served in the ship when she was rushed off to Australia carrying many thousands of U.S. troops during the period when the rapid advance of Japanese forces poised a direct threat of eventual invasion of the subcontinent itself.

When the Japanese menace to Australia receded, the Mary swiftly ferried massive quantities of men and material from Australia and New Zealard across the Indian Ocean through the Gulf of Aden and the Red Sea to Suez for the big buildup that ended in the Battle of Alamein — and incidentally the first major victory for the Allies in World War II.

major victory for the Allies in World War II.

The majority of these old shipmates had served in the ship on the Atlantic both in peace and wartime when she ferried complete divisions of U.S. and Canadian troops for the supreme combat of the war, the invasion of France. There were among them some men who had also served in the Lizzie, but after listening to their intimate conversations I concluded that time had mellowed the deadly rivalry that once existed between the two Oueens' crews.

On a blustery October morning in 1967, when after 1,000 Atlantic crossings, the Mary finally sailed out of her old homeport, Southampton, thousands of well wishers lined the Hampshire shores. The band of the Royal Marines played nostalgic music on the dockide, an unusual honor for a merchant ship. There was an air of illusory gaiety as bright paper streamers criss-crossed the space between the passengers lining the promenade deck and the quayside. An occasional gaudy balloon caught in the errant gusts was swiftly jerked skywards, but among those whose workaday lives were so intimately bound up with the Mary's arrivals and sailings there was an undertone of sadness.

The Red Funnal Line generously invited former Mary captains, chief engineers and others aboard their tender escorting the great ship down Southampton Water. Overhead a spectacular squadron of Royal Navy helicopters provided aerial cover while an armada of small yachts chugged proudly in her wake and ship's sirens saluted loudly as she passed each letty.

Experiencing every type of weather on her 39-day passage to California by way of Cape Horn the Queen Mary, with her 1,089 passengers, eventually arrived on Dec. 9 at her stately new home, Long Beach, where she received a right royal welcome. The same warm affection that marked her farewell to England was here again. And this is as it should be because there is a natural bond between Southampton and Long Beach in that they are both great international seaports and each has a background rich in varied and growing interests.

Now as the Queen sits serenely in these Long Beach waters, it is good to recall some of the professional skill, courage and devotion that has brought her safely through.

It is perhaps not easy for the younger generation to realize that this great vessel has actually experienced such a stirring and totally different existence, but perhaps these brief notes may help delay the passing into oblivion of the recollection of a small part of the Mary's former life.

FROM BIRTH TO BERTH

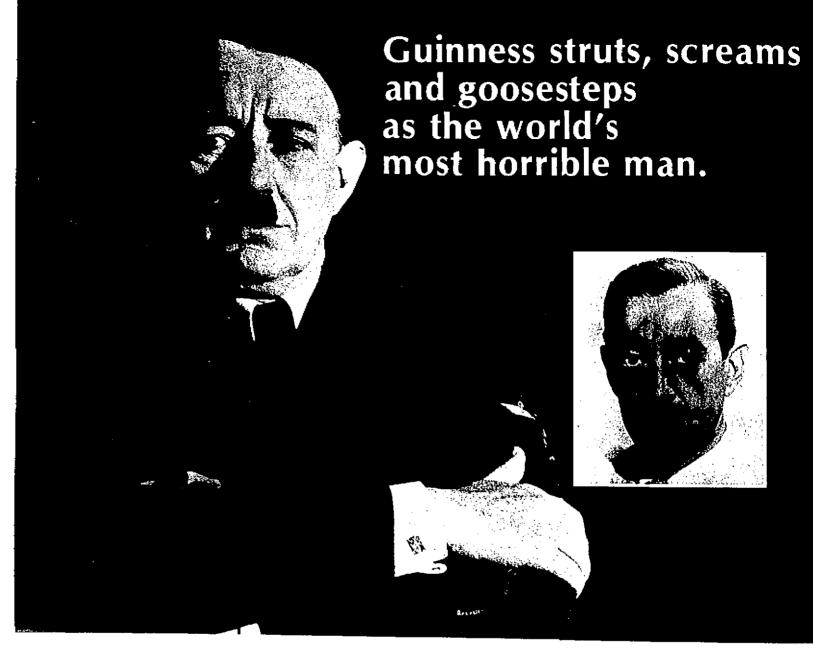

- The Queen Mary, was launched Sept. 26, 1934 by England's Queen Mary, grandmother of the present monarch. Some 100,000 pounds of soap and 300,000 pounds of tallow were used to ease the ship into the water.
- Sir Winston Churchill examined the secret plan for the invasion of France for the first time on the Queen.
- Nearly everybody who was anybody made passage aboard the ship. Bob Hope played golf on deck and Laurel and Hardy provided a few chuckles for passengers.
- After the Queen arrived in Long Beach, 320 tons of paint were sandblasted off the ship and replaced with three fresh coats.

- Both the Mayflower, here, and the Cunard Line's first ship, the Britannia, could fit in the Queen Mary's main dining salon.
- The ship's hom could be heard 10 miles away, yet it was so attuned that it did not disturb the passengers with its mighty
- In addition to a sports deck, the ship had gymnasiums equipped with such things as camel-riding machines, Indian clubs and dumbbells.
- The ship had 24 lifeboats and there was a drill with lifejackets on each crossing. The boats could be lowered in seconds by one man.
- One Queen Mary steward fastened a pedometer on his belt and clocked 28 miles in a normal day of serving the ship's passengers.

- The Mary was a class-conscious ship with three distinct modes of travel. In any of the three main restaurants, one for each class, passengers could eat their fill.
- The ship held the Blue Riband, for 14 years attesting to the fact it was the fastest passenger ship afloat. It flew the banner from 1938 to 1952.
- Towards the end of each voyage passengers competed for prizes in a Headdress Ball.
- The ship required services of a full-time gardener to tend the 1,200 plants, and the tresh flowers for passengers.
- The ship's engines generated 160,000 horsepower, equal to 16,000 galley slaves or 50 locomotives.

- The Queen was constructed in Scotland with work beginning in December 1930.
- The hollow rudder had ladders with three levels for inspection. There was a door from the outside.
- 17. During World War II the Queen converted to a troop ship, hauling G.I.'s across the Atlantic. It was heavily protected with guns which never had to be used because it was speedy enough to outrun Hitler's U-boats.
- 18. The Queen did its share to challenge the fury of Hitlerism in the Battle of the Atlantic. In addition to its speed, it learned to sail a zigzag course out of range of German aircraft. It carried three-quarter million troops before the war ended.

By REX REED

LONDON — In East Berlin there is a mound of earth covered with peaceful green grass, not far from the Brandenburg Gate. It's the first thing the tourists see. Under the ground lies Hitler's bunker, where 27 years ago the most horrible man on earth put a bullet into his twisted brain and ended a reign of terror that mercifully has never since been equalled in history.

Now Hitler is back, Along with his side-kicks, Goebbels, Bormann, Goering, Himmler, Eva Braun — names more monstrous than Frankenstein and Dracula. And just as profitable at the box office according to the makers of a new movie called "Hitler: The Last Ten Days," a British production so eerily authentic the Jewish crew-members dreaded reporting to work at Shepperton Studios in London as long as the swastikas were flying over the sound stage.

The name below the star on the dressing-room door said "Sir Alec Guinness" but the man on the sola was the hair-raising image of the Luehrer himself. He looked tired and pale. The plastered-down forelock of hair kept falling from his braided Nazi cap over his eye like the teeth of a black comb. His thick Charlie Chaplin moustache was creased above a thin, cruel mouth. His uniform bore an Iron Cross and swastika buttons. There was a gold swastika on the Meissen teacup beside him. He sipped mint tea and listened to a German radio with another swastika stamped on the case. Then he opened his mouth to speak and everyone sighed a breath of relief. The voice was refined and musical, gentle as spring rain. It was indeed Sir Alec Guinness, giving everyone the tright of a lifetime. Including, apparently, himself.

"It's terribly embarrassing, you know. I'm airaid to go out in public looking like this. Taxi drivers give me the rudest stares. Most of it is the work of a miracle make-up man. Except the moustache which I grew myself.

It was huge, but I finally cut it down to the size of a postage stamp. It makes my nose look as big as his. I haven't quite got the voice right yet. There are no recordings of Hitler's normal speaking voice. That screaming rant you always hear was his public voice, but I'm told that privately he spoke low and hesitantly, in ungrammatical German with a bad accent. It wasn't pleasant to hear. I have settled for a rather husky voice and I say things like Bear-leen for Berlin.

I've become obsessed with this monster. I spent five months reading all the available data, seeing all the available newsreet films, and I've learned a great deal from our technical advisor, Gerhardt Boldt, who was an adjutant to General Krebs, the representative of the chiefs of staff of the Third Reich in the bunker. He's one of the few men still alive who saw the whole thine."

Boldt, who was 26 at the time, was in the bunker with Hitler until one day before his suicide. He is portrayed in the film by Simon

Ward, Today Boldt is a businessman with a wine firm. His assistance has been invaluable, He taught the filmmakers every detail - from the labels on the wine bottles to the right model of German Lugar pistol to the training of Hitler's dog to eat lettuce leaves from his hand. From his first-hand experience, he even coached Alec Guinness on how to shake hands with a limp wrist like Hitler, how to make his left foot drag and his arms tremble. The actor is a chain smoker, but since Hitler never smoked, he has even gone on a cigarette strike.

"Ever since I was offered the role last Christmas, I have been obsessed. My wife, my poor friends, everyone I know has had to put up with every new scrap of information I find. But it doesn't depress me. I will probably never get a star part of this importance and dimension for the rest of my career, so I'm making the most of it. I'm exhausted and thank goodness it will soon end or I might go mad. But when it's over, I think it will be one of the most rewarding experiences of my life."

"Hitler: The Last Ten Days" is about the end of the whole hideous mess, those days from April 20 to April 30, 1945 when he was driven underground by the Russians. He was a sleepless wreck. His skin had turned gray from pep pills containing strychnine given him by a quack doctor whom he insisted on trusting. He lived in a world of fantasy, ordering murders and assassinations in an atmosphere of bizarre decadence. He passed his 56th birthday in that bunker, married his mistress Eva Braun and drank champagne while she sang "Tea For Two" to a Fred Astaire record on the wind-up gramophone and every wedding guest got a present — a box containing an autographed photo of the Fuehrer and two cyanide capsules to commit suicide with, while Berlin burned to the ground above their heads

Every aspect of those 10 days has been captured in the film - from Goebbels poisoning his six children to a reproduction of Hitler's favorite painting of Frederick the Great above his desk. The Russians have long since dynamited the bunker, but through maps and diagrams it has been reproduced to scale in the film, lending a shuddery ambiance to an otherwise jolly London studio. Medals, insignia, uniforms, chairs, newspapers, watches, cigars, labels and wrappings, even the ration storeroom filled with Hitler's favorite brandy and fresh cream — everything has been faithfully reconstructed right down to the air ventilators and financed by Tomorrow Entertainment, Inc., the films division of General Electric, which is the American backer of the picture. There is no question that it will be impressive. But is it all necessary? Does the world need to be reminded of such a nightmarish period of history? Hitler is dead and burned. Do we have to drag him out again and turn him into Adolf Hitler Superstar?

"Yes," says Sir Alec. "I don't think Hitler should be forgotten for one minute. Take the LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA present situation in America and England, It's not terribly unlike Berlin in the 20s and early 30s. We have a lot of social unrest, it's a pretty decadent society we've turned into, People say, 'What we need is law and order and someone to keep everyone else in line." Just as the Germans did. I am also frightened by the power of propaganda. We have all been raised on anti-German and anti-Hitler films that exaggerated everything, making the victors snide and the Nazis stupid. On the other hand, the pro-German films are even more disturbing because in them you see the faces of happy, laughing Cermans. We were always unable to see Hitler as he appeared to his own people. Don't forget he was greatly loved by 80 million Germans. I've made many films in Germany, but I've never met a single Nazi supporter. Yet they existed, I've seen the German documentaries and he obviously could exercise great charm and apparent sweetness of nature. He was better at kissing babies then most of today's politicians.

"God knows I do not sympathize with Hitler in any way, but I am determined that in this film we tell the story truly. Nothing appears in the film that is not warranted by facts. There is a scene in which Hitler orders the flooding of the Berlin subway to prevent the Russians from using it, even though it meant the drowning of thousands of German soldiers and civilians hiding there. I could find no written reference to this, but Herr Boldt was there and he heard the orders passed from the Fuehrer's mouth with his own ears. This is an anti-Hitler film, no doubt about that, but we have got to be very careful to balance it so that it doesn't become more propaganda itself. I intend to give him a square deal. Hitler was an evil man. He did, planned and condoned evil things. But he obviously had great charm, Nobody can become so powerful a dictator without it, Mussolini had it. Attila the Hun probably had it. Gangsters have it." He smiled wickedly. "Some film moguls have charm."

The most difficult scene in the film for this great actor was the suicide scene. "And the hysterical screaming. I'm not usually associated with that sort of thing." In the final print, Guinness will speak nonstop for almost an hour and a half of the film's running time. And in the final analysis, he says the best part of it was getting to play somebody genuinely "People keep asking me if I mind playing someone who isn't nice. I didn't mind playing MacBeth either and he wasn't so nice. Let's face it. Wicked monsters are fundamentally more interesting dramatically than the people next door. I don't mean I am attempting to play Hitler with charm. I think he was a maniac. But people did respond to him and in the end I feel he was a tragic character because his dream didn't work. And he had humor. He did a grand impersonation of Churchill. A lot of people loved him right up to the end even though they were bored to death by him. Just as I was bored by his 'Mein Kampf' and never finished reading it. I just can't be objective anymore."

Nevertheless, after living in his skin for nearly a year, Sir Alec confessed to a wave of relief as he pulled off the black wig, washed off the makeup, shed the swastikas and fron Cross and climbed once more into his comfortable gray flannels. His hair was balding and he had developed a paunch. He looked more like Alec Guinness. Then he started to raise his hands and blushed. "Oh, forgive me, I keep giving the Nazi salute to everybody."

Maybe a year in the skin of a monster has been a year too long.

THE PROGRAMMED DUCK

By DICK EMERY

Which way does he waddle? "This duck," the man said.
I looked at the duck.

"What about this duck?"
"It walks backwards," the man said.

I looked at the duck, it was standing there on the grass, it waggled its tail the way ducks do and looked at me. The feathers on the back of its head lifted just a little — a sort of salute

Ducks do that. It's one of the things ducks do that chickens can't.

"It's not walking anywhere, forward or back," I said.

"Scram," he said to the duck. "Go on. Scram!" He waved his arms.

The day was hot and the duck walked across the grass toward the goldfish pond. The duck was walking backwards, all right. You have to see a thing like that to believe it.

"What's the matter with the duck?" I asked. "It's not natural for a duck to walk backwards."

"Natural for THAT one," the man said.

"How come?"

"Programmed," he said. "It's in his upstairs works. Programmed while he was still an egg. Duck like that, you try to make him walk forward, he'll go into nervous fits."

"Never heard of such a thing," I said, I looked at the duck, It was walking backwards into the goldfish pond. It paddled backwards on the water.

The man — he was a gardener at the hotel — told me the duck had belonged to a guest, a traveling troubleshooter for a big outlit that dealt in computers. He went all over the world showing customers how to work the machines.

"Had to leave the duck here," the gardener said. "His company got a hot distress call from China or somewhere, something programmed wrong," he said. Plane wouldn't take the duck. Man left money here for the duck's feed. Said he'd be back."

"What else does the duck do?"

"Just like other ducks. Only he walks backwards."

"I don't see," I said, "how anybody could program a dumb duck."

"Got to it in egghood," the gardener said.
"That's the way the man put it. Tell you something. That duck was hatched out right in one of our hotel rooms in an incubator. The computer fellow ran a little incubator on his desk."

"Rats," I said.

"This computer man said if you know how, you can program anything to do anything. His company programs machines to think like people better than some people. He programmed the egg before it hatched. And I'll tell you something. I heard him."

"Nuts." I said.

"No kidding," the gardener said. "He talked to the egg. He said you can talk to flowers and trees and vegetables and they hear you. He said the egg listened. He kept telling it how it was going to walk backwards when it hatched into a duck. He said the same words over and over.

" 'You will walk backwards,' he used to tell the egg. 'You will walk backwards.' Over and over. Then he'd tell me, 'Just wait and see! This duck will walk backwards.' And right from the start, when the duck hatched, he walked backwards."

The gardener moved away to continue his work on the lawn. I noticed that the gardener walked backwards, not an unusual thing, of course, for a gardener watering a lawn, and yet it seemed coincidental.

I tried walking backward but after a few steps I had to turn around to look where I was headed. Could the duck see backwards, I wondered. But I looked out at the pond and the duck was swimming backwards out there with its head pointed forward.

These matters I discussed that evening with a feed-store man who came by to watch the duck. He told me he came by every evening.

"I knew that computer fellow," he said. "Very convincing the way he did things. He said you could program a plum tree to grow red, white and blue plums or leaves shaped like noodles. The whole future of the world, he used to tell me, can be programmed."

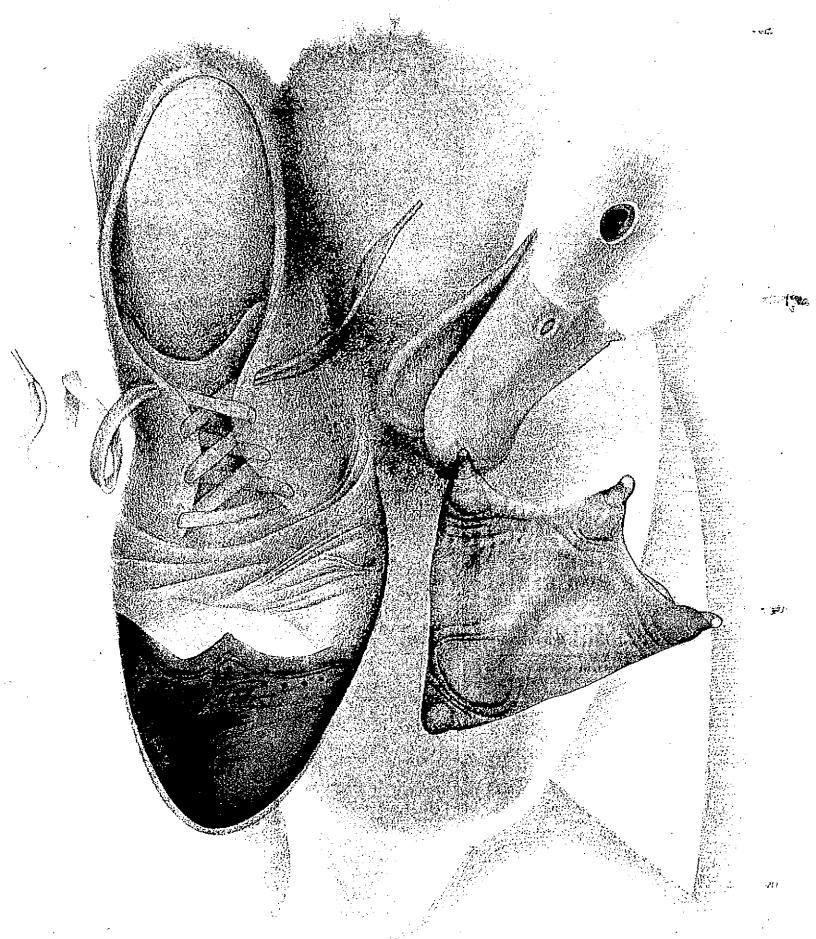

"But a duck that walks backwards?" I protested. "That's not natural for a duck. And this business of talking to an egg!"

"Over and over," the feed-store man said, "he'd say to that egg, 'You will walk back-

(Continued from page 25) wards. You will walk backwards. You will walk -"Yeah, I get it," I said tartly. "Don't try to program ME! The feed-store man backed away from me, grinning. 'You're kidding," I said, watching him. He backed clear out to the sidewalk without looking backwards. You know how a ridiculous thing like that will get you to worrying. I hunted up a vet next morning to ask about ducks. I took the backward duck along. "Never knew a duck to walk backward," the vet said. "But this programming, this computer stuff, it's really getting away out. They're programming everything and everybody. You can't tell what they'll try next. 'Walk backward! Walk backward!' to an egg! Erazy!

Together we watched the duck march around backwards. When I left, the vet was trying a few steps backward, himself, frown-

At the university a professor told me he doubted a duck could be programmed to walk backwards. I told him I knew such a duck personally.

"Probably trained by a circus man with a phobia of some sort," the professor said.

I lifted the top off the big cardboard carton I was carrying and reached in and carefully hoisted out the backward duck. I set the duck on the carpet in the professor's office. The duck walked backward. It waggled its tail sidewise the way ducks do and lifted the little feathers on the back of its head. It quacked happily. "Quack! Quack! Quack!"

"I'll be a monkey's uncle," the professor

I put the duck back into the carton and thanked the professor and left. I noticed as I was leaving that the professor was walking backwards experimentally, looking puzzled.

The demands of my employment made it impossible for me to linger at the hotel to study the duck. I continued my journey but found in the daily newspapers brief notices, from day to day, of the backward-walking duck. The curious fowl had been brought to the attention of high state officials, I suppose by the hotel's press agent.

The duck's programmer had been located in Hawaii - where a company was trying to program pineapples to grow on peach trees. There was much kidding about the project in the humor columns.

The man had been induced — the papers said he was eager — to read into television tape the same words he had used to program the duck, namely, over and over, but expressively and in a convincing manner, the words "You will walk backwards."

TV thought it was funny and kept playing the tape on national hookups for laughs. The kids got to saying it on playgrounds and pretty soon everybody was saying it. So many people got to walking backwards - to try it out, they said — that accident insurance rates went up.

I was again stopping overnight at the hotel the night the President made his talk about the backward-walking emergency. Somebody had to do something to stop it. By coincidence the business-machine man, the programmer who had programmed the duck, also was staying that night at the same hotel --- really hiding out, I think he was --- and we

He was just an ordinary fellow, likable, very sincere in his work, who spoke a mixture of plain English and special computer jargon that made no sense to me. We walked out to the goldfish pond to watch the duck walk backwards.

"After all," the man was saying, "the duck is right. What he's doing is right for him. He is doing what he was programmed to do. Now have you tried walking backwards?"
"Not I," I said, guardedly.

"Try it," he said.

"Why?" I said, suspiciously.

"Just a few steps," he said. "You will walk backwards. You will walk backwards."

I have heard all that," I said, walking backwards a step or two. Then I took a third step.

"I'll be darned," I said, startled.

"Yeah," the business machine programmer said, walking backwards, too. "If you were a duck you could swim backwards, if you were a duck. If you were a duck."

The duck was walking along beside us, backwards, of course. It lifted the little feathers on the back of its head — a kind of salute that chickens can't give. It wagged its tail sidewise.

The duck self-consciously quacked. I noticed how yellow its flat feet looked against the green lawn. It was a white duck,

"You see? You see?" the programmer said proudly. We were really pacing backwards now, the three of us, across the lawn. I noticed how yellow my shoes looked against the green grass. I was wearing my white denim pants and a white sports shirt.

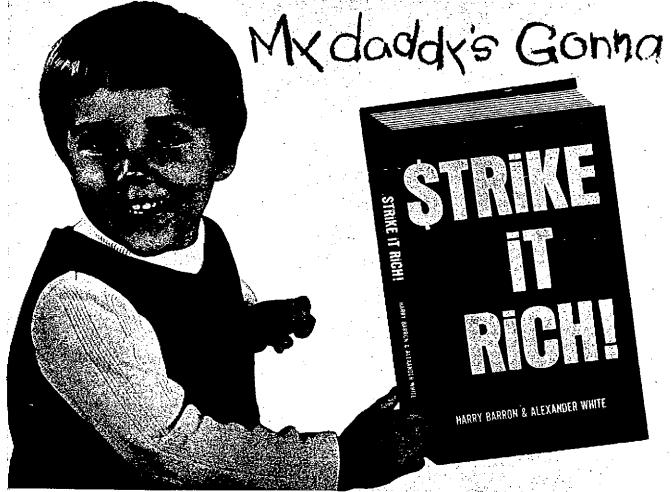

I shook my tail feathers sidewise and lifted the small feathers on the back of my head, the way chickens can't.

"Quack, quack!" I said, because it was such a beautiful warm evening. And the three of us backed into the goldfish pond.

The "good old days" are making their mark on today's wall decor.

And it's all because of the consumer.

Remember when the Mediterranean-Spanish styling became the trend? Well, it actually started by accident.

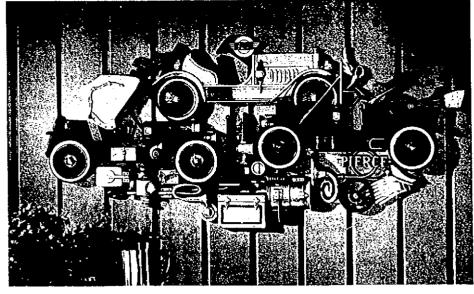

According to design consultant Mary Ann Wills: "The home furnishings industry generally regarded the Spanish design as 'interesting diversion,' hardly significant in terms of long-range commercial appeal.

"It turned out, of course, that homemakers felt otherwise," she said. "So in the early '60s a few daring manufacturers responded with Spanish-inspired designs. From these evolved the more livable Mediterranean styles, which now show every sign of becoming contemporary classics."

Mediterranean wasn't the "passing fancy" designers thought it would be. You, the consumer, made sure of that.

Now, another trend is coming into the spotlight — nostalgia!

It seems to be what the consumer wants in almost less time than it takes to say, "Remember when . . . ," a whole new decorating trend was launched. Ready for a change of pace and conditioned to the eclectic approach that makes a mixing of styles and materials acceptable, homemakers of all ages seem to welcome the nostalgic look with great enthusiasm.

According to Miss Wills: "Foreseeing that demand for certain of yesterday's castoffs might quickly exceed the supply, and very likely send prices soaring, they began recreating such items as Tiffany lamps, ceiling fans reminiscent of old Humphrey Bogart movie sets and wicker 'porch' turniture that so admirably suits today's style of living."

This nostalgia trend is being seen on the walls to create lively focal points.

"Plaques, mirrors, clocks and sculpture are among the many accessories that not only give you a chance to express your personality but also add visual interest to the room."

Your furniture may be placed just right, colors exquisite, floors that blend into the decor, but any room empty of accessories — especially on the wall — can leave it as lifeless and unattractive as a person in a burlap sack.

And remember, a home's decor is never settled once and for all. Like the people who live in the home, decor should evolve and change. If your tastes shift, if you acquire a new interest, let your home reflect this. Look for fresh ideas — and express yourself.

MOLOKAI:

Forgotten island of the lepers

By DIANNE SMITH

The triple-masted schooner comes into view off a rocky shore as azure waters slap at its bow.

Its passengers huddle together and peer over the railings, terror distorting the ir faces.

Suddenly the ship drops anchor and a momentary hush comes to the assemblage, followed by piercing screams which fill the air as the passengers are forced to jump overboard and swim ashore. Those who can't swim never make the beach. Those who can, and on an isolated part of Molokai, one of the Hawaiian islands, without provisions or means of building shelter, left to shift for themselves like cave men.

If they drown or die of starvation so much the better. It will spare others from their infection, dreaded leprosy.

This was the scene in 1865 when King Kamehameha V of Hawaii had lepers rounded up, herded like cattle onto ships and transported to an isolated 12-square mile peninsula on the windward side of the island. On one side are steep cliffs rising 1,664 feet and on the other, the ocean, making the spot inaccessible by land.

The incarceration there was carried out easily since lepers in those days could be identified by the creeping deformities of the disease, also known by its Chinese name, "Ma'i-pike."

At that time, unlike now, there was no way to control the dread virus, and affliction meant certain ostracization from family, friends and home—a one-way ticket to the never-never land of Molokai.

Young or old, white, native or Oriental, there was no distinction when it came to leprosy. For nearly 100 years, the leper colony has been a curiosity for there is still much mystery about leprosy or Hansen's Disease.

For 50 of those years the colony was off limits to anyone not suffering from the disease. The barrier was broken in the early 1870s with the arrival of a 24-year-old Belgian priest, Father Damien de Veuster, who had heard of the plight of these unfortunates and came to their aid.

Discovering they had no priest in the colony, he went to the island, knowing that once he stepped foot in the forbidden leper colony, he could never return to civilization. Yet, for 16 years, he cared for, taught and preached to the lepers, only to die from the disease himself in 1889.

His work on Molokai became known the world over and soon people began clamoring for more humane treatment of the lepers, Father Damien helped them build churches, hospitals and schools, many of which still stand. He attracted other Catholic missionaries to join his crusade there. Later came the Mormons and other sects.

Anyone who saw the movie, "The Hawaiians," will remember the ugliness of leprosy which demented and crippled its victims, They will recall the hungry hordes who prowled the beach like prehistoric animals.

Today's settlement at Kalalupapa on Molokai—leper colony is no longer an accepted term—has little resemblance to that beach scene. And leprosy, controlled with modern

San Pedro's Clinic for Leprosy

Outside of Hawaii there are two main clinics that treat the 2,000 known cases of leprosy in the United States. One of these is nearby in San Pedro. The other is a leperosarium in Carrville, La, the largest in care facility besides the one in Molokai.

The clinics are operated by the U.S. Public Health Service and the San Pedro facility is under the direction of Dr. Margaret Ann Storkan) a Redondo Beach dema tologist, recognized as one of the few experts in the care and detection of the disease. She has traveled everywhere in the world where the disease is rampant, including India, South America and Africa.

Her patients, who come once a week from throughout the Southland, number about 300. But, for every person infected, there are four others who must be examined regularly, she points out.

State and county regulations require that a child who has been exposed to the disease be checked for 10 years. The reason is the disease's long incubation period.

The first signs of leprosy (Hansen's disease), according to Dr. Storkan, are subtle. They may be a skin color change—the first thing looked tor—or an area that doesn't perspire or an area where the sensation is abnormal, either hypersensitive or insensitive.

The San Pedro clinic serves not only to treat patients and diagnose the disease, but to prevent it. "If a faither has the disease, we check not only the mother but the children and grandchildren," the doctor explains. There are biopsies, X rays and physical therapy available. The clinic also maintains its own pharmacy.

A town has been built about three miles from the original colony at Kalawao, where the first inhabitants were forced to find a way to exist. It's here that one finds Father Damien's church and next to it, in a wrought-iron enclosed plot, his gravemarker. His remains are no longer there, having been unearthed in 1936 at the request of King Leopold of Belgium and returned to his native land. Public tours of the Molokai peninsula began in 1957. One of the first residents to operate a tour service is a man who wants only to be known as Walt because he has family in California. Of Chinese ancestry, he came to Kalaupapa in 1925 when the death rate was 25 patients a munth. He was brought there against his will, as many leprosy victims were, a few weeks after his high school graduation. At 66, his case under control, he has witnessed a fot of changes come to the tiny point of fertile land.

For nearly 10 years he operated a tour service, retiring in 1965 after he decided tours were a lost venture. He now works parttime for Richard and Gloria Marks, who run the Damien tours of Kalaupapa. For three and a half hours he provides an inside view of life in the settlement without any public relations

He points out the general store, the social hall and hospital. The Kalaupapa Flospital was opened in 1932 with 60 beds and is still in use. Dr. Sylvia Haven, 60, has been the physician there for three years. She is assisted by five Franciscan nuns, two registered nurses and two practical nurses. Of the almost 200 patients still living on the peninsula, 29 are active cases. The rest have arrested cases and can leave any time.

However, most prefer to remain on their sheltered island, Wall explained.

They've been here too long to pull up stakes now and start a new life. There's security here. Some people in the outside world are still not ready to accept lepers into their community.

Married, Walt has children who live on the mainland and he goes to visit them occasionally. This is different from the early days when babies were taken from their parents if the mother or father had leprosy and were given up for adoption, usually to family or friends.

Patients have been allowed to intermarry for many years, but they could not raise their children at Kalaupapa, Patients with arrested cases can see their children, but many are fearful of passing on the disease and try not to handle the child. (Leprosy is most contagious to the very young and is transmitted by lixidily contact although it is not as easily trasmitted as it was once thought to be. Hawaii is an area where it frequently occurs and Hawaiian natives are more apt to get it than Caucasians.)

The Hawaiian state government no longer sends lepers to Kalaupapa. They are cared for now at an out-patient facility, Hale Mohalu, in Before visiting the settlement, tourists must obtain a clearance from the state health officer. Guests may drink water during the tour only at designated locations. No food is available, but visitors may bring their lunch and and stop at the picnic grounds halfway through the tour.

It is here that the true natural beauty of the area is evident. Looking across land's end to the East, one spies two unusual rock formations known to islanders as Mokapu (flat) and Okala (pointed). In clearings among the thick foliage and trees, cattle stop munching grass to stare at passersby,

Walt explains that they roam wild, with four head slaughtered monthly to provide residents with beel,

Today's residents of Kalaupapa live simple lives, similar to early rural farmers on the mainland. The state provides food and gasoline at cost. Gas sells for 13 cents a gallon compared to 45 to 50 cents in Honolulu on the main island of Oahu. Food is rationed from the general store at $12 a person a week.

Roaming cattle are main source of beef for residents of Kalaupapa.

The patients are hired at 25 to 80 cents an hour as carpenters, truck drivers, office or vard workers. Small cottages are offered rent free to those patients who want their own house. Dormitory facilities also are available.

According to Walt, there is a severe termite problem and the wooden structures must constantly be reinforced. Patients taking a cottage must buy all the furnishings and appliances for it.

The change in the settlement from a penal colony atmosphere to a government-subsidized housing development was possible with the discovery of the sulfane drugs in 1946. These drugs can completely arrest a case of Hansen's Disease but early detection is a

With the obvious phasing out of the Kalaupapa settlement, the question is what will become of the lush piece of tropical land where it stands.

The state may take it over for an historical site, rather than allowing promoters to come in, build high rises and turn it into another concrete resort jungle. Its inaccessibility by land makes it ideal as an out-of-the way overnight stop. The small landing strip makes it useful for fly-in tours of small duration to soak up the beauty of the untouched and unspoiled scenery.

Whatever happens, the future of the area promises to be more cheerful than its past. []

nosed skeptic myself.

So I had no difficulty understanding the skepticism offered by a few readers recently after I wrote about the perfect steak I enjoyed at Dimitri's, 907 S. Beach Blvd. at Ball Road, Ana-

"No wonder you got a perfect steak," commented one reader. "They knew who you were and made sure you got the best steak in the house!"

That reader calmed down after I explained how this department works. I've been a restaurant columnist of many years Through experience I've developed a number of minor strategies which enable me to dine unrecognized at most restaurants.

That's what happened at Dimitrì's, spacious, Normandy-style restaurant owned by Jimmy Gantes, one of the most talented and considerate restaurateurs in the Long Beach-Orange County area.
Accompanied by my wife and daughter, I visited Dimitri's on Jimmy's night off. Thus we enjoyed the same cuisine and service offered all of Dimitri's guests.

My perfect steak was a New York cut, $6.25 on the dinner. I've had steaks in restaurants all over the world and I rate Dimitri's New York cut up there with the very, very best. It was the finest Eastern beef money can buy. It was marbled, it was tender, but not too tender. It was juicy and had that broiled steak flavor which is the hallmark of perfect beef. It was big (but not huge), accompanied by deli-cious relishes, a splendid large salad, wonderful baked potato and garlic toast.

JIMMY GANTES The perfect steak

My wife and daughter enjoyed every morsel of their prime rib au jus and filet mignon jun-ior, both $5.25. The restaurant, about a 10 or 15-minute drive from the east side of Long Beach, also serves choice sea foods and international entrees, $3.50 to $7.75, such as shish kebab (enjoyed by actor Robert Mitchum); chicken chasseur or cacciatore, beef Stroganoff and gourmet yeal cutlet Romano.

No restaurant can be perfect 100 per cent of the time. But I'll wager that Dimitri's comes close. It serves every day from 4 p.m. on.

DOWN THROUGH years, I've visited Me-n-Ed's pizza parlor in Lakewood countless times. I've often marveled at the immaculate appearance of the dining room, banquet room and kitchen.

I asked owner Bob Baldwin the other day how he manages to keep the place so consistently clean. His answer surprised me. I knew his employes swept the place out quite often, but I never dreamed that they sweep the floor from 50 to 100 times a

I've known Bob since he opened the pizza parlor, Paramount Boulevard at Carson Street, back in 1963. He's a quiet, sort of conservative fellow who doesn't exaggerate. So I knew he wasn't stretching the truth when he explained that the kitchen is swept from 50 to 100 times a day, according to how busy it is.

'We don't sweep the rest of the place that often, of course," added Bob, "but we do wash the windows every day. We have janitorial service seven days a week. They mop all the floors every day — and the rest of the time we keep manning the brooms."

Its unusual cleanliness is just one of the reasons Me-n-Ed's Lakewood is so successful and popular. The pizza quality is fabulous — and that's no exaggeration either. Bob and his skilled crew -- directed by manager Sherman Rolf and his assistant, his brother Mary - have used the same pizza recipes and the same ingredients for over nine years.

"We think our system's the best," says Bob in his modest way, "so why should we change customers agree enthusiastically. Me-n-Ed's Lakewood has a dozen pizza varieties, $1.40 to $4.20. Special provisions should be made by airlines for heart patients and pregnant women, according to a report to the Civil Aviation Medical Association.

Dr. Frank A. Manthey, professor of anesthesiology at Yale University school of medicine, says that commercial airlines should be prepared to administer oxygen to passengers with cardiopulmonary disease and provide shoulder-style seat belts for those who are pregnant.

Persons with cardiopulmonary disease who are unusually nervous about flying probably would do well to use supplemental oxygen during the entire flight, he says.

Restraint by a lap belt has been known to cause fetal trauma in automobile accidents, the doctor says. The likelihood of trauma also exists during turbulent conditions or during aircraft landing incidents.

Shoulder-style belts already are available in newer light aircraft, and it would seem prudent for commercial carriers to provide them too, the doctor says in a report in U. S. Medicine, a newspaper for physicians.

Sometimes plain sugar can be a wonder drug, says a Maryland physician.

Dr. James W. Barnes Jr. of Glen Dale, Md., says he has used sugar to heal severe decubitus ulcers (bed sores) with an 80 per cent success rate.

"I tried the sugar treatment out of sheer frustration, after other methods proved unsatisfactory." Dr. Barnes said. "The use of sugar is not new, but the way we apply it is: We pack the ulcer very full and use air-tight dressings.

Sugar heals in several ways:

—It exerts an irritating effect, with granules causing "local injury" to initiate the wound repair processes of the

-The acidity of the sugar solution tends to increase blood flow to the ulcer

-The acid solution also kills bacte-

The sugar treatment is applied daily, and healing of a deep ulcer takes three to four months.

Decubitus ulcers, already a serious problem, will become more of a challenge in the next 10 years, Dr. Barnes believes, because of medicine's ability to keep more and more chronically ill patients alive. The cost of healing a serious bed sore can run as high as $10,000, he says.

Mouth protectors, which have sharply reduced the number of injuries to interscholastic football players, are beginning to be used in a number of other contact sports, a dental educator

Mouth guards are now being encouraged in basketball, field hockey, lacrosse, wrestling, boxing, rugby and soc-cer, among others, says Dr. William D. Heintz, chairman of the department of partial prosthedentics at Ohio State University, Calumbus.

Dr. Heintz, reporting to a conference on the medical aspects of sports, estimated that more than 90,000 mouth injuries have been prevented annually since mouth protectors were made mandatory in 1962 for high school football teams.

Immediate and prolonged resuscitation may prove lifesaving after a person appears to be apparently dead from a stroke of lightning.

One thought as to why such attempts can be successful is that it may be that the cessation of metabolism in all cells is so instantaneous after lightning stroke that the onset of degenerative processes is delayed.

Dr. M. A. Nesmith Jr. of Sanford, Fla., reports in the Journal of the Florida Medical Association the case of a 14year-old boy who was struck directly by lightning and thrown unconscious to the

His father attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but an ambulance attendant found that the boy had no pulse or respiration. External heart massage brought no response.

Efforts to revive the boy continued on the way to the hospital emergency room. Finally, after 10 minutes of external heart massage and other resuscitation efforts at the hospital, the boy began to respond.

The patient remained comatose until the 19th day after the incident. He later recovered and had only slight difficulty with writing. He also developed a nasal speech quality.

Inflammatory disease of the intestines may run in families, according to a study conducted at the University of Chicago.

Among 150 randomly chosen individuals with multiple tiny ulcers in the intestines, 11 per cent had a positive family history of such a disorder, researchers learned.

Dr. Joseph B. Kirsner, head of the research team and an internationally recognized authority on gastrointestinal diseases, says that although there may be a hereditary factor influencing susceptibility to inflammatory bowel disease, an environmental factor may be required to trigger it.

For example, he says, individual cases may develop during epidemics of food poisoning.

Details of the research appear in University of Chicago Reports.

Q. James Schlesinger, the new head of the Central Intelligence Agency—isn't he a close friend of Daniel Ellsberg of Pentagon Papers tame?-E. L., Santa Monica, Calif.

A. Dr. Ellsberg and Dr. Schlesinger are both out of Harvard. They were colleagues at the Rand Corporation, the think factory for the Air Force, in Santa Monica, Calif. As a matter of fact it was Ellsberg who recommended Schlesinger for a job at Rand when Schlesinger was teaching economics at the University of Virginia. Schlesinger's wife, the former Rachel Mellinger, was a "Miss Radcliffe" at Radcliffe College when Ellsberg's first wife, Carol, was there. The Schlesingers and the Ellsbergs have been friendly but not close friends. When Schlesinger was at Rand, he was regarded as one of its most brilliant and conservative members. So, too, was Ellsberg until he went to Vietnam and learned firsthand of the people's suffering.

Q. Does anyone know how many racially mixed children American troops have left behind in Vietnam and what has happened to them?-Mrs. Claude Jenkins, Salt Lake City, Utah.

A. One guesstimate, advanced by officials of Go Vap. largest orphanage in Vietnam, is 15,000. The Vietnamese take fairly good care of Caucasian-Vietnamese offspring. The children of black GI's and yellow Vietnamese mothers, however, suffer the most. They are given away, according to Sister Sabina of Go Vap, because "people here in Vietnam are ashamed of the Negro children, and in some orphanages keep them apart from the other children."

Q. Who is Manfred Lowengard? Is it true that he is the foremost handwriting expert in the world?—Mrs. Albert Casey, New Rochelle, N.Y.

A. Manfred Lowengard is a leading graphologist of German descent who now lives in London. In 1933 a high-ranking member of the Nazi SS (party elite) brought Lowengard a handwriting sample and asked him to analyze it. Lowengard declared that the handwriting belonged to a "a paranoiac." The handwriting was Adolf Hitler's. Lowengard was thrown into prison, transferred to a concentration camp, was ransomed by the Quakers and brought to London in

Q. Of the last five or six U.S. Presidents, which one had the best press relations, which one the worst?-Tom Hancock, Boston, Mass.

A. The late President Truman had the best relationship with the press, Nixon the worst.

Q. Michael Caine, the British actor and his Guyanan girlfriend, Shakira Baksh-are they expecting?-Louise Weiss, Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Shakira, who met Caine on a blind date a year and a half ago, announced recently that they are expecting a baby in June. The couple were married in Las Vegas on Jan. 8. Caine was previously married to actress Patricia Haines. They have one child, Dominique, 16.

Q. So much publicity has been given to Mia Farrow getting the role of Daisy Buchanan in The Great Gatsby. Wasn't The Great Gatsby filmed by Paramount before?--M. P., Burbank, Calif.

A. Yes, in 1949, with Alan Ladd and Betty Field, and it was a resounding flop. Scott Fitzgerald's novels, based in part on his mentally ill wife, Zelda, do not, on the record, make good motion pictures.

BETTY FIELD AND ALAN LADD IN SCENE FROM 1949'S THE GREAT GATSBY

Q. Can you tell me if a man named Ed Wegener invented a pencil which will last forever, and was then murdered by his competition to prevent its manufacture?—Casey R., Chicago, Ill.

A. A man named Wegener manufactures disposable pencils under the name of Dur-O-Lite Pencil Co. of Melrose Park, Ill., but he is very much alive. The pencils are made of wood and come in various colors and lead choices, but they do not last forever. They are in some ways the pencil equivalent of nonrefilling ballpoint pens.

O. Who was the first President of the United States who sent troops to Vietnam-Eisenhower or Kennedy?--Marilyn Heath, Berkeley, Calif.

A. The first was Harry S. Truman, who in June, 1950. sent approximately 35 military advisers to Saigon.

SORAYA AND ESCORT, BARON ARNAUD DE ROSNAY

Q. One of the most tragic young women of modern times is ex-Queen Soraya, the German girl from Munich who was married to the Shah of Iran and was divorced because she couldn't bear him a child. I understand she was very much in love with a married Italian film director, Franco Indovina. What's happened to that love affair? Can't Franco get a divorce?--I. H. T., Hiltonhead, S.C.

A. Several months ago Franco Indovina, who was Soraya's close companion, was killed in a plane crash. Soraya, now 41, has since found two new escorts: Claude Kaouza, whose father used to be a police official in Paris, and Parisian playboy Baron Arnaud de Rosnay,

Q. I understand that Roy Ash, the former President of Litton Industries, was appointed Director of the Office of Management and Budget by President Nixon on direct orders of John Connally. I would like to know if Ash's appointment requires Senatorial confirmation and exactly what obligations President Nixon has to John Connally?—F. L. Lewis, New York, N.Y.

A. Ash's position does not require Senatorial confirmation. Ash is a good friend of Connally, who in the last Presidential campaign headed "Democrats for Nixon." Under the circumstances, President Nixon, when the opportunity arises, will take care of "Big John" if "Big John" so desires. One scenario calls for Secretary of State William Rogers to be appointed to the first Supreme Court vacancy, at which time Connally is scheduled to become Secretary of State, and Henry Kissinger is to leave the government.

COMMON SINCE Suppose you discovered that some member of your family suffered from a drug overdose. Would you know what to do?

In a drug emergency, according to Dr. Joseph Benforado of the University of Wisconsin Medical School, you should do the following: Send someone for help. If you are alone check for shock, bleeding and impaired breathing. Then call quickly for an ambulance.

"Nothing else should be done," Benforado cautions.
"Don't give liquids or solids to an unconscious or semiconscious person.
You may do more harm than good. Introduction of another substance into the system of a person in this condition could produce womiting. If vomitus enters the lungs, pneumonia and death could result."

Dr. Benforado warns that what appears to be an overdose of drugs in a victim may actually prove to be an epileptic fit or some other illness.

Benforado often loctures to high school students on drug abuse. After his talks, there are usually one or two students who want to talk to him confidentially.

"Often they have a friend or brother who is becoming 'hooked' and want to know if they should intervene. I tell them to let their feelings be known," he says.

A young girl once asked Benforado about her boyfriend who was "shooting" heroin.

"I told her to be honest with him," Benforado says. "If he chooses drugs over her, they are more important when her friendship. If he quits, she may have saved his life."

Benforado warns that professional help should always be sought for drug abusers: "If you're not a doctor, don't try to treat someone yourself. Rather get him to a doctor or psychiatrist as you would any 'ill' person. This way underlying problems which led to drug abuse can usually come to light."

He says that concerned individuals need not worry that a drug abuser will later be upset by the fear that his problem has become widely known.

"Confidentiality is an important part of any doctor-patient relationship," Benforade notes. "Ask any addict or alcoholic who's been helped. They're glad someone cared. If you really want to help someone on drugs, do it now-before it's too late."

THE GOD LIT? Benito Mussolini, one-time dictator of Italy, was a strutting, superficial, cowardly braggart who used to boast, "better one day as a lion than a hundred years as a lamb."

Philosophically speaking, are people more interested in the quality or the length of the life they lead?

In France, the National Institute for Health and Medical Research recently produced statistics which show that Frenchmen die on the average seven years before their wives. Why? Because they drink too much, smoke too much and drive too dangerously.

Currently men in France live to age 68.2; women to age 75.4.

Since 1949, the National Institute claims, deaths caused by alcoholism in France have risen 80 percent for men; 32 percent for women. FANNY-SCUPTOR Ever since Princess Ira von Furstenberg, 31, revealed that a plastic surgeon had reshaped her bottom, Dr. Ivo Pitanguy of Rio de Janeiro has been swamped with business.

Last month Dr. Pitanguy, 47, small, dark and handsome, was in London and Paris en route to Switzerland ski country. In both capitals he was sought out by several women of wealth with over-proportioned fannys. Diplomatically, they inquired if Pitanguy might resculpt their backsides. Yes, he said, if they came to Rio where he maintains his extensive practice in plastic surgery.

LORG WAT The B-1 advanced manned strategic bomber for which North American-Rockwell has the major production contract will not be operational until February, 1980.

That means heavy reliance until that date upon the old warhorse, the $8 million B-52, which became operational in 1955 and is no longer in production.

That the B-52 is highly vulnerable to the Soviet SA-2 Guideline surface-to-air missiles (SAM-2) there is now little doubt.

This past Christmas when President Nixon ordered the B-52's in the heaviest raids of the war (100 B-52's plus 500 Air Force and Navy tactical aircraft) to bomb targets in Hanci and Haiphong, at least 15 of the planes, approaching their targets at 37,000 feet were blown out of the sky by SAM-2's. This happened even though the B-52's were equipped with sophisticated ECM (electronic countermeasure) equipment against the radars of the SA-2's.

lieve in exercise, and most people do whether they practice it or not, it is best to warm up gradually before starting vigorous physical activity.

The advice comes from Dr. R. James Barnard who recently reported on a UCLA Medical School study.

A group of 44 healthy firemen from Los Angeles County abruptly started running at 9 miles per hour on a 30-degree upward grade for 10 seconds. Of these 44 men, all in excellent condition, 31 developed momentary abnormalities in their electrocardiograms.

These men ranged in age from 20 to 50 and, according to Dr. Barnard, neither their age nor their physical condition had anything to do with their abnormal electrocardiogram readings.

"What happens in some people," Dr. Barnard explains, "is that sudden physical activity causes a blood shortage in the heart's coronary arteries. and this sometimes leads to a heart attack because under stress the metabolic demands of the heart are too high,

"What we recommend," Barnard continues, "is that the average person jog easily for four or five minutes before entering into any sudden strenuous activity. We've seen youngsters 10 and 12 years old, who suddenly run a 50or 60-yard dash, come down with a heart attack.

"It's best to warm up slowly and let the body get accustomed to the demands you're going to make on it."

fore many months elapse.

The word from Israel is that be-Golda Meir, 74, will resign as Prime Minister, and Henry Kissinger will visit Tel Aviv, probably in search of a new diplomatic triumph.

The leading cities of the world are resembling each other more and more. They are being franchised into semeness. Holiday Inns. Sheraton and Hilton Hotels, McDonald's Hamburgers, Kentucky Fried Chicken. Shakey's Pizza Parlor, Pepsi, Coca-Cola, high-rise office buildings, supermarkets and shopping centers -- all of these can be found outside the United States, the country of their origin.

It is just a question of a few years before the Ginza in Tokyo will look like Broadway in New York which will look like Picadilly in London which will look like the Champs Elysées in Paris -- at least from the franchise point of view.

In the Republic of South Africa there are six medical schools, Only one. the University of Witwatersrand (reef of white water) is allowed to accept black African students.

The result is that South Africa is graduating less than a dozen African physicians each year -- one for every 1.5 million Africans, a gargantuan disproportion.

Every day in this country, motor vehicles kill approximately 150 Americans, injure another 11,000. A major cause of these deaths and injuries is the drunken driver. He is involved in at least half the accidents.

CATHERINE DENEUVE AND MARCELLO MASTROIANHI

Other film H 235 actors like Michael Caine and Laurence Harvey may marry to legitimatize their children conceived out of wedlock, but not Marcello Mastroianni, Italy's foremost screen Casanova.

Mastroianni recently rented a spacious mansion in Pisa for Catherine Deneuve and their young daughter. When asked if he intended to divorce Carabella, his wife of many years, Mastroiauni, merely smiled, shrugged, walked off.

Apparently Catherine Deneuve, considered by many to be the most beautiful actress in France, does not need the security of marriage to raise her children. She did not marry Roger Vadim, the father of her son, Christian, and most probably she will not mairy Mastroianni unless he insists. Deneuve has been married only once, to British photographer David Bailey, who provided her with many portraits but no children.

If you're like most Americans, you probably place them carefully in one of those hook-on "safety seats," perhaps adorned with a cute little steering wheel. Or you cradle them in your lap. Or you hook them up in an adult safety belt—maybe two at a time. Any of these methods should take good care of them and cushion them against the shock of an accident—right?

Wrong. Thanks to the ignorance of parents, and to the inefficiency of many of the car scats they've been using, 1000 children aged 5 and under die every year in highway crashes. Between the ages of 5 and 15, 1700 are killed. Estimates of the total number injured vary from 250,000 to 1 million.

AN EXPERT ANSWERS YOUR OUESTIONS ABOUT MUSCLES

Der Tiles show that thousands of readers like yourself wert to belief height ing meaches and achieve real physics power like their tayerts athletic chaspiens. How to ye about it? We decided to ask an expert, Dave Promos, 3-times Philip MedgithTing champion and leading fitness expert. Here are his anexers.

What does it take to build muscles?

Basically, it takes exercise. Almost any exercise will help to develop at least some of your muscles if you keep at it long enough and bard enough.

film's there on easier way?

Yes. There is one outstandingly effective training method that is also fast and easy—the one I use and recommend—the new Bullworker system.

A'hat's that?

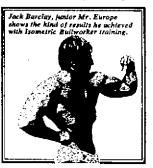

A The Bullworker is a revolutionary new muscle-building exercises has con Isometries, the science that increases strength up to four times faster than conventional methods. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system in the world today, Many leading athletes use it: World-famous Henvyweight Boxer Muhammad Ali, World Heavyweight Judo Champion Wim Ruska, and Cycling Champion Eddy Mercka, to name only a few.

Q How long does Bullworker training take?

Bullworker provides absolutely the fastest kind of exercise possible. In fact, an introduction training program takes only 70 seconds a day. No other system—weightlifting, pulleys, or stremuous calisthenics—can give you results so quickly and easily. On the contrary, many old-fashioned methods take hours of sweaty, boring work each day... and it's often months before you begin to see improvements. Busy professional athletes and champions don't have time for that. Nobody does.

How long does it take before you begin getting results?

With the Bullworker, you can actu-Mean the Bullworker, you can actually begin to see and measure the positive results right from the very first day! Fhanks to a built-in measuring device called the Powermeter. After every exercise you just check the reading to see exactly how much your strength has increased from the day before. There's no guesswork involved. Isometric Bullworker training can increase your power at the amazing rate of up to 4% per week! That means a 50% increase in strength in the first three months alone. And I've known many young me who have gone on to double and even triple their strength.

What do those figures mean in visual terms?

A They mean that in as little as 14 days you can actually begin to see muscle growth in a mirror and verify it with a tape measure. Every week thereafter brings ever faster growth.

But to get such impressive results, don't you have to work very hard?

Absolutely not. That's the outstanding advantage of Isometric training ...it's so amazingly easy! Each "Staticpower" Isometric exercise takes only seconds, and you barely have to move. It's not even necessary to disrobe. The Bullworker is so light and compact, it can be used at home, in the office, anywhere ... even white watching TV! It's a great improvement over hulky, expensive weights, bicycle machines, pulleys, etc.

Q. Can Bullworker training even develop badies which are weak and skinny, or fat and flabby?

A Definitely! It's been proven by thousands of men of every shape, size and age all over the world. Bullworker training helps transform weak, thin arms into rippling, muscular pillars of strength, build broad, powerful shoulders, turn flat, shallow chests into deep, manly ones, forge loose stomach flab into steel-hard, well-defined muscle... build that "V" shape of a real athlete, develop sturdy, contoured thighs and calves... And all this is record time!

What's more, I've known skinny, shy fellows who, after just a few short weeks with Bullworker, hurned into real go-getlers...every inch a manbowling girls over with their dynamism, confidence, and new found power! You really have to see the remarkable effects of Bullworker for yourself to believe them!

Q. How can our readers find out more about the Bullworker, perhaps actually try it for themselves?

I understand that the Bullworker distributor in the USA is now making it available—free—on a two week home-trial basis in order to introduce it to the general public. If your readers are interested in developing their bodies, in building muscles and strength faster than ever before possible. I suggest that they contact the US distributor for full details.

Who should have life insurance—husband or wife? New York Life finds attitudes are changing.

In your great grandfather's day there was no doubt about who needed life insurance. The head of the household, of course. The breadwinner. The man in the family. New York Life issued relatively few policies then on the lives of women.

These attitudes are rapidly changing. Today, most families still begin their life insurance program by insuring the husband. But as they are able, many go further. More parents realize the loss of either would present major financial problems for the family. Life insurance for both makes sense.

Similarly, many career-minded women—married and single—are concluding that life insurance has an important place in their financial security. As a result of this new thinking, more than one-quarter of all the policies New York Life issued last year were to women. This year it will be even more.

Can New York Life serve you? Of course, whether you are male or female, single or married. The person to help you is your nearby New York Life Agent. He, or she, is a good person to know.

Car's safety belt anchors Ford's Tot-Guard securely in place, foam-lined, it permits child to ride in comfort and safety.

SATE CAR CONTINUES

So shocking is this toll that aroused parents and physicians have joined in efforts to have the public use new, safer devices that are now available.

"The old hook-on seats do nothing to restrain a child in case of an accident," says Mrs. Debbie Richards, chairman of Action for Child Transportation Safety (ACTS), a group of mothers affiliated with Physicians for Automotive Safety.

Mrs. Richards, whose organization has chapters in New York, Los Angeles, Washington, Boston, Princeton, N.J., and other cities, points out that although the government promulgated new standards for child car seats on April 1, 1971, some of the old, substandard seats may still be on sale.

Still on the shelves?

"The new regulations forbade the manufacture of substandard car chairs after that date, but not their sale," she says. "No provision was made for their removal from store shelves."

Both the mothers and the physician group also point out that carrying an infant in the lap can be dangerous, since a crash could either crush the child between the mother and the vehicle interior, or fling him from her arms. Regular adult seat belts are also deemed dangerous because a small child's pelvic structure isn't strong enough to stand a sudden shock, and the belt pressure could easily cause abdominal injury.

The new government regulations require child safety seats to be firmly anchored to the car and the child securely restrained.

Three of the new devices have been found to perform especially well in tests conducted by a safety research team led by Dr. Verne L. Roberts at the University of Michigan:

Infant Carrier. Manufactured by General Motors, it is designed to carry infants up to 20 pounds. It isn't a seat, but a semi-reclining car bed made of a molded plastic shell with a padded lining. It may be used on the front or rear seat, and the child rides backward. It's available from GM or Chrysler dealers, and costs $12.

Tot-Guard. Manufactured by Ford, and designed for childien 21 to 50 pounds (about 1 to 5 years). It's a foam-lined plastic capsule in which the child sits on a cushion. Like the infant carrier, it's held in place by the car's lap belt. It may be used on either front or rear seat, and the child faces forward. Available from Ford dealers and costs $25.

Sears Harness. Not a seat, but a full hip-to-shoulder harness with a strap beneath the crotch. It is anchored to the body of the car and gives some freedom of movement though it will not permit the child to stand up. For children under 50 pounds. Available at Sears Roebuck stores; costs $9.

Although devices like these provide the greatest margin for child safety presently available, Mrs. Richards reports that they often are difficult to find. Both the GM Infant Carrier and the Ford Tot-Guard are handled only by auto dealers, and many don't seem to have them. "We went to 16 dealers in the New York area, and all were out of stock," reports another ACTS official, Mrs. Gisela Moriarty.

"Ideally," says Debbie Richards, "they should be part of the standard equipment on every new car, just like lap belts. We've been very careful to provide safeguards for adults, but we haven't given equivalent protection to our children, most of whom don't even know that they need it."

Some experts are trying to develop safety devices which will even go beyond the GM Infant Carrier and the Ford Tot-Guard. A former automatic weapons expert in Michigan named Heinrich von Wimmersperg, who has been active in automotive child safety design, has invented a bassinet that reacts like a swing to sudden impact, thus cushioning any shock,

Improvements coming

New and better devices certainly are on the way. But all authorities agree that rather than waiting for perfection, parents would be best off investing in one of the new approved child car-seat models as an immediate safety measure.

Here are some guidelines for taking children in your car:

 Never drive children in your car (or allow your children to drive with others) unless they're seated in a safe child-seat or harness.

Sears Harness holds child firmly, yet allows for some freedom of movement.

- When purchasing a car seat or harness, make sure it has a label certifying compliance with the new federal standards.
- Never let children stand in a car, even in the rear.
- Never put an adult seat belt on any child under 4 years old or under 40
- Never put two children of any age together in a single seat belt.
- Especially when children are in a car, always keep all doors securely locked.

(A pamphlet on automotive child safety may be obtained by sending 25 cents and a stamped, addressed, officesize envelope to Mrs. Debbie Richards. ACTS, 400 Central Park West, New York, N.Y. 10025.)

for greater safety, baby rides backwards in the Infant Carrier. Government has ruled out further manufacturing of inadequate, old-style "hook-on" seats.

"We eat steaks-and budget, too."

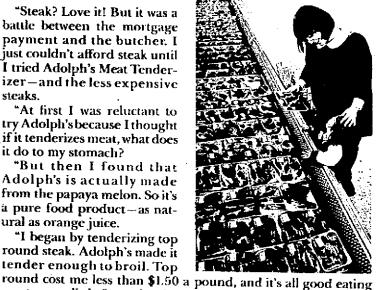

"Steak? Love it! But it was a battle between the mortgage payment and the butcher. I just couldn't afford steak until I tried Adolph's Meat Tenderizer—and the less expensive steaks.

"At first I was reluctant to try Adolph's because I thought if it tenderizes meat, what does it do to my stomach?

"But then I found that Adolph's is actually made from the papaya melon. So it's a pure food product-as natural as orange juice.

"I began by tenderizing top round steak. Adolph's made it tender enough to broil. Top meat - very little fat and no bone. I got a lot more for my money. "Best of all was the taste. Tender, juicy and delicious. We're eating more steaks now - and it's costing a lot less."

Lean cuts are better for you

Cuts of beef like round, flank and sirloin tip come from the parts of the animal that get the exercise. That's why they're lean. And why they're tough. And less expensive. But, pound for pound, the lean, less expensive cuts have more protein, less fat and calories. That's why they're better for you.

Tough-to-tender in a jiffy

With Adolph's Instant Meat Tenderizer, it takes only a few minutes to turn tough into tender. Just moisten the meat with water, sprinkle Adolph's evenly on both sides of the meat, then pierce deeply with a fork at about 1/2 inch intervals...and you're ready to broil.

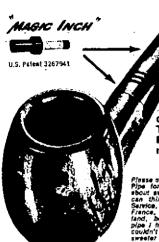

Gourmet treat marinated steak

For a flavor change-of-pace, marinate steaks with Adolph's Meat Marinade. It works in just fifteen minutes to give you steaks with deep-down flavor and juicy tenderness. You'll find Adolph's Meat Marinade at the meat counter.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO TRY THIS NEW PIPE!

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT patent number 3267941

This top grade London made briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. When you switch to a Carey Pipe, you get clean-er, cooler, sweeter, tastier, moisture-tree thoroughly enjoyable smoking. The coupon below will bring you my FREE TRIAL OFFER which gives you a CAREY PIPE to smoke on a test basis for a whole month.

Please send me another Carey Pipe for my brother. I have shout every kind of pipe you can think of. When in the Service, I purchased pipes in France, Cermany and Switzer-fand, but this is the better lipe I have lodey. There isst couldn't be a better tasting, arrefel amoke than you get from the Carey Pipe. L. S. Edwardsville, Illinois

t. S. Edwardsville, Illinois

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a ripe to cut down on cignrettes or expensive cigars.

Not too long ago the Surgeon General shocked the nation with his neeve shattering report on smoking and health. A federal law was passed requiring every package of cigareties sold in the United States to bear this measure, "Warning: the Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Snoking is Dangeous to Your Health."

AS A RESRILT, Americans by the Dansands witched to pipe smoking. Most of them were utterly disappointed because they just couldn't tolerate the tongue bite, the bitterness, the sludge, the stags of foul tasting goo, and the stale after-baste that results from smoking an ORDINARY pipe.

Over 30 Years Ago

I suffered the same disappointments. I bought I suffered the same disappointments. I bought one pipe after another, always looking for the ideal pipe. I bought the least pipes money could buy, and I bought all the disappointing, so called improved pipes with fancy gadgets and girmicks, but never found a single solitary pipe that would smoke bour after hour, day after day, without bitterness, bite or cludes. terness, bite or studge.

smoke hour after hour, day after day, without hitterness, hite or studge.

It was then, with considerable doubt, I decided to work out something for myself. After months of experimenting and scores of disappointments, suddenly, almost by accident, I discovered how the harmen four great natural laws to give me everything I wanted in a pipe. It didn't require any 'breaking in.'' From the first puff it srocked cool

—it smoked mild. It smoked right down to the last bit of tobacco without bite. It never has to be "meded.'' Yet, it is utterly impossible for goo or studge to reach your tongue, because my invention distipales the goo as it forms.

The Carey Fipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In Eact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Fipe is made of the finest agod mediterranean brian—but, its hig secret lies in the exclusive palented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a liste proof nylon stem.

It's Not A Fitter

The "Magic Inch" is not a falter that gets soggy no mage incu is not a liter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy foul smelling filter transmits its stake foul ndor into each successive pull of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

. It's Hot A Trap The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting mois-ture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and attreams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the rooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Tuch" chamber through the special louvren of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moist where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleave of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. rated into the outside air. No accumulation ever re-mains to form sludge or slugs of bither tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mines purifying oxygem with the smoke from the tobseco, in perfectly con-trolled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all, tongue bite, and creating MEJLOWNESS. MILDNESS, and SWEETINESS that was never all, torque bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, and SWEETINESS that was never before enjoyed in ripe smoking.

When I first started making the Carey "Magic Inch." Pipe as a hobby and gave neveral of there to my pipe smoking friends, little did I know that their enthusiasm and persistant demands for more pipes for themselves and their friends would make my part-time hobby grow into the most unusual pipe business in the world.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 38 days, without any risk on their part whatsover.

They were all granted the same option, an option which is yours also. After 20 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the least smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a harmer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

Exotic setting: Vimala Sondhi's Indian buffet table centers around a mildly spicy chicken curry served with white rice, salad with lemon juice and a yoguit dish.

Curry Favor with Your Guests

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

As assistant director of New York's India Tourist Office, Vimala Sondhi has been sparking interest in India for 15 years. In addition to that job as ambassadress of good will, Mrs. Sondhi looks after civil engineer husband, Virender: five-year-old daughter, Renuka, and four-year-old son, Rahul.

The Sondhis entertain often, and authentic Indian dishes are the bill of fare. "Many American friends are introduced to Southern Indian food at my table," says Mrs. Sondhi, "and I always hope they will be tempted to travel to India. if they like the cuisine!

"At home," she adds, "poultry is a delicacy, and chicken curry is considered a sophisticated dish to serve." Mrs. Sondhi's simplified version is accompanied by a cool-tasting vogurt dish, rice with raisins and nuts, and a salad platter of radishes, scallions, tomatoes and cucumbers sprinkled with salt and lemon juice. This delicious menu should end with fresh fruit and a pot of tea.

Simple Chicken Curry

1/2 cup butter or margarine 4 onions, chopped 2 or 3 garlic cloves, minced 2 bay leaves . 1 teaspoon powdered cinnamon 6 whole claves 1 roasting chicken (about 5 lbs.) cut up and skinned Water 11/2 teaspoons salt, or to taste 2 to 3 tablespoons curry powder, or to taste .1 tablespoon paprika

2 medium tomatoes, peeled and guartered

Melt butter in deep heavy skillet or Dutch oven. Add onions and garlic; cook over low heat until lightly browned. Add bay leaves, cinnamon and cloves; cover and cook 5 minutes. Add chicken pieces and about 1/2 cup water. Simmer uncovered until liquid has evaporated. Remove bay leaves and cloves. Combine salt, curry powder and paprika; blend with about 1/2 cup water; add to skillet and mix well. Add tomatoes and enough more water to cover chicken. Cover; simmer until chicken-is tender (about 11/2 hours). Makes six servings.

Yogurt with Cucumber and Tomato

1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh coriander (cilantro) optional 1 cup unflavored yogurt

Cut tomato crossivise into 1/2-inchthick rounds, slice into 1/2-inch-wide strips, then into 1/2-inch cubes. Peel cucumber, cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out seeds. Cut cucumber halves lengthwise into Va-inch-thick slices, then crosswise into 1/2-inch pieces. Combine cucumber, onion and salt; mix well. Let stand at room temperature for 5 minutes. Squeeze the cucumbers gently between fingers to remove excess liquid. Combine with tomato, coriander and yogurt. Makes six servings.

U.S. employs pretty girls to aid foreign tourists arriving by air. Yolanda Carrion, stationed at Kennedy airport, has discovered that a nice smile goes a long way.

Welcome, Stranger, to the U.S.A.

by Larry Jackson

ow would you like to begin a visit in a foreign country being greeted by pretty girls? It happens daily when tourists arrive at New York City's John F. Kennedy International Airport and airports in Seattle, Philadelphia, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

A total of 125 girls are now meeting planes in these four cities, and similar plans are underway for Boston, Miami, San Francisco, Guarn and the Virgin Islands

Who are the girls, and why are they being so friendly?

At Kennedy they are called the "Gölden Girls" because of their distinctive gold-colored blazers, PARADE recently observed them as they answered questions and assisted tourists through customs and immigration formalities. They are part of an energetic federal program to encourage tourism by showing America is a friendly place.

'You'd be surprised how many visitors arrive confused and need someone to talk to," says Yolanda Carrion, a "Golden Girl" for more than a year. "We try to set an example of American friendliness,"

I still preferred sofas to chairs.
You see, I once sat in an arm chair and when I stood up, it wouldn't let go. But what really got me losing was those ads about a reducing plan candy that helps curb your appetite.

232 pounds Down 38 pounds! Quite a record for someone who loved to eat. But I'd never have done it on willpower alone. I needed help and those Ayds³ candies gave it to me. I'd take a couple with a hot drink before a meal and I'd actually eat less.

215 pounds

No question the Ayds plan was really working for me now. Why, when I saw those scales down 55 pounds, I knew nothing could stop me until I got to my goal-below 150. Another thing. I found I could pass up pies, donuts and cakes more easily because those Ayds also satisfied my sweet tooth.

195 pounds A big turning point!...
I'd broken the 200-pound barrier! To reward myself I decided to have a huge meal and gooey dessert once a week.

And it worked. I still lost.

145 pounds Success! I was down to my goal. And just look at that beautiful waist! I don't know who is more proud-my husband or I. But we're both very happy, thanks to the Ayds plan.

Note: Photos are from the personal album of Betty O'Neal, Chicago, Illinois. The chicago, Ittinois. The picture at right was for laughs: Betty in a dress she wore before losing 125 lbs. on the Ayds plan. Incidentally, Ayds contain pitamine and contain vitamins and minerals, no drugs, and are available at drug counters.

But once you own it, you'll wonder how you lived a day without this "English Fog" fine mist sprayer. When I first saw this, that's just what I said—"completely useless."

But anyhow, I brought it home to my wife, Mrs. Wallace Brown. She started using it on the house plants—they got preemer, healthler, She uses one in the laundry, because she says it does a better job than a spray iron. She even uses it when cleaning windows—cuts out paying all that money for aerosol sprays. She told me the other night that the "English Fog" mist-er kept cut flowers alive longer.

Just fill container with liquid, press plunger lightly with thumb—out comes fine "English Fog" mist. 3½" in diameter-5½" high—takes no more room then a tea cup. Solld brass, Lacquered, Makes a great gift for a house plant nut.

for many of the 4.5 million foreign travelers who pass through Kennedy yearly. The girls, most of them language students at New York City area colleges, speak a total of 10 foreign languages: Spanish, French, Polish, German, Italian, Russian, Chinese, Greek, Hebrew and Yiddids.

"Much of our time may be spent interpreting and guiding,"says Christina Blazewicz, a student at St. John's College, "but actually our most important duty is to be patient."

Patience is especially needed when communicating with the small number of travelers who speak an unfamiliar tongue, says Mrs. Fern Giambatista, supervisor of the girls. "We must then communicate in sign language and smile. We've found that smiles are understood in all languages."

Joint sponsorship

The 35 "Golden Girls" at Kennedy are under the joint sponsorship of the United States Travel Service and the Port of New York and New Jersey Authority. They're on duty daily from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m., when the bulk of the international flights arrive. Each girl receives about $41 for a 15-hour week; they work full time during vacations.

"We have to counteract the bad publicity the United States gets abroad because of crime and other problems," says Ronald Danielian, USTS research and analysis director. "Foreign people are afraid of crime, costs and language barriers. They are afraid of being mugged in broad daylight, worry about American prices and being unable to communicate enough to get by."

Danielian says these fears are exaggerated, "Crime in many American cities is no worse than abroad. Prices, with special travel discounts for foreigners, are comparable to most major countries and people here speak more languages than foreigners realize."

Nevertheless, the USTS will spend much of its $9 million budget this fiscal year—less than countries like Ireland, Israel and Spain spend—on pamphlets telling foreigners what to expect and how to fend for themselves when they arrive here. The brochures, distributed through eight USTS offices abroad, explain everything from U.S. traffic laws to the price of dry cleaning.

The agency's job encompasses more, of course, than supplying foreign travel agents with brochures touting the United States. Programs available through the USTS include:

TRAVEL-PHONE USA—a nationwide toll-free telephone number where a foreign tourist can arrange for interpreter service or get advice on how to deal with problems likely to be encountered in the United States.

TRAVEL DISCOUNTS—foreign tourists are eligible for travel discounts of up to 50 percent on U.S. airlines and 25 percent on trains. Major intercity bus lines also have special discounts for foreigners.

MATCHING GRANTS—tax-exempt, non-profit public and private agencies, as well as states and local governments, are eligible for a total of $700,000 in federal grants to advertise local tourist attractions abroad.

The USTS hopes the inducements will stimulate foreign tourism and help reduce the U.S. balance of payments deficit, which reached almost $30 billion in Christina Blazewicz (center) is one of 35 girls who work at Kennedy as part of a federal program at several airports to encourage tourism to a "friendly" America.

1971. Last year American tourists spent about $3 billion more abroad than was spent here by foreign visitors.

"However an increase in the number of foreign tourists may have marrowed the travel gap," says Assistant Secretary of Commerce C. Langhorne Washburn, USTS director. "The deficit growth was only 7 percent last year, compared to 17 percent two years ago.

"Of course," says Washburn, "we wouldn't have this tremendous travel deficit if we weren't the most affluent nation in the world."

Still he hopes someday to eliminate the deficit. The USTS plans to absorb (and greatly expand) all domestic travel promotion from the U.S. Park Service. Next, reduced air and rail fares, similar to those offered to foreigners, would be set up for Americans.

Spend money at home

"If we can encourage Americans to spend their money on domestic trips, we can keep money here in the United States," Washburn says. "If we can increase foreign tourism here at the same time, we can wipe out, or at least slow down, the deficit."

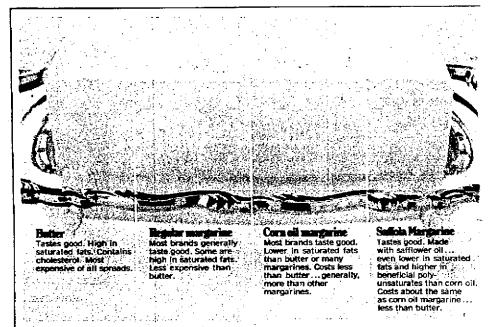

American customs and immigration forms can be confusing to foreigners who speak little English. Here two "Golden Girls" at Kennedy airport help travelers.

Reuniting tourists with their luggage is one of Pat Walsh's jobs at Kennedy, where 4.5 million foreigners arrive yearly.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

MOVE OVER, ATHLETES, THE ROCK STARS HAVE THEIR TRADING CARDS, TOO.

Rock Star Trading Cards

Any day now parents should be hearing a conversation among their young ones which goes something like this:

"Hey, man, I'll trade you a Three Dog Night and an Elton John for a Leon Russell."

"You've got to be kidding. Leon Russell is worth five Three Dog Nights."

What's it all about? Simply this: Hitmakers of Hollywood, a promotion and record company run by entrepreneurs Paul Politi and Vern Hjelsend, is about to market its rock star trading cards.

These cards are similar to the baseball and football cards the kids get when they buy particular types of chewing gum.

On the rock star cards, the face side shows the musician's portrait, and the turnover side, a biography revealing birthday, astrological sign, instrument played, and other interesting data. "For example," explains Vern Hjelsend, president of Hitmakers, "We found out that Bo Diddley used to be a boxer. His personal manager didn't even know that."

At the moment Hitmakers is test-pricing a set of 18 rock star cards at 79 cents per set in Los Angeles. If it catches on in L.A., national distribution will be arranged.

Hew low for ROTC

ROTC enrollments on college campuses "are at their lowest ebb in 25 years," reports the Pentagon, despite new advertising and recruiting programs.

A total of 72,459 students signed up for ROTC last fall, indicating a continued decline for six consecutive years. The slide began in 1966 when the college Reserve Officer Training Corps numbered 191,749.

The basic cause for the decline in ROTC enrollment is of course the war in Vietnam. No segment of the American population has been more bitterly opposed to the U.S. involvement in Vietnam than college students.

Fortunately the ROTC, along with the service academies and the officer candidate schools, are producing enough officers to fill the needs of the shrinking regular Armed Forces.

Young Sex in Japan

Sexual permissiveness is sweeping the world. No doubt about it. The pill has revolutionized premarital behavior among the young. Even in countries where parental guidance is strict, the teen-agers are not waiting for marriage to engage in sex relations.

Last month the National Police Agency of Japan issued a report on establishments contributing to the degradation of public morality.

The report reveals that in 1971 "Rentaru Rumu," or rooms for rent at $10 an hour, began to appear throughout Japan for the first time. Last year the number of these rooms increased by $0 percent. They have been attracting a growing number of teen-agers because of the "no-questions-asked" policy of their owners, and their low price.

Recently a group of 102 high school seniors, including 72 girls, was taken into custody in Kyoto after staging a mass sex orgy. In Osaka six junior high school students were discovered getting thronk in a "Rentary Rumu."

Sex crimes, officials of the National Police Agency report, are on the rise everywhere in Japan where there are now 1009 Turkish bathhouses, many of which offer more than baths. Last year, 4419 Japanese females, "including a fairly large number of high school students, were arrested for engaging in prostitution."

'SCHOOL BUG' DRIVER AT CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, SAN DIEGO

A Free Ride

The California State University, San Diego, bosts a new transportation system—the bug line. The line consists of two school bugs, carpeted, rock-music-playing buses, which whisk students to and from the beach areas of San Diego and the university. Best of all, the ride is for free.

The bug line, brainchild of advertising professor lack Haberstroh, runs on ad power. Haberstroh, alarmed at hearing that as many as 80 to 100 university women were raped while hitchhiking to school last year, decided alternative transportation was needed. He purchased two used buses with his own money, then successfully solicited advertising from San Diego area-based firms. The result: two admobiles plastered inside and out with enough commercial messages to provide a free ride for students.

Each bus is equipped with an eight-track tape stereo playing 300 songs and a friendly driver who dispenses snacks. The bug line schedule is equally innovative. Stops are thoroughly described as, for instance: "The green-painted dental office on Muir Avenue," or "The Pant-ry, a frisbee toss south of Newport Avenue."

Over 500 students now avail themselves of the bug line daily, and Prof. Haberstroh has been approached by transportation officials who wonder if advertising-supported buses might not work in other localities, and for larger populations, too.

Haberstroh thinks it would, and he is now planning a line of "Shopping Bugs" for San Diego's senior citizens. "We'll change the tunes from rock to Lawrence Welk," he says.

A SPECIAL JACK ANDERSON REPORT

The Latin American Connection

How Hard Drugs Are Now Reaching U.S. Cities Via South America

WASHINGTON, D.C.
The notorious "French Connection," which has brought a blizzard of illegal white heroin powder upon the East Coast in years past, has now been replaced by a "Latin American Connection." While President Nixon's crackdown on smuggling has shut down many of the underground drug routes in Europe, it has opened up new smuggling routes in Latin America.

From Mexico, Panama, Paraguay and the Caribbean isles, heroin and cocaine are pouring into the country through our soft underbelly. The "Latin American Connection" has also introduced daring new smuggling methods.

Cadavers of South Americans who died in Europe have been filled with plastic-wrapped packets of heroin before being shipped home. Once they arrive, the heroin is removed, the body is delivered to the grieving family, and another dose of drugs is on its way to the U.S. Drugs with a telltale smell, like marijuana, have been hidden among fruits with pungent odors destined for U.S. Gulf ports.

Cocaine grows popular

Cocaine, increasingly popular in the U.S., is back-packed across desolate Andes borders by peasants, who are scornfully called hormigas (ants) by the wealthy drug overseers. Sometimes small planes, called Mao Maus, will hauf the narcotics, skipping from one airstrip to the next through Latin America on into Florida in a daring game of hopscotch.

A fascinating story has been hidden under the secrecy stamp, because the government would prefer to have the public believe the smuggling crackdown has been a success. But the General Accounting Office has summarized the facts for a few select Congressmen and officials in a 152-page document so secret that each copy has been numbered. Because this is information the public is entitled to know, we have picked out the highlights, country by country:

ARGENTINA—"Argentina has become a significant transit point for hard narcotics destined for the United States ... cocaine is moved in ... from Bolivia in the form of coca paste and then is refined into cocaine in Argentina. The Argentine government . . . is acting against the traffickers [but] provincial police, whose jurisdiction is outside Buenos Aires, have virtually no narcotics capabilities."

BOLIVIA—"Cocaine is illegally processed... by about 100 clandestine manufacturers. A portion... is routed to the United States." The U.S. is supplying jeeps and training to Bolivian narcotics men and "will provide funds for rewards and information" in an effort to develop undercover informants.

BRAZIL—"Brazil has the potential for becoming a major transshipment point because of its numerous harbors and airports . . . There is evidence that the Amazon River is a highway for cocaine entering the international market."

CARIBBEAN COUNTRIES—"All types of narcotics flow from Europe into the Caribbean and are transshipped to the United States. Thousands of small craft cruise the Caribbean waters, which makes it almost impossible to monitor and prevent smuggling... It is very difficult to control the transfer of drugs from ship to ship in many harbors... The Netherlands Antilles has become a major hard drug transit point and... Jamaica is becoming one." Guyana may be "used as a stopover point for planes from Paraguay."

CHILE—"Chile is one of the world's leading illegal manufacturers of cocaine . . . U.S. officials believe the Chileans are heavily involved in smuggling cocaine into the United States. Chile is believed to be an increasingly important transit point for heroin shipments from Europe to the United States . . . Chilean law enforcement officials are reportedly willing to cooperate [but] the narcotics and gambling squad [of Chile] were not well trained in narcotics control."

COLOMBIA—"U.S. officials state that the considerable amount of smuggling of U.S. cigarettes, radios, whiskey and other consumer goods into Colombia offers a return route for smuggling heroin and cocaine into the United States. Various means are used, including hidden landing fields and travelers on commercial airplanes."

ECUADOR - "Clandestine laboratories in the coastal area are believed to be producing cocaine and heroin . . . shipments of narcotics from other countries pass through Ecuador on their way to the United States . . . there are serious difficulties to be overcome . . . because the national police and other governmental authorities are susceptible to bribes and because the police force is undermanned, ill-trained and ill-equipped."

MEXICO-"Significant quantities of heroin and cocaine originate in or transit through Mexico to the illicit U.S. market; Mexico continues to be the principal source of marijuana coming into the United States ... Use of Mexico as a transshipment country... is increasing. At least 20 percent of all heroin reaching the United States originates or passes through Mexico . . . presently, the Mexican narcotics police force is understaffed and undertrained."

PANAMA—"The crossroads of major sea and air traffic routes (and) a major contraband and smuggling center . . . Heroin and cocaine pass through Panama bound for the United States [from] Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, and Colombia . . . Panamanian officials do not seem to fully comprehend the steps needed to control drug production and traffic. The U.S. mission also reported that there were some indications that Panamanian officials and security agents might have been involved in narcotics trafficking."

PARAGUAY-"A major transit area for the smuggling, storage, and distribution of heroin from Europe . . . the network established to transport American cigarettes and other consumer goods to Paraguay for illegal transshipment to other countries has become the channel for smuggling drugs into the United States . . . Paraguay's concern about illicit international trafficking has increased recently because of unfavorable press reports about Paraguay's role as a smuggling center . . . There have been persistent but unconfirmed rumors that a small number of high-level Paraguayan officials are involved in drug trafficking . . . The Latin American Interagency Committee for Narcotics Control was not confident that a crackdown on officials involved in drug trafficking would take place."

PERU—"Cocarleaf . . . is refined in simple, clandestine laboratories near the coca fields and then is exported for the illegal international trade . . . Peruvian officials have indicated that they would be receptive to a United States-Peruvian bilateral program of aid in phasing out" this cocaine traffic.

URUGUAY-- "When drug control is tightened in nearby countries, Uruguay may become an important transshipment point. Because of its internal security problem and the assumption that it is not a major transshipment point, it has not placed a high priority on drug control."

Map of South America shows routes of the illicit flow of opiates into U.S. Central America and Caribbean area add their share to the deadly traffic.

VENEZUELA---"Venezuela has become important as a transshipment point for drugs from Europe en route to the United States . . . the transshipment of heroin and cocaine[has]become more visible and significant . . . Venezuela is serviced by numerous international airline flights; there is a significant volume of light-aircraft movement over the country; and its land and sea frontiers are clearly vulnerable."

In summary, the report says Latin American governments had been indifferent to the flow of drugs through their countries en route to the U.S. until their own youths began taking them. 'The use of narcotics, hallucinogens, amphetamines and barbiturates in Latin America is increasing, particularly among the young people."

Concludes the secret report: "There is increasing awareness in Latin America that narcotics addiction is a worldwide problem."

My Favorite Jokes

by Jimmy Joyce

EDITOR'S NOTE: There aren't too many opera singers who end up as full-time comedians. But, baritone limmy loyce sang for 10 seasons with the New England Opera Company, was a frequent soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and then, decided to indulge his pleasure in telling lunny stories full-time.

His stories are textured with rich dialogue and a cast of constant characters. He says, "I put the stories into sequences where one story extends into the next, and the next, and they dovetail into a 50-minute routine." The characters—Father Sweeney, the uncle, the monsignor, Aunt Nora, the rabbi, the minister—figure prominently in an Irish Boston setting where, for instance, GOP means "genuflect or perish," and an Episcopal minister might be described by the narrator as "a Jesuit who flunked Latin."

Now, after a career of playing top clubs Joyce enjoys working in the Catskill Mountain resort area at hotels like The Concord and Grossinger's, and as an after-dinner speaker. On occasion he still sings seriously, most recently at the Mozart-Haydn Festival last summer at New York's Lincoln Center.

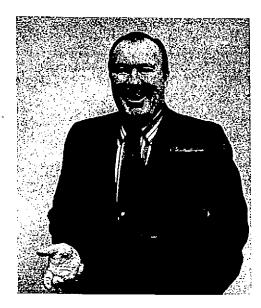

Here are some of his favorite stories:

The other day 1 was coming in on a jet, and 1 was sitting right next to a priest. We were 30,000 feet in the air, and the two left engines stopped. I turned to the priest, and I said, "Do something." He said, "I'm sorry, I'm in sales, not management."

Then the plane came in over the airport and the other two engines stopped, so the stewardess ran up and down the aisle checking safety belts, and she looked at me, and she said, "Mr. Joyce, we're in a little trouble, say a little prayer." I said, "Well, right now I can't think of any." She said, "Well, do something religious." So I took up a collection.

You know, the church I attend never takes up collections. Once a year they get three automobiles, and they put them up in front of the church, and they sell the chances. Last year they raffled off a Cadillac, a Mercury and a Plymouth. Three days after the raffle the pastor was walking down the street, and he bumped into one of my uncles coming out of a thirst parlor. My uncle looked at him and he said, "Can you tell me who won the automobiles? Who won the Cadillac?" And the priest said, "Why, the cardinal did; wasn't he lucky?" And the uncle said, "Who won the Mercury?" "Why, the monsignor did; wasn't he lucky?" And the uncle said, "Well, tell me, who won the Plymouth?" And the priest said, "Why, Father Murphy; wasn't he lucky?" And at that moment the uncle started to go back in and get another drink. The priest grabbed him and said, "By the way, how many tickets did you buy?" And the uncle said, "I didn't buy a damn one; wasn't I

The uncle was in the hospital for six weeks, and one of his friends came to see him. And there was the poor uncle in bed, the legs in traction and the arms in splints, and the head up in the bandage. And the guy walked over to him, took one look, and said, "You'll be fine; you'll be out of here in no time." The uncle said, "What did you say?" "I said, 'You'll be fine, you'll be out of here in no time at all.'" And the uncle said, "What did you say?" "What's the matter with you," the guy exclaimed, "Are you getting deaf?" The uncle said, "No, but I've been lying here without a drink for six weeks, and your breath is like a breeze from heaven."

The uncle was a man of many talents. He was a policeman, but one of the extra jobs he had was as a piano mover. One windy day he and a helper were moving a piano into a hotel, hoisting it up the side of the building, where they got it up to the sixth floor. The wind blew so hard, it blew the piano right into a window, where it got stuck. The helper looked at the uncle and said, "Dennis, you hold onto the rope and I'll go up to move the plano." And the uncle held onto the rope. The helper got onto the elevator, went up to the sixth floor, walked up to the window where the big piano was stuck, gave it a push, and it fell out the window. As it fell it pulled Dennis up, still hanging onto the rope. The piano hit the sidewalk and fell into a million pieces. When the weight was taken off the rope, Dennis came down again, hit the sidewalk, and lay there in a heap. And all this time the helper was in the window watching everything that went on. He ran down the stairs; there was a big crowd of people gathered round his friend's body. He said, "Out of me way, give that man some air." He picked him up in his arms and said, "Speak to me, Dennis. Speak to me." And Dennis opened one eye rather weakly and said, "Speak to you, why the hell should I speak to you. I passed you twice, and you didn't speak to me."

In the introductory volume, Life Before Man, you'll experience the stranger-than-science-fiction excitement of the earth's beginnings. You'll feel a sense of immediacy and visual adventure in the incredibly lifelike pictorial technique, photo-painting. In the more than 100 illustrations, and in the accuracy of its fact-filled lext, you'll find fascinating new answers to age-old questions about the evolution of man.

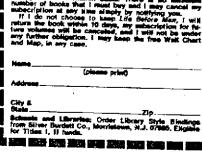

The answers come from some of the world's most eminent authorities or inthropology, archeology, zoology and paleoanthropology: Margaret Mead; Sherwood L. Washburn; Bernard Campbell and Bert Salwen. They have helped create the most authentic, up-to-date library of books on this subject available today. Once you've experienced the high adventure of Life Before Man, you'll eagerly anticipate the rest of the books in the series. In books such as The Missing Link, The First Men, Cro-Magnon Man and The First Clies, you'll witness the development of all the characteristics that make men human.

For an unforgettable trip into the origins of everything you are and know, take advantage of our introductory offer: Examine Life Before Man for 10 days. If it doesn't make you want to own it, send it back. If you do keep it, pay just $5.95 ($6.95 in Canada) plus shipping and handling, and we will then send you other volumes in the Emergence of Man series at the rate of one approximately every other month, on the same free examination terms. You may cancel this arrangement at any time. For your introductory volume, send card or coupon, or write to Time-Life Books, Dept. 1001, Time & Life Building, Chicago, Illimois 60611.

it is two million years ago. On an African savanna, a strange creature browses for food. He looks something like an ape and also like a man. He walks upright -- yet his forehead is flat, his jaw thrusts forward. He doesn't know it — but he represents a giant step forward in evolution. For he is the "missing link" between ape and man . . .

TIME-LIFE BOOKS ANNOUNCES THE EMERGENCE OF MAN

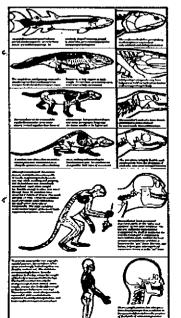

Filled with startling discoveries, this important new series takes you on an expedition that traces man's origins, development and probable future . . . in the greatest adventure of all time.

Begin with Life Before Man

yours to enjoy free for 10 days

Today, that creature who first ventured to raise himself above the other animals no longer exists; he has become you. Unique. Set apart from the 2 million other species living on the planet by a thumb that makes your hand a precision tool . . . by a knee that "locks" you in a comfortable upright position . . . and by your capacity for abstract thought and speech. All this, and more, has enabled your species to dominate the earth. And yet you share, with every other creature that ever lived, the same origins - the same accident that led to the spontaneous creation of the first singlecelled algae 3.5 billion years ago.

How did it all happen? What was the evolutionary process that led to Man and his conquest of a harsh and hostile environment? You will find the amazing story in TIME-LIFE BOOKS' new series, THE EMERGENCE OF MAN
